Livonia board seeks summer tax collection

By Teri Banas staff writer

Still fresh from its successes in instituting a dual school tax collection plan in Livonia, Livonia Public School officials have asked for the same in the northern section of Westland.

The school board acted to institute twice-a-year tax collection in the Westland portion of the district Monday. The area represents approximately 10 percent of the district.

According to district estimates, the school district should save some $100,000 a year in that section by collecting school taxes twice a year. The savings is estimated to come from interest payments the district would have paid to borrow money for operation. With a more even flow of tax dollars coming into the district, school officials say that borrowing will be unnecessary.

Monday, the school board approved the plan by resolution. Under state law. the city of Westland now has until March 1 to respond to the school's intent to begin collecting half of the school taxes this July. A public hearing, required by law, also was held that night in the school board offices but no one spoke on the matter. However, the school district may be asked to collect its own taxes, according to Westland Mayor Charles Picker-

WESTLAND WAS the scene of heated debate two years ago when the Wayne-Westland School District asked the city to collect its summer taxes. Westland residents blamed city officials for steep rises in mortgage payments due to changes made by at least one mortgage company to compensate for the early tax collection.

Because of the large number of complaints, the city returned to the practice of collecting school taxes just once ' school districts can enact the plan by each year. "The collection fee (1 percent on county and school taxes) would be an advantage to the city," Pickering admitted. "But a lot would depend on the relationship the (Livonia) board establishes with the city.

"We would want to make sure its well publicized that the city is only the collecting agent."

Pickering said that if the district also prepares mortgage companies for the change, then "in the long run residents won't experience an increase in taxes or escrow accounts."

Under Public Act 333, signed by Gov. William Milliken before he left office. resolution with only limited approval power from the local municipality.

When the matter was before the Livonia section of the school district before the law change, the Livonia City Council could have denied the district's request. Under the new law, a school district can appeal to a higher order -Wayne County, in this case — if the local municipality turns down the re-

"THE COUNTY treasurer has already told the school districts that the county would collect the taxes if the local governments don't," said James Carli, the school district's assistant superintendent for personnel.

1983 Sabarban Communication Corporation. All Rights Reserved.

"Before the law change it (whether to collect school taxes twice-a-year) was strickly up to the whim of the local governments," explained Carli, "This (the law change) gives the school board the right to collect its own taxes."

School officials say the plan would mean minimal cost to implement. That's because Westland already collects taxes twice-a-year. Because Westland is on a the same fiscal calendar as the school district - the year beginning in July - it already collects its local city taxes in July and collects county and other taxes in December.

Alano Club to use Perrinville School

The Livonia School Board authorized the lease of the Perrinville Elementary School to an alcoholics recovery group Monday night — more than a year and a half after the school was closed due to declining enrollment.

The rental agreement, which amounts to nearly $225,000 over 10 years, was approved by school board trustees Monday after almost one year of negotiations, said the district's business superintendent, Arthur Howell.

The agreement with the Northwest-Alano Club, described as a social club that offers educational and recreational programs for recovering alcoholics, takes effect Feb. 1. However, club director Cal Brodie said it may take until sometime in April before the organization moves in.

Currently, Alano has an office on deal with Alano, Perrinville had been one of four vacated school buildings. In all, the district has closed 23 school buildings, the majority of which began shutting down in the mid-1970s. Still to remain in the building will be the offices of the district's curriculum department.

According to the agreement, rent in the first two years will be $13,600, annually, and $20,400 each year for the next three years. The yearly rent in the following five years will be $27,200.

OF PARTICULAR importance to a district saddled with high maintenance costs in older buildings is a contract provision which cites responsibility over utility costs. According to the agreement, Alano will pay all of the utility costs in the first five years of the agreement and almost 70 percent of the overhead costs in the final five years. The group also will split the custodial costs with the district. The district will still maintain the landscaping chores, according to the agreement. The group, founded 12 years ago, lists 500 members, according to club information made available by theschool district. It has no affiliations with other groups, though some 98 percent of its members belong to Alcoholics Anonymous (AA), Brodie said. It offers a variety of educational meetings and lectures, including AA meetings, and recreational activities such as dances, bingo Until school officials cemented the ping pong. In Garden City, the local court was so impressed with its work that it refers alcohol offenders to the program.

The center's hours will be 10-2 a.m. weekdays and Saturdays, and 10 a.m. to midnight on Sundays. Perrinville is on a 4.5-acre site on Ann Arbor Trail in Westland. The oldest section of the building was built by Ford Motor in 1956 for company employees. Later, it was deeded to the Nankin Mills School District and eventually was taken over by the Livonia Public Schools.

The district closed the school in June

Mayor vetoes Herbert's appointment to council the appointment of A. Kent Herbert, former finance director for the city of Westland, to the City Council. Herbert was appointed Monday night to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of Justine Barns, newly elected state representative. Her term expires Jan. 1,

He was nominated for the seat by Councilman Charles T. Griffin. Voting no on his appointment were council members Nancy Neal and Ben DeHart.

Expressing surprise and disappointment over the council's selection, Pickering also said the council failed to follow proper procedure in the selection. He added that Herbert would have to abstain from budget deliberations since his wife works for the city.

Herbert first joined the city staff in 1972 as a staff accountant, a position he held until 1974.

From 1974 to 1978 he was budget director and controller. From 1978 until 1980, he served as grants director. He became finance director in 1980, serving until 1982 when he was fired by Pickering upon his taking office.

Pickering said he fired Herbert be-when he took office and because of friction between Herbert and other city employees.

After leaving the city, Herbert joined Baseline Inc. of Plymouth as vice president/treasurer.

HERBERT WAS one of nine persons who had been nominated by the council to fill the post. One of them, Glenn Shaw Jr., had declined the nomination. Others nominated were Dennis Fassett, James W. Nelms Jr., Terry J. McGovern, Thomas H. Brown, Arlie W. Gipson, Ken Horn and Harry Conner. Herbert said that with the resignation of Finance Director Larry Willlams, his former assistant in the finance department, that he feels his appointment to the council "will provide a continuity in knowledge of the financial condition of the city.

"As I will be the only person on the city council that has not been elected by the citizens of Westland, there are commitments I want to make to the citizens and taxpayers so they will know what to expect from me and feel comfortable with my efforts to help

Mayor Charles Pickering has vetoed cause the city had an $800,000 deficit them to build a fine community," he

One of his goals is to work to solve the mounting problems of the city with all elected officials in the city.

"There has been too little recognition by the mayor that the council has been elected also and represents the many elements of the city, its neighborhoods and its people. Compromise should be an important element between the mayor and council," he added.

HERBERT ALSO said he wants to provide better and more direct communication with the residents.

"In past elections, this has been a favorite buzz-word of many of the candidates. I have some very specific ideas on how to do this. I do not think we should wait until a citizen has a complaint before we communicate with them."

The new councilman said he will continue to be a strong supporter of tax limitations.

"I was a vocal supporter of the tax reduction program of the Westland City Council, and I supported the repeal of the school dual tax collection.

"In my experience as city treasurer, I have met with taxpayers who were literally in tears worrying how they could pay their taxes. Government should never put its hard working taxpayers in this position."

He said he won't be a rubber stamp for policies or actions for the benefit of any mayor, special-interest group or any particular individual.

"Each program presented to the council must be judged and supported or rejected on its own merits," Herbert added.

On the city's financial problems, he said he wants to assure a "balanced approach" to budget cutting and equal sharing of the sacrifices necessary by all elements of the city, including civic groups, citizens, administrators and all the city's bargaining units.

He wants to promote an increase in volunteerism and resident participation in the delivery of city services.

"I believe that recently we have seen the citizens begin to take an interest and demand a say in the decisions affecting their lives," he continued.

He said he has a long list of items he wants to review.

Livonia career center gives students a head start

By Marie Chestney staff writer

When Bill Hamilton, vocational-education specialist at the Livonia Career Center, said, "Our success is based on your success," he was talking about former students such as Tom Cowher.

Just days after graduating from Stevenson High School last June, Cowher got a job using drafting and engineer- . ing skills he had learned at Stevenson and at the career center, 8985 New-Cowher, 18, got an entry-level, skilled-trades job at Livonia-based Visual Services, Inc., despite the reeling Michigan economy, record-high joblessness and keen competition among the skilled unemployed. Since June, Cowher has moved up a couple of notches in his job responsibilities and his salary.

Cowher is a Livonia Career Center success story because he got a job in the field the center had trained him for.

According to a survey made of 1980-81 center graduates, 38 percent of the students contacted found a job in their field. That means 158 out of the 417 contacted found jobs, said Robert Morris, center placement coordinator who made the survey.

But just as much a success story in the eyes of the staff are those students who don't take a job in their field, but go on to some form of higher education.

"A number of students like what they're doing here, but are not that interested in school," said Robert Laundroche, principal of the center. "We love to turn that attitude around.

"We have two goals here. We give students the skills and attitudes needed to get an entry-level job in the field they are working on here. And we make them aware of the continuing educational opportunities that are out there. Our success isn't measured only by the number of students we place. We consider ourselves successful when the students go on to school," said Laundroche.

The survey showed that 42 percent - or 177 - went on to some form of higher education.

Those two figures — 38 percent and 42 percent — put the center's success rate at 80 percent.

Vocational, or skilled, education is undergoing a surge in popularity. People with doctorates can't find jobs in their fields and there has been a shift toward emphasis on high-tech industry.

Some technologies, such as computers and word processing, have even become buzzwords to those seeking jobs.

At the center, which was built in 1979 and is across the street from Churchill, students, fill computer classes up to 9 p.m. week nights. More than 100 students seeking computer training had to be turned down recently because of the high demand, Laundroche said.

Seven hundred students - mostly seniors - from Livonia's three high schools come to the center each school day for up to three hours of instruction in 19 different career fields.

Training is given in such fields as nursing, drafting, secretarial, banking, accounting, computers, commercial art, welding, electronics, office maintenance, security and auto mechanics. The students coming to the center are not walking into a field cold. Each has taken basic courses and are seeking more advanced, detailed training in that fleld. Laundroache said.

And each, he said, comes to the center with a recommendation from a

'When we first opened, we got a lot of resistance from the high schools in sending us students," Laundroche said. "They accused us of taking their best students. Only the best students in a specialized field come here. We are not a dumping ground for poorly motivated kids and ill-trained instructors."

The center receives funds from the federal and state governments and the Livonia schools. Laundroche put the center's yearly budget at $2 million, with $290,000 of that coming from state funds.

Tight controls, including a maximum class size of 22 and the annual performance survey, are imposed by the state, Laundroche said.

All 18 instructors at the center, he said, have worked extensively in the fields they teach. One nursing instructor is a registered nurse; a teacher in security and law is a retired Detroit police officer.

Many Livonia parents, Laundroche said, do not know the center exists. To create awareness, the center gives interest surveys to 10th- and 11thgraders, holds "open houses," gives tours to 8th-graders and is hosting a "hands-on"open house for 4th-graders from Adams Elementary School and their parents in February.

The biggest problem in recruiting, Laundroche said, is "sexual stereotyping." "We have to start early teaching youngsters that boys don't have to go into auto mechanics and girls into office work," he said. "Here, we have males in nursing, word processing and in dental; and we have females in auto shop, welding and building mainte-

The second biggest problem, Laundroche said, is getting students - and their parents - to break out of the "doctor, lawyer" trap.

"When we survey the kids, we find a preponderance of them wanting to be doctors and lawyers," he said. "It's unrealistic and that scares us. They don't know their full range of options. And they don't know a lot of those jobs just aren't there anymore. The trend is toward more technical areas. Too which don't exist."

But, he said, students who do ont for skilled training are getting "more sophisticated" in the fields they pick. They shy away from skills, such as carpentry or welding, which are in a job slump. And the center cuts back on classes in skills which don't give good job potential, he said.

Each skill taught at the center is overlooked by an advisory committee made up of professionals working in that field, Laundroche said. These committee members tell the center when equipment becomes obsolete or when new techniques have been ushered in.

"Someone will tell us that carburetors are no longer taken apart in small shops, so we'll stop teaching that," he

Becoming skilled in a field while in . high school, instead of at the community-college level, gets students into skilled jobs that much faster, Laundroche said.

They can go to work as a draftsper-'son rather than work in a fast-food place," he said.

It also lets students know that much sooner whether they are cut out for a certain field.

"It's a way to obtain knowledge about yourself as well as a field, " he said.

Not one of the 417 students reached in the 1980-81 survey said they thought the three hours spent every school day at the center had been a waste of time, Morris said.

"What we got back were positive comments," he said. "The students felt

The center not only teaches skills it teaches students to have a good job attitude. The students are evaluated twice during the school year, using "Top 10" criteria given by 146 Livonia employers. On top of the list is "dependability," followed by "follows directions," "gets along with peers" and "exhibits self-confidence."

Students who get low marks in the "Top 10" are given special counseling, Morris said. Students also sit in on classes in resume writing and interviewing.

"But a lot of the burden falls on the students," Morris said. "We assist kids as much as possible, but we also impress on them, don't bank entirely on us. We teach them how to find a job,"

Nine months of in-class training led to dental assistant careers for Chris Heenan and Lynn Justice, both Stevenson High School graduates.

Printing isn't what it used to be—it's better

By Sandra Armbruster staff writer

"They don't make 'em like they' used to" is a common complaint about modern, technological items. When it comes to newspapers, however, that expression reflects good

Since this is Printing Week, we'd like to tell you about that progress and what it takes to deliver a newspaper to you, our readers.

Most people credit the beginning of printing to Johann Gutenberg, who introduced movable type to Europe about 1440. According to Edwin Emery in "The Press and America," Gutenberg was beaten to the inkpot by about 400 years. It was Pi Sheng who first used movable type in China around 1045.

The invention of movable type was important. Before that, literature was reproduced by handwriting or by carved blocks - a costly and slow process.

Movable type made books and, eventually, newspapers available to the public at a reasonable price. To this day, low cost and availability, or circulation, without restraint are two cornerstones of a free press guaranteed by the U.S. Constitution.

The first, primitive newspaper was published somewhere in northern Germany in 1609, but in 1566 residents of Venice payed for news bulletins with a coin called a "gazetta." Some papers today still call them. selves "gazettes."

A special pen called a graphic digitizer is used to design the advertisement, add borders, outline the ad and' make sure the type fits into the space allowed.

Completed advertisements and stories are printed out on film by a computerized photographic typesetter. The exposed film is then automatically developed and dried by another machine.

PHOTOGRAPHS are developed by another machine called an ECRM. Unlike film you use in your camera, the ECRM prints directly on paper without a negative. This special machine uses a laser scanner to transform pictures into a series of dot patterns.

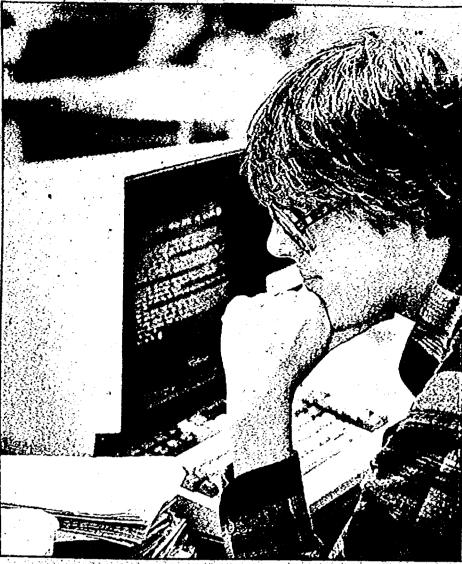

Take a magnifying glass and look at the pictures on this page. You will see that the more dots there are, the darker the picture is.

Stories and pictures are cut to correct size and coated with wax. People called keyliners take the waxed material and place it on a page called a flat. For directions, they follow a layout of all pictures, stories and ads drawn on standard-sized paper by editors and advertising placement personnel.

The completed flat, which is slightly larger than one page of your paper, goes to the camera room. This camera is about eight feet tail. It produces a right-reading instead of a reverse negative. (Hold this paper up to a mirror. The image you see in the mirror is called reverse.)

The right-reading image allows the use of a relatively new kind of production called offset. Formerly, hot lead was molded into type set into

FINALLY, THE plates are placed on a machine called the press. Inked plates roll up against cylindrical "blankets." The reverse image on the blankets is then pressed against rolls of newsprint. Each role weighs 1,900 pounds and is 58 inches wide. Unlike letterpress, which can print only one side of a page at a time, each side of the paper is printed simultaneously in the offset process.

At Observer & Eccentric Newspapers, the press is a three-story high machine that can print up to 60,000 papers an hour with a maximum of 64 pages at a time,

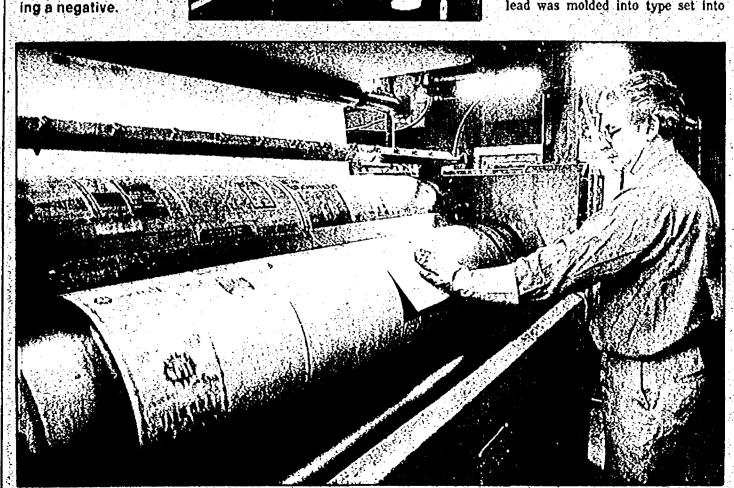

Besides black ink, combinations of yellow, red and blue ink are used to produce the color pictures you see in the paper. Dot screens determine how much of each color of ink is used. The press is also used to fold newsprint into a maximum of eight sections at a time. Once its folded, the newspaper is carried by conveyer to the mailing room where papers are counted, stacked and tied into bundles by machine.

The same conveyor then carries the bundles out to trucks for delivery.

Pistons' star helps open March of Dimes campaign

By Bill Casper staff writer

A throng of excited little people crowded knee-high around a gentle giant of a man. They peered upward in awe at this towering, blond-haired visitor as he talked to them in the gymnasium of Fisher Elementary School in the South Redford School District.

The big man smiled warmly as he fielded questions from the Fisher school youngsters, who seemed most interested in knowing just how tall he stood. And they reacted with wonder to learn he stretched nearly seven feet from head to toe.

They all knew who he was and what he did for a living. Many of them had seen him perform on television. And many of them undoubtedly aspire to follow in his massive footsteps one day. The thrill of meeting and talking with him is one they will long boast and remember.

He uses his great size and physical ability to play professional basketball with the Detroit Pistons, but off the court he is a man with a mission. He was at Fisher school to begin that mission as honorary chairman of the Tri-

County Basketball Shoot-out program, a fund-raising project sponsored by Tubby's Sub Shops for the Easter Seals

"I had never seen him in person before, but I know who he is because I've seen the Pistons play on TV," said fifthgrader Joe Mirabitur, 10, one of last year's shoot-out participants.

"HE'S KENT BENSON," Mirabitur said in affirming his knowledge of Fisher's celebrity guest.

Fisher students, assembled in the school gymnasium Monday afternoon to welcome the 6-foot, 10-inch, 240pound Benson, a Piston forward, for the kick-off of this year's Basketball Shoot-out.

Benson, in his second year as shootout chairman, began his Tri-County school visits at Fisher in recognition of its students who last year raised the most money, according to Bill Crotteau, physical education teacher and supervisor of Fisher's shoot-out partici-

"Last year, we raised about $2,400 and I'd like to at least equal that amount and perhaps do a little better an opportunity to appear on the 1983 this year," Crotteau said. "We've had a Easter Seal Telethon March 27. The so if we at least equal last year's effort. , we'll really be doing better.

"I INVOLVE the students in grades four through six for shoot-out participation and I try to tie this activity into our physical education program here." he said. "We'll probably schedule at least two days of shooting to raise funds this year. Each of the participating students will obtain pledges from persons who will pledge a certain amount of money for each basket made during the scheduled shoot-outs.

The students are allowed three minutes to make as many baskets as possible during the shoot-out," said Crotteau. "If for example a person pledges 10 cents per basket and the student makes 10 baskets, the person's contribution amounts to $1.

"The school received $1,000 worth of physical education equipment and a trophy for our first-place finish last year," he said. "The students also compete for individual prizes such as hats and shirts, Detroit Piston tickets and decline in student enrollment this year, students really enjoyed being on last year's telethon."

And some of last year's participants may be featured in a television promotion of the shoot-out.

A camera crew from WDIV, channel 4, which will air the March telethon, was at Fisher Monday filming Benson and some of Fisher's top shoot-out participants of last year for future airing as a telethon promotional spot.

Benson's hope is to get as many students as possible involved in this year's shoot-out fund-raiser.

"I'M INVOLVED in many different charities and I think it's important forall youngsters to realize there are kids out there of the same age who need the help Easter Seals can provide," he said during a break in the filming. "Easter Seals is a very important part of this community. I don't feel obligated to become involved with Easter Seals, but as a member of this community, I want to participate in what I consider a great organization.

Fidge signs union card, keeps job but fights WCRC

Commission administrator, vo earlier had refused to join a conoverrsial management union, signeda union card Tyesday to keep his 2,000-avear lob.

Thomas Fidge Jr. of lymouth Township, who was dismissed assistant director of administration with responsibilities for road rightf-ways last month because he had shined union membership, was granted temporary restraining order in Wayn County Circuit Court at 4:25 p.m., lei than a half-hour after he signed the crd. The card authorizes the deduction a ser-. vice chargé from his payche, equal to union dues. The restraining order preints the WCRC from firing Fidge. A thring is set Friday before Judge Jame Mies in Circuit Court.

"I didn't like signing the unin card," said Fidge. "But it was bettero sign it (than lose the job)."

ALTHOUGH FIDGE signedhe card just before his firing became ffective at 4 p.m., he still plans to fighthe case in court.

"I'm going to fight it anywy," said Fidge. "I'd rather fight it bing paid than not being paid. Who kiws how long this thing is going to dragut?"

Carole Levitte, Fidge's attoley, said they will request a preliminal injunction at Friday's hearing. If grated, the injunction would bar the Rdd Com-

A high-ranking Wayne Costy Road mission from taking any further action until a full hearing on the case, she

> Fidge has filed a lawsuit against the commission for breach of contract,

"He's been an employee of the commission for 27 years, and they wanted (to fire) him for failing to join the union," said Levitte.

"But if the courts find this union is illegal under provisions of the new charter, then he can't be forced to

LOU SUGO, a spokesman for the road commission and the managers' union, said, "Fidge has done what we asked him to do. He was given notice by our board (in a letter dated Dec. 16) - either you belong as a dues-paying member or you'll be terminated."

The Road Commission's three-member governing board dismissed Fidge last month at the request of the union because he refused to join, Sugo said.

Levitte said Fidge had refused to join the union when it was formed last spring because it would have presented a conflict of interest with his job as labor negotiator for the commission.

Critics contend the 73-member Association of County Road Managers, which represents top executives and professionals of the Road Commission, was formed in an attempt to get around provisions in the new county charter.

Round 1 for Lucas

County board OKs budget office

By Carol Azizian staff writer

Wayne County commissioners gave their stamp of approval to the first section of a reorganization plan which proposes sweeping changes in how the county is run.

Commissioners voted 13-0 at a committee of the whole meeting Tuesday to "tentatively accept" that part which deals with administration of county finances.

But at least two commissioners -Kay L. Beard, D-Inkster, and Mary E. Dumas, R-Livonia - wanted approval to hinge on a review of the entire document,

"We may want to reopen discussion on that section later (if inconsistencies are found)," Beard said. She added that commissioners may want to review sections of the document with other attorneys.

Beard was reproached by Dennis Nystrom, chief of County Executive William Lucas' transition staff. "Don't establish yourselves as jailhouse lawyers," Nystrom said.

TUESDAY WAS the first time the board met to review Lucas's reorganization plan, required by the new county charter. The board has 90 days to either approve or reject the plan.

Under the plan - drafted by Lucas's 38-member reorganization committee budget would be set up to control finances

It is one of six "super" departments headed by persons reporting directly to

Among the most significant changes expected to take place in the department is implementation of a computerized accounting system.

"The old financial system has to be dramatically overhauled," said Nystrom. "We want to upgrade the system : and (purchase equipment) that is technologically state-of-the-art.

. "If (someone) asked today for the financial status of a department, we wouldn't be able to tell them," Nystrom added. "We don't have reports available at the first of the month like a business would have."

NYSTROM SAID he expected the system to be in place within a year and a half, but he "wasn't in a position" to say how much the system would cost.

He did say, however, that Wayne County "may be able to piggyback on some of Oakland County's data processing."

At least one commissioner, Joseph L. Jurkiewicz, D-Taylor, raised the question of how the board can justify spending money for a computer system when the county faces deficits in excess of $67 million.

"How are we going to justify spend-ment at a time when we're talking about payless paydays?" asked Jurklewicz. "We're going to have a difficult time selling to it the public because our deficits are overflowing."

CHANGES also are expected in the purchasing department - "one of our weakest areas," Nystrom said. A centralized purchasing operation will be responsible for all divisions of county government, including Wayne County General Hospital.

A "cash management committee" will be set up to improve investment

- a department of management and ling large numbers of dollars for equip- earnings, keep better track of funds and make long-range financial plans, Nystrom added.

> Nystrom sidestepped questions from two commissioners who requested a line-item budget for the county executive's office. He said that information will be made available later.

"We haven't seen a line-item budget . (detailing how Lucas plans to spend the $640,000 allocated for his office)." Beard said. "We don't know in what fashion he proposes to spend that mon-

Bowlers to help Boys, Girls Clubs

Youth league members at Fiesta Lanes, 38250 Ford Road, Westland, are holding a bowl-athon'to benefit other children who are members of the Boys and Girls Clubs of Metro Detroit.

Dorothy Hainley, co-secretary of the youth leagues, said some 350 bowlers, ranging in age from 7 to 16 who currently bowl in the Thursday afterschool and Saturday morning youth leagues, are eligible to participate.

"The youngsters are rounding up pledges from friends and neighbors for each pin they will knock down during their regular league games now through Saturday," she said. "Each participant will receive a sew-on patch. Those who collect $25 or more in pledges will earn a T-shirt. The top three fund-raisers in each league will win a trophy." Fiesta Lanes manager Gary Vignary said the event officially began Jan. 13 when veteran Detroit sportscaster Ray Lane made a guest appearance to meet some of the young bowlers and encourage their success.

"AFTER THE youngsters bowl this week and have their scores verified, they will go back to their sponsors to collect the pledges and return with the contributions the following week," Sandy Shepherd, also co-secretary of the youth leagues, said.

"The results will then be tallied and the prizes awarded to all participants."

Proceeds from the event will go to the Boys and Girls Clubs of Metro Detroit to help maintain seven full-time. professionally staffed youth development centers in Detroit and surrounding suburbs, which serve more than 6,000 members.

Car care booklet will help

Regular maintenance is a crucial factor in the life of your car. And according to the U.S. General Services Administration, a few easy checks can help you avoid a broken fan belt on the road or more serious engine problems.

Learn the routine maintenance you can perform in Car Care and Service $1.25 from the Consumer Information Center, Dept. 104K, Pueblo, Colo.

You should check your oil at least every other time you fill up with gasoline. Don't add oil until you're a quart low, but when yu reach this point, put in a can of all-weather oil.

IF THE oil warning light ever comes on while your engine is running, turn off the ignition immediately. Continued operation could result in major engine damage.

Periodically check the fluid in your manual or automatic transmission. Cars with automatic transmissions must be checked while the engine is running. If the car whines while it's shifting, it could mean your car's transmission needs service.

Check your tire pressure at least once a month. Buy a tire gauge and learn how to use it.

And learn how to "read" the tires themselves: wear on the edges indicates your tires are underinflated, while wear in the middle means they're overinflated. Maintaining the correct pressure not only prolongs tire life, it can also improve your gasoline mile-

WHENEVER YOU take your car in for routine maintenance, ask the mechanic to check your hoses for soundness and your fan belt for correct

. Every spring and fall, have the antifreeze-water mixture tested. This can help you avoid a freeze-up or boilover. If your car ever does overheat while the engine to let it cool. If you're stuck in traffic and can't pull over, shift into neutral and press the accelerator one quarter down. Then turn on your heater, it will

WHAT IS AN EQUI-LOAN?

An Equi-Loan is a second mortgage secured by the equity in your home. By using your home equity, you can borrow $3,000 or more with liberal repayment terms at simple interest rates. An Equi-Loan is not a remortgage, but a second mortgage: it will therefore not alter your present mortgage or its rate.

The amount of equity in your home, by the way, is the difference between its appraised value and your first mortgage (if any). This equity provides the basis for borrowing a large amount of money at established simple interest rates with the maximum amount of the loan being determined by the size of your equity.

WITH A SIMPLE INTEREST EQUI-LOAN YOU HAVE THE OPTION OF SIGNIFICANTLY REDUCING THE AMOUNT OF INTEREST. YOU PAY.

The earlier you pay back a simple interest loan, the less you'll pay in interest charges. So every time you make an early payment, or an additional payment, you are actually reducing the amount of interest you pay for your loan.

HERE'S AN EXAMPLE OF THE AMOUNT YOU CAN EXPECT TO BORROW.

Each transaction is different and subject to credit approval, however, we are flexible in our lending policy. In general, you can expect that the total of your first and second mortgage will amount to 70% of our valuation of your home. For Example:

Trails abound

South Dakota is a skiers' haven

Ask cross country skiers to specify heir favorite spot in South Dakota, and you get a multiplicity of answers.

The Black Hills have many spectacuar areas, and there are numerous advocates of the parks and recreation areas in eastern South Dakota.

The result is an enviable situation, with cross country skiers reaping the benefits all across the state.

The Black Hills, with more than 200 kilometers of marked trails, offers uncrowded, challenging terrain. Cross country skiers cite the Hills as having some of the most ideal land in the nation for winter recreation. The Hills have easy grades for touring, yet are true mountains, with magnificent scehic qualities.

Black Hills trails offer easy access to thousands of acres of meadowland and pristing forest. Some of the best touring n the Black Hills is off-trail, where you blaze your own way to discovery.

Ski season in the Hills generally runs Into mid-March. Late-season snows often will extend the season in the high country into April. Marked and maintained trails are concentrated in the porthern Black Hills between Spearfish and Deadwood/Lead and in the southcentral Hills between Hill City and Custer west of U.S. Highway 385.

The downhill ski areas of Deer Mountain and Terry Peak, west of Lead, both maintain cross country trails, and there are 30 kilometers of groomed trails at Big Hill, southwest of Spearlish. Many areas in the Black Hills have abandoned railroad beds and old logging roads which make excellent trails.

Cross country outfitters are located in Rapid City, Spearfish, Deadwood, and Lead with rental equipment and complete retail lines. Some of the outfitters also offer guide services, and a guide service is available in Custer.

From the Missouri River east in South Dakota, cross country skiing is a burgeoning winter activity. The terrain here varies considerably from that in the Black Hills. Eastern South Dakota ski areas tend to rolling, wooded hills and valleys, and frequently incorporate lakeshore and riverbank country.

There are 19 state parks and recreation areas east of the Missouri open to

Necessity forces a look at government's role

RESIDENT REAGAN is right about one thing: Too much government does no one any good. That's a tough thing to say in a town that's as Democratic as Westland.

Somewhere along the way, however, we've lost sight of the true function of government. Former Mayor Thomas Taylor had a good definition for it: The obligation of government is to do those things that citizens cannot do for themselves.

Those services used to include only such things as fire and police protection, library service and road maintenance. Not any more.

Several generations by now have been exposed to media dreams published by the likes of Better Homes & Gardens and House Beautiful and to television shows idolizing the Good Life. That's what

Indeed, we parents are part of the problem. In our efforts to give our children a life that's "better than we had it," we've significantly raised our standards of living. But we've also raised generations who expect instant gratification of their wishes and who expect to reap rewards without having to work for them.

WHETHER THEY appreciate what they have is

We can no longer afford services that we've grown to accept as commonplace, which may include mail service, garbage collection and recre-

Westland residents will have to decide how much government they want. That likely will equate to how much they're willing to pay. Perhaps it is time to re-evaluate the work ethic.

Westland's Democratic mayor insists he's not turning out to be a Republican, but let's look at some of the partnership ideas that now are taking hold in the city.

• Christmas tree lights — The city would have had a dark holiday had city unions and the mayor not worked out a matching agreement to fund the replacement of worn out lights.

● Operation Bread Basket — Similar to programs now under way with AAA and General Motors, Operation Bread Basket will match donations from local community groups with federal community development funds. The program will be administered by a part-time employee with the Jaycees and Goodfellows helping to screen applicants for help.

• Multi-purpose arena — Using funds from department of natural resources, Westland enclosed its outdoor ice arena years ago when hockey was at the height of its popularity. Because the city used general funds to subsidize arena costs, skating and hockey groups were able to rent the arena at reduced rates. That forced private rinks out of business, according to Pickering.

Faced with a deficit, the city can no longer afford to subsidize those costs. Instead of allowing the arena to close, private, non-profit groups may take over its operation.

WE'VE COME to depend on government for so many of our services that it may be difficult to change our expectations.

The cost of our bureaucracy, however, may force us to resume the self-reliance that was the cornerstone of our country.

That doesn't mean we ought to ignor4 the plight of the poor, the right to earn a decent wage or the need for some services. But if residents want to pay lower taxes or at least to hold the line, then they'll have to re-evaluate what they want from govern-

That may bring a Democratic city like Westland into agreement with a Republican principle.

Pitiful sight: lawmakers raising pay

BISMARCK ONCE claimed the public should not be too interested in watching either the making of sausage or legislation.

After watching the recent struggles of the Congress and the Wayne County Board of Commissioners in establishing their salaries. I am inclined to

The legislators squirmed, dodged and manuevered to avoid public scrutiny in approving pay raises for themselves.

The county commissioners authorized a $8,736 increase in base pay but the amount of the raise wasn't mentioned in public discussion. The U.S. House of Representatives avoided a roll call vote in approving a 15 percent increase, from $60,662 to

THE MICHIGAN Legislature each year has managed to improve its salary with almost no pub- lic discussion. We now have the highest paid legislators in the country at $31,000.

The process of giving themselves a raise seems to be discomforting and demeaning to the legislators and is no doubt unnerving to a public which is worried about unwise and unwarranted government spending and unwise and unworthy government officials.

For some time select congressman have been publicly pleading their case for more pay. Congressmen, they say, need more money to maintain two homes — one in costly Washington and one in their home state.

The U.S. Senate decided to do without a flat pay increase and voted instead to do away with the $20,000 outside-earnings-ceiling—The ceiling was imposed a few years ago in a burst of concern after

NOW A SENATOR can now earn an unlimited amount from such things as honoraria. An honorarium is a fat fee paid for a routine talk before a group of people who invariably have an interest in the senator's area of expertise. A senator on the banking committee, for example, can earn $50,000 a year giving 10 speeches (actually, the same speech 10 times) at $5,000 a crack to conventions of banking executives.

U.S. Representatives who argued for a pay raise said higher pay was necessary to prevent outside pressure and interest groups from having undue influence on them with honoraria. Perhaps senators feel they are stronger and can take fees for honoraria without feeling any obligatation to be kind to

Although the county commissioners avoided the limelight in approving their raise, the board did have some logic behind its action.

The commissioners have in the past enjoyed the same cost-of-living supplements (COLA) that are paid to county employees. Last year the COLA amounted to $8,736. The new county charter prohibits COLA payments to commissioners. The commissioners, in effect, approved the same pay level as last year. This was a move recommended by the county compensation commission.

THERE IS also logic to decreasing the salary of a job which has traditionally been less than fulltime. With a new county executive in charge of administrating the budget, the part-time commissioners will be even more part-time. Some experts say the board may meet only twice a week. Hardly worth $26,000 a year.

By allowing legislators to set their own salaries, we have set up an endless cycle which is acted out, not deliberately and consciously, but by rote.

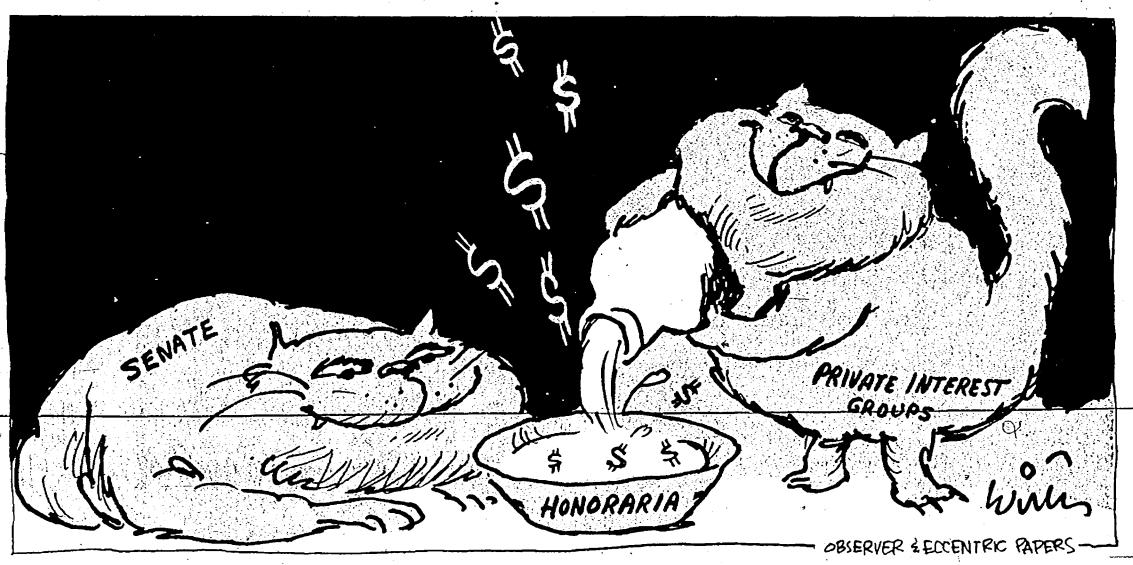

The idea of public service has almost been forgotten. The legislators feel the need to maintain a certain level of power, prestige and salary. To justify higher pay, they tend to to extend their duties and sense of importance. They initiate more, oversee more and make government more complex. They then have to be paid more because they are managing more money and a bigger mess.

We should find a way to relieve legislators of struggling with a task which embarrases them and the subject of another column, but what's important now is the effect this has had on our government

The city's budget deficit, estimated at $455,000, is forcing Mayor Charles Pickering to follow Reagan's call for a "partnership" between private enterprise and government agencies.

After panic, Reye's syndrome subsides

REMEMBER REYE'S syndrome?

Almost three years ago, the mysterious illness caused a panic among suburban parents. The disease was responsible for the deaths of 17 Michigan children in 1979. Children from several local communities including Troy, Bloomfield Hills, Bloomfield Township and Westland died of the disease.

For some undetermined reason, it most often struck white suburban children. Reve's starts with a normal child's viral illness like chicken pox or the flu, then violent vomiting begins, then sometimes a coma followed by death.

Reye's syndrome was first described by Dr. R.D. Reye and two colleagues in 1963 as a noncommunicable disease which attacks generally healthy children under 19 years of age.,

Although it is easy to detect the symptoms and it can be treated if discovered early enough, the medical profession has never really learned the causes.

SO WHAT IS NEW with Reve's syndrome? The panic has subsided as fewer cases of Reye's are reported each year. Since Oct. 1, 1982, only four cases have been reported in Michigan — none fatal.

Dr. John Romanik of the pediatrics unit at Providence Hospital says medical experts don't really know much more about Reye's today than they did three years ago.

"The same strain of virus that causes chicken pox is linked to Reye's," he said. "Since so many virus strains can cause flu, it's more difficult to find the connection with flu."

Dr. Romanik said a flu epidemic is now going on in this area. "It's a new strain that's been around for about six weeks. Since we have had no Reye's cases recently, we are sure it is not connected with Reye's.

Dr. Stella Evangelista of St. Mary Hospital in Livonia said many persons in Wayne County are now suffering from Type A flu. "Reye's was associated with Type B flu, so there's no reason to be concerned now," she said.

She said that since the serious outbreak of Reye's in 1979-80, other members of the same family have had the disease.

"This leads us to believe that Reye's may be caused by hereditary or environmental factors," she said. "Except for that, we really haven't learned much about Reve's.'

The link of Reye's to suburban children has puzzled Dr. Romanik.

DOCTORS MAY know little about the cause of Reye's syndrome, but they do know about the symptoms and stages of the disease. They suggest that parents contact their doctor if they notice the symptons.

"We (doctors) could only figure that children who were most often seen by doctors for some reason got the disease," he said, "We looked at the medicine we normally prescribe for the flu to see if that could actually be the cause of Reye's. Unfortunate-

When schools didn't pay for sports

WHILE WAITING his turn in the barber shop the other day, a customer tossed aside the morning paper in disgust and was heard to say, "Well, there goes the sports program — and I wonder what the kids will do now.'

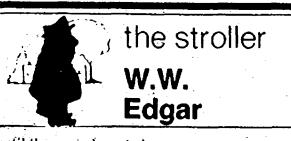

He had just read the headlines which told Michiganians that Gov. James Blanchard had ordered a delay in the payment of school ald, adding the hint that the "delay" may be permanent.

It was his first bold step to reduce the state's impending huge deficit, and the fact that he hinted of the permanancy of his order is sure to cause some dire feelings among the school people.

But as The Stroller sat there listening, he couldn't help recalling that when he was a youth, the schools didn't have such a thing as a sports program. But we played baseball, we had a football team, and the high school had a basketball court. And all this was at no cost to the schools.

And if the sports progrm is cut from the schools now, there will be no need to worry. The young people will be playing baseball, football, soccer and basketball just the same.

IN OUR LITTLE town, we had a pasture at the borderline with the farmland. It was there we laid out a baseball diamond and played there almost every day, even though we had to wait sometimes until the cows departed.

It was there, too, that we lined out a football field. Through the good graces of the town lumber yard, we received wood for the goal posts.

True, we didn't play under the school colors and didn't carry the high-school name. But we had a team and played a full schedule with like teams from other communities. We played under the name of the Boy Scouts, and the rivalries were just as keen as though we represented our school.

It was the same with football. We enlisted all those who would have reported for a high-school squad, Taking the name of the Majestics, we also worked out a schedule with neighboring towns and enjoyed the game as much as though he had highschool backing.

THE LONE difference was that many of us had to leave school and go to work. So we reported for the team, though we couldn't practice in the after-

That didn't stop us. We practiced under the lights at the street intersection. And it was a gravel intersection at that.

That mattered little. It was the game we were interested in, and nothing liké a bit of gravel would stop us.

Then came the basketball season, and the question arose, "Where can we play?" The schools came into the situation - in a queer way, by today's standards. We were told we could have half the basement of the new school if we furnished it ourselves.

WE ORGANIZED teams of solicitors and obtained enough lumber to build a wall about four feet high around the playing area. It was the same with wire netting. The good merchants in the town came through with that, and before we knew it, we had a basketball court. 1

There was one drawback: We didn't have bleachers and could accommodate only about 100 spectators. But we had a basketball program.

So even if Gov. Blanchard makes the state aid cuts permanent, don't worry. The boys and girls will be playing their favorite sports.

And they won't need the lighted fields we have

Housing market ends hibernation

After a three-year hibernation, the market for existing houses is being awakened by lower mortgage interest:

The Western Wayne Oakland Board ' of Realtors (WWOCBR) reported 564 sales by members in December - a 42.4 percent gain over the 396 reported. percent. in December 1981.

Sales for the August-December period were 3,681 compared to 3,157 in the same period of 1981.

That 16.5-percent gain helped counter the 24.3 percent market loss recorded in the first seven months, said WWOCBR. The year-end total was 8.468 houses, 10.7 percent below the 9,487 sales posted in 1981.

"THERE IS NO doubt that the reduction in interest rates is the factor bringing buyers back into the market, said Thomas Doke Jr., president of the real estate board.

"In December, conventional, FHA and VA financing was used in 42.2 percent of sales compared to only 14.4 percent in 1981

"The use of assumed mortgages and land contracts, which aided 18 percent of sales by our members a year ago, has slipped to 53.4 percent and seemed destined to drop still farther."

Renewed activity also appears ready to reverse a downward trend in average selling prices. The average price for a house reported by WWOCBR in December was $58,156, a drop of 1.2 percent from December of 1981.

The average price in '82 was down By Mary Kiemlc 3.65 percent from '81.1

And, unlike a lot of other places, we don't bring in so-called specials. At Workbench we just go through the store with our red pencil and slash prices. Which means that right now you'll find 10% to 40% off on butcher block tables, upholstery, storage systems, bookcases, carts, music benches, desks and chair after chair after chair. Even the already reduced "Foreign Policy" prices on most of our imports have been further price cut for this sale.

Of course, there are a few things currently oversold that we can't put on sale. Is there a catch? Only time. Because our storewide sale lasts only until January 31. So hurry.

In search of truth

Adoptee champions the right to know

By Marie McGee editor

Barbara Hall has a favorite saying: "The truth will set you free.'

The Livonia resident came across the slogan three years ago in seeking help from the Adoption Lifeline of Altoona, Pa., a group dedicated to helping adoptive children establish their identity.

It has also prompted her to speak up about a negative image she feels has been created by a recent Detroit television news special involving the rights of adoptive chil-

Aired as a channel 4 "I-Team" investigative report, the story involved a young man who had been given out for adoption at birth but who locates his birth mother, only to be rejected by her, and the mother's claim that her right to privacy had been violated. The invasion of the mother's right to privacy was blamed on a clerical error on the part of an unidentified state employe.

The result, the story showed, was a family torn apart "because someone made a mistake and typed her name on the birth certificate."

Background of the case is this: the Flint woman had the child as the result of a rape. She gave up the child for adoption at the time of birth and believed that she was protected by the adoption laws from further identity. She subsequently-married, but never revealed to her husband the fact that she had the baby.

AFTER reaching adulthood, the son suddenly, contacted the mother after learning her identity and her life has been in turmoil ever since, the television news story said.

The segment showed the tearful and distraught mother and her equally upset husband. It also showed pictures of the son and gave details of his past, including the fact that he was a convicted felon who was wanted in California on a fugitive warrant.

By chance, Barbara Hall saw the story and several things about it bothered her - especially since she was trying to locate her birth mother and seek a reunion.

'My first impression was that the story was very negative," said Hall."I began to worry about the impression it left, particularly from the point of view of the total rejec-

One of Hall's main concerns was that the episode would have a discouraging effect on other adoptees who might be considering looking for their families.

"I was afraid someone watching it would be afraid to try and find out about their identity. The show made you feel like adoptive children have no right to find out about themselves or their birth parents," she said.

HALL, HERSELF, was a child of rape, given up for adoption when she was 6 months old in Pittsburg, Pa. At the age of 21, she began to search for her birth mother and any facts about her identity that she could uncover. She did so with the full encouragement of her adopted parents, who had told her at an early age of the adoption.

"Most adoptive children have a certain amount of curiosity. They want to know the truth. I wanted to know about my mother and anything she could tell me especially about my birth father," Hall said. "It's important to our lives."

She said the television news report was so disturbing that she contacted the reporter and asked him to present "the other of the side of the story" and show a reunion with less trauma and conflict. Not all adoptees are an embarrassment to their families like the one in that story," she said.

He refused, she said, but that didn't stop her from speaking out.

"Not all reunions end up as horrendous as that story made them out to be," she said.

"That was not your typical case," continued Hall, the mother of two who has a degree in psychology. She said she told the TV reporter "if that son had been white, shown up in a three-'My first impression was that the piece suit, driving a Porsche, you wouldn't even have a story. It was story because it aired someone's dirty linen."

Barbara Hail

SHE SAID THAT the TV story was misleading because persons watching the show could easily get the impression that adoptees legally are prohibited from finding out about their background or who their birth parents are.

"That's not the case at all," she pointed out. Most states have laws that allow adoptees, upon reaching the legal age, to file a request for certain identifying information. Then, if enough information can be released, the adoptee can proceed on his or her own in trying to locate members of his family. In Michigan, the process is complicated and usually only general information is released by the various agencies involved in the individual's case. Name of the birth mother or father is never released unless a letter of consent is on file in Lansing stating that the name can be Hall learned many of these facts on adoptees' rights in trying to locate her own mother, she said. Pennsylvania law permits adoptees at age 21 to receive a copy of the original birth certificate, showing the birth mother's the TV news special and was concerned that other adoptees would get discouraged and give up trying to find out about themselves and their families. An adoptee herself, she said "We only want to know the truth.

Barbara Hall watched name, age and place of birth. It made made her job of trying to locate her mother a whole lot easier.

Her quest, for the truth, so far, has not turned out as happily as Hall originally envisioned.

AFTER SEVERAL years and a lot-of-letter writing she finally learned that her mother lives in Battle Creek, but refuses to see her.

"I've talked to her on the phone, but she won't allow me to come and visit her. She says I can write her letters. I've sent her pictures of my two children and she has told me about her family."

A 28-year-old half sister, for instance, lives in either Livonia or Redford, her mother told her.

She also learned from her mother that she wore a girdle during the whole pregnancy. "It's a wonder I wasn't born retarded," she said.

A disappointed Hall says she will not force herself on her mother "even though I know where she lives and I could easily go there and knock on her door."

Hall said she pleaded with her birth mother "to meet me just once. Then if she doesn't want to see me again, I promise never to bother her again."

Hall is particularly interested in learning about her birth father and "what kind of man he was."

All adoptees "just want information" to help them understand their own families and any health problems that could be related to heredity. Her own son, for instance, is gifted in math, but has a sight problem. Hall said she learned that her birth mother was also gifted in math, so she can make the connection. "But I wonder about his problems with sight. Doctors are always asking you if something ran in your family."

SHE FEELS FATE played a big hand in helping find her mother. After writing to various agencies and all the schools in the small town where her mother was born, one school administrator happened to mention her request to

McCain's collection is the cat's meow

By Sherry Kahan staff writer

Shirley McCain's mother must have read her the book "Millions of Cats" hundreds of times as she was growing up. What else could have been the catalyst that turned her into such an avid collector of the quiet creatures?

To date, McCain's Westland home has only hundreds of cats. But a tour of the place leaves the unmistakable impression that she is working on her first of the total rejection.'

"I don't tell Motley that I've got Garfield," said McCain with a grin. "He might be jealous."

Don't bother to stop in at the McCain residence if you just purchased the book, "101 Uses for a Dead Cat." That would be a catastrophe, unkind and definitely not funny to the family.

McCain noted: "If you love animals, dogs and cats, I say you're my friend."

IT IS IMPOSSIBLE for McCain, her husband, Fred, or her daughter Kimberly, 15, to take more than a step in their house without being confronted by McCain's 27-year passion. Walking down a few steps down to the kitchen,

Then comes an outstretched Garfield with the slogan, "Many people own cats and go on to lead normal lives." From a cup the same orange animal announces, "Bored, bored, bored."

Garfield also appears on a sugar bowl, creamer, toothpick holder, plant holder, mugs and a teapot. You can't miss the Kliban cat on potholders and Motley on a shopping bag. Above the kitchen sink are 25 cats, mostly china, in a variety of poses.

And this is only the first room. McCain brings forth her collection of Motley cartoons. She's kept them in scrapbooks and boxes since the cartoon started in March 1977. · "I love Larry Wright and his Motley," said the collector, who writes checks carrying a Kliban cat.

IN THE LIVING ROOM hangs a 41with the list headed by Garfield the they are greeted with a sign, "This by-51-inch painting of a huge white cat.

Her husband, who is enthusiastic about her hobby, bought it for her on Father's Day. His wife is still tickled about getting a Father's Day present.

The gift cat is not lonesome. On the . floor nearby is a rug bearing a picture of a cat. A standing china cat lingers close to the window. Keeping them company are a lamp, clock, and teapot bearing cat images. Like most rooms in the house, this one holds knickknack shelves crowded with cat collectibles acquired by the lady of the house.

Stuffed cloth cats dominate the bedroom where on a recent day there was also a surprise. A lump under the bedspread proved to be a yawning Ya Ya, a yellow cat taking a catnap. Other felines about the house are Snoopy, a Siamese; Chrissy, a blue cream Persian, and Tigger, a Maine coon cat.

WHAT CATAPULTED the Westland. resident into the world of whiskers, tails and padded paws?

"I've always loved cats," she explained. "I find cat knickknacks to be unique and different. I'd rather have a cat gift than anything else. Cats do cheer me up. The reason Garfield and Kliban are so popular is that they make people feel good. Garfield is always smiling. Motley makes my day."

Area gift shop owners also enjoy her hobby. McCain said that the employees at Westland's Coffee Beanery address her and her husband as Mr. and Mrs. Garfield.

"Mrs. Garfield" indicated that catty mugs, ashtrays, towels and statuary are very popular these days.

"Even with high prices, they're selling," she said. "They can't seem to keep cat stuff in the stores." She added that Garfield memorabilia are sold by 29 Japanese companies, six Canadian and 42 American. So happy is McCain with her hobby that she doesn't even resent the dusting of the hundreds of objects around her "I don't mind because I like looking at them and thinking of how many years I've had them," she purred. Does she have too many cats? Daughter Kimberly thinks so. But she and Fred disagree. "I still have shelf space out here," she said. "I'm waiting for Larry Wright to bring out Motley knickknacks."

Which cat is the real cat? Shirley McCain of Westland holds up Tigger, a Maine coon cat who is 15 years old. Providing a background for her collecting hobby is a cat pictured on a rug. Products of the growing feline industry surround her.

'I've always loved cats. I find cat knickknacks to be unique and different. I'd rather have a cat gift than anything else. Cats do cheer me up. The reason Garfield and Kliban are so popular is that they make people feel good. Garfield is always smiling. Motley makes my day.'

Dusting is a big problem for collectors like Shirley McCain, but she likes the chance to look over her selections once more.

A representative of the Rouge River Watershed Council thinks that changes in the Clean Water Act proposed by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency "could potentially harm the waters of the Rouge and Huron river water basins as well as the entire nation."

In a recent statement. Lee Fidge, executive director of the council which is in Livonia, claimed that a change in water standards suggested by the EPA would do "great damage to the provisions of the Clean Water Act in the guise of flexibility and practicality."

Fidge then urged those who object to relaxing Clean Water standards to communicate their views by mail to the EPA by Jan. 27.

Mail letters to David Sabock, EPA, Criteria Branch (WH-585), 401 M Street, SW, Washington, DC 20460.

Trustee of Plymouth Township, Fldge said that the EPA-proposed changes would allow states to grant variances to those organizations which discharge substances in the water supply and allow them a water quality based on economic hardship. This is defined as "likely substantial loss of productivity, jobs and/or financial stabili-

"There is currently no-such provision in the Clear Water Act," said Fidge. "Alarge company could probably employ the legal talent necessary to demonstrate need for such a variance, and thus be allowed to pollute the waters of the state as it desires."

She urged letter writers to tell the EPA that proposed revisions are in opposition to the goals and objectives of the Clean Water Act, which are "to restore and maintain the chemical, physical and biological integrity of the nation's waters."

She said that "relaxed restrictions on use degradation and allowance of variances for dischargers can only serve to reverse the progresss already made in cleaning Michigan 's lakes and

Make a big splash in Y classes

Registration is now open to men, women and children for the winter swimming term at the Northwest Branch YWCA, 25940 Grand River, Redford Township. Classes will begin the week of Jan. 24 and run for eight weeks in a variety of skill levels. Saturday classes for juniors begin Jan. 29. Parent-tot classes are available for 21/2- to 5year-olds on Thursday and Saturday mornings and Friday evenings. In these classes an adult accompanies the child into the pool. Classes for 4- and 5-year-olds who have taken Parent-Tot level enroll by themselves in classes on Monday, Thursday or Saturday afternoons and Wednesday evenings. Novice, beginners, advanced beginners and intermediate classes are held on various days of the week for both adults and juniors.

Specialized swim programs, such as aqua gym, aquarobics, stroke correction and adaptive aquatics will also be offered by the Y. Adaptive aquatics is a program for all ages who have physical or mental disabilities. It meets at 3 p.m. Saturdays.

Anyone interested in the program should call the Y and leave their name for a return consultation for this course.

Barbershop offered

Male and female groups singing barbershop music will be presented Feb. 4 and 5 at the auditorium of Clarenceville High School in a show called "Foto Follies" sponsored by the Farmington Hills Chapter of Sweet Adelines.

It will feature more than 100 women of the Eastpointe Chapter of Sweet Adelines. Directed by Linda Liddicoatt, this chorus was the champion of the 1982 competition in Region 2. Also performing will be members of the Farmington Hills chorus directed by Julene Fabrizio. It was the 1981 regional singing champion.

Another group on the program will be the champion male quartet, the Tri County Connection.

condition that can be fatal. The Food and Drug Administration reports that some studies show an association between children under the age of 16 taking aspirin for viral conditons, such as influenza and chicken pox, and their developing Reye's syndrome.

So if your children should come down with flu or chicken pox, don't give them into a coma and die. If these symptoms aspirin or aspirin containing products are present, take your child for immeunless you have first checked with your

To help parents kwow what Reye's (pronounced "rise") syndrome is, what the symptoms are, and what emergency treatment may be necessary, the FDA has a factsheet called "Reve Syndrome." For your free copy write to Consumer Information Center, Dept. 509L, Pueblo, Colo. 81009.

Reye's syndrome invovles swelling of the brain, liver malfunction, and include sudden vomiting, violent headaches, and unusual behavior in children who appear to be recovering from an often mild viral illness. The child may be sleepy and lethargic, but still responsive. Within half a day, the child can become disoriented, compative and delirious. If untreated, the child can go diate diagnosis.

ADMISSION TO A hospital is required so emergency care can be provided. In the hositpal the child can receive blood, and body fluids can be monitored and corrected; a respirator is available if breathing is failing, and if necessary surgery can be performed to relieve pressure on the brain.

In treating Reye's syndrome, the usual hospital stay is three to 10 days. The patient must be closely watched Reye's syndrome is a rare, acute blood chemistry disorders. Symptoms and will likely be in an intensive care unit. The patient is considered out of danger when blood chemistry, respiration, and other signs have been stable for 48 hours.

Because Reye's syndrome is connected with viral illnesses, parents should be most on guard during the flu season, October through March. For other childhood illnesses, your doctor is the best person to decide when medication is needed. If you have any other questions about Reye's syndrome, send for this free booklet and/or check with your child's doctor.

MSU-Extension offers gardening class

If you're an avid gardener or horticulturalist, and if you enjoy sharing your knowledge with other people, the master gardener program of Michigan State University Extension Service is the educational program you have been looking for.

Covering 10 weeks, the program is taught by MSU extension staff members who provide intensive training on a wide variety of horticultural subjects, including lawns, vegetables, houseplants, flowers, landscaping and fruit growing. Each training class is three hours in length.

Master gardener candidates agree to provide 20 hours of volunteer service in such activities as plant clinics, telephone hotlines and gardening talks. Over 600 people have joined the master gardener team in the past five years.

Cost of the program is $30 and enrollments are limited. Classes begin the first week of February. For application information, call 721-6550.

Friggly Cat: Round 2

The last big decision we had to make in retiring and moving south was what to do about Friggly Cat. It wasn't easy.

We had displayed firm resolve and purposeful action when it came to selling the house, dispersing the furnishings and making needed arrangements with our employers:

But we vacillated mightily when it came to deciding the future of the dark-gray-and-white, yellow-eyed, white-whiskered member of the fami-

FRIGGLY JOINED our household nearly three years ago when our youngest daughter brought home a charming half-grown kitten. She kept things lively for Sam Cat, her elderly and stately predecessor, and she endeared herself to the human members of the family with a number of cute tricks that included running sideways and sleeping vertically, head tucked under a person's chin.

Sam succumbed to old age last summer, so we had only one cat to consider as we looked toward living in a thirdfloor condominium located in the south.

Friggly was too lively for that, we thought. We'd have to give her up. We were prepared to do so right away when our home sold in a hurry, and we figured we'd spend six months in an apartment.

THEN CAME REPRIEVE in the form of a condominium available for short-term rental and an owner who said we could keep the cat. We moved in as a trio. Friggly adjusted well, seemed less interested in going outside but learned, when she did go out, to make her way around the row of housing units to get from the back door to the front door of our quarters. Maybe, we thought, she could go with us.

I mentioned our dilemma in a letter to a friend who has had cats all her life. By all means we should take her along, she wrote back. She added that one of her cats has moved successfully from a suburban home here to a New York apartment to a California hillside but had been pretty miserable during the cross-country trip.

She reinforced our maybe-keep-Friggly ideas.

BUT WE KNEW we were kidding ourselves. In serious thinking, we couldn't see taking a thick-furred northern cat, smart enough to know two homes, to third-floor confinement in a much warmer climate. It would be a travesty of cat spirit.

I called a family that had expressed a little interest during the summer. They came to meet our pet and liked what they saw.

And on my last day of employment I put Friggly in the care and made two stops. The first was at the office of a veterinarian friend for a nail-clipping, and the second was to leave the cat, complete with litter box, food and scratching wastebasket, at a new

Before I could complete minimal instructions, Friggly had explored every room of a not-small house.

I waited several days before calling Friggly's new family. She was doing must fine, I learned. With three children in the family, she was getting plenty of attention, and she seemed to

"And you know" her new owner said, "She gets on you and sleeps with her head tucked under your chin."

 MEMORIAL CHURCH OF CHRIST

W.E. McGilvrey will present an update on missions around the world at the morning service Sunday in Memorial Church of Christ, 35475 Five Mile. Livonia. It will be part of the 1983 Faith Promise Raily at the church, the theme of which is "Step Out on Faith." It will continue Jan. 26, 28 and 30.

At 6:30 p.m. Wednesday, Jan. 26, an international dinner will be held at the church. Daniel Johnsen will discuss the development of Great Lakes Christian Homes, a retirement facility planned in Lansing.

A group of 30 college students called Disciples, the primary recipient of Faith Promise funds, will perform the musical "Resurrection" by Brian Jeffery Leech at 7:30 p.m. Friday, Jan.28. They are from Great Lakes Christian College. Their program tells the musical story of the last day on earth of the Apostle Peter.

Robert Girdwood will bring the rally to a climax during morning services Jan. 30.

• ST. MATTHEW UNITED METHODIST

A fund-raising spaghetti dinner will be held 5-7 p.m. Friday, Jan. 21 at St. Matthew United Methodist Church, 30900 Six Mile, Livonia. Proceeds will help sponsor a mission-work team in Haiti. Ticket are $3.50 for adults, and $2.50 for those 12 years old and younger.

SOUTH REDFORD CHURCH OF CHRIST

The next rally of Detroit Area Youth will be held at 7:30 p.m. Saturday, Jan. 22 in South Redford Church of Christ, 26505 W: Chicago, Redford Township.

• RIVERSIDE PARK CHURCH

A Red Cross blood drive will be held from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, Jan. 22 in Riverside Park Church of God, 11771 Newburgh, Livonia. Sponsoring the event are the Livonia Jaycettes. In charge is Lynn Berger.

• PLYMOUTH FIRST BAPTIST A father and son banquet will take place at 6:30 p.m. Thursday, Jan 27 in First Baptist Church, 45000 N. Territorial, Plymouth.

• WARD PRESBYTERIAN

A training class for the Telephone Listening Center, western Wayne County's church-supported helpline, will begin at 7 p.m. Wednesday, Feb. 2, in Room A-16 of Ward Presbyterian Church, Six Mile and Farmington, Livonia. A second class will run at 9:30 a.m. Thursdays.

Each session will be two hours long, and the classes will continue for 15 weeks. Volunteers will be expected to work two four-hour shifts a month after completion of the course. Especially needed are persons able to work overnight once a month.

For more information, call the center at 422-4TLC.

Woodburn new Ward assistant

Dr. Robert O. Woodburn has accepted a call to serve as executive minister of the Ward Presbyterian Church in Livonia. He began his duties Jan. 15.

Dr. Robert O. Woodburn new exec assistant

Woodburn has served as the vicepresident for academic affairs at Willian Tyndale College in Farmington Hills since 1979. Prior to coming to Michigan, he served as academic dean of the Washington Bible College, Washington D.C., for eight years. Woodburn also has been a lecturer and adjunct professor for the American University, Washington, D.C.

A graduate of Dallas Theological Seminary, Woodburn holds a Ph.D. in history/philosophy from the American University. His undergraduate work was completed at Dickinson College, Carlisle, Pa.

As executive minister Woodburn will provide oversight for Ward's ministries, working in close association with the senior pastor, Dr. Bartlett L. Hess. In addition, he will provide guidance and supervision for members of Ward's executive staff. Woodburn's responsibilities also will include teaching, preaching and counseling.

Woodburn, his wife, Barbara, and their two children live in Livonia.

He also served on the summer service task force and extended experience education unit of the Presbytery and also spent summers working as director of Camp Sarah Grindley in the Ann Arbor area.

In his new position, he will be working with adult education and expects to offer a series of classes once he is settled in the new job. While helping with music won't be a formal responsibility, Good said he will help music director Shirley Hardin whenever she sounds the call.

HE ALSO EXPECTS to be working closely with the church deacons in perhaps realigning the church's food service program because of the increasing number of calls for help that have been received from the Livonia Office of Volunteer Energies (LOVE) and the FISH group.

Good replaces former associate pastor Carol Allen. The replacement is marked with a bit of a coincidence, he said. Allen left to join the faculty of McCormick Theological Seminary. That's where Good was until his gradu-

Numbers don't equate to human factors

Every January the congregation I serve as pastor, has its annual meeting. I write a summary report of the activities, responsibilities and opportunities assigned to my care. The operational committees of the parish write summary reports of their works. And an accounting is made of funds received and funds expended. It is a process that is repeated many, many times over across the ecclesiastical landscape this month, as well as in countless other organizations.

In many ways these reports are statistical reports of programs and services carried to and by men, women and children. Behind the numbers of acts completed are individuals with feelings and gifts and experiences of

What we see more often than not is a number like the number married or divorced ... the number received into membership or moved away . . .the number who have died. I wish it were different.

Last week it was announced that unemployment in Michigan had increased to 17.6 percent of the population. I know that 17.6 percent unemployment means that for every hundred people desiring employment, only 82.4 are actually employed. But beyond that its 4 difficult for me to conceptualize just into men and women and children with Steelers $175,000 for the release of dreams and hopes for the experience of fulfillment and purpose, I see little difference between 17.6 percent and 17.2

When the newspapers reported that Defense Secretary Casper Weinberger had bowed to White House and Congressional pressure and agreed to slow military spending by about $8 billion in 1984, it also reported that he had hoped to hold the cuts to less than $4 billion.

Now $4 billion compared to $8 billion In the light of a defense budget of $247 billion doesn't seem that much. But that also means a difference between 400,000 families receiving a minimum of $10,000 in aid for one year and 800,000 receiving the same amount. But even trying to translate that into people with names and faces is difficult to impossible. My circle of acquaintances is far less than that.

Trying to conceptualize the human factor in the decision of Michigan State University to pay the Pittsburgh their recently acquired football coach is considerably easier.

That would total the amount needed to keep 171/2 families at the bare level of existence in Michigan for one year. I know 1714 families who could use that assistance this year. They have names and faces and hurts and needs and dashed hopes and fading dreams. Football is not one of their principal interests or concerns.

I've been told that facts are comprehended in their context. An unemployment rate of 17,6 percent is comprehended against an unemployment category of one to 100 percent. Four billion dollars or $8 billion is comprehended against a full budget of $247 billion. A figure of $175,000 is comprehended against a lawsuit seeking redress of $1 million. And these figures will be subject to audit for a final verification of accuracy. Statistical reports are "shorthand" reports of human accomplishments, human needs, human goals et al. We would not be ablt to summarize annual accomplishments and failures without them. I wish it were different.

Saxophone re-emerges on classical scene

By Hugh Gallagher staff writer

Thursday, January 20, 1983 O&E

The saxophone brings to mind a. smoky cabaret where jazz great John Coltrane made the instrument wail mournfully. Or it conjures up the im-Clarence Clemmons jumping across a stage in a white suit and blowing a rowdy rhythm and blues.

It doesn't suggest symphony halls, chamber ensembles or anything related to classical music. But the saxophone began as a classical instrument and may finally be emerging as a respected member of symphony, chamber and small ensembles.

Donald Sinta, a nationally recognized saxophone player and University of Michigan teacher, appeared as soloist with the Plymouth Symphony last November. The 1982 winner in the Oakway Symphony Society's annual young artist's contest was saxophonist Jamal Rossi, a former University of Michigan student. The first honorable mention in the Plymouth Symphony Society's recent young artist competition was saxophonist Reginald Borik, a student of Sinta at U-M.

The U-M music school has been a center for developing the use of the saxophone as a classical instrument. The members of the Detroit Saxophone Quartet are U-M graduates who studied under Larry Teal and Sinta. More young musicians are choosing to play the saxophone and winning musical contests that had usually been won by flutists, violinists or planists.

THE EMERGENCE of the saxophone as a "respectable" instrument hasn't been easy and prejudices against it are still strong.

"You can't think of the last time the age of Bruce Springsteen's sidekick. Detroit Symphony had a saxophone performance," Donald Sinta said. "Detroit, Boston, Cleveland. They make it difficult to get the saxophone played. They hire world-renowned flutists such as (Jean Pierre) Rampal or (James) Galway or violinists or pianists."

Serious saxophone players have joined forces to promote their music. A World Saxophone Congress holds a meeting every two years. The organization has thousands of members from throughout the world including the Soviet Union, said Sinta. A North American Saxophone Alliance has 5,000

The last World Saxophone meeting was in July in Nuremberg, West Ger-

"At meetings it is evident that the quality of playing is improving by quantum leaps. As an instrument played artistically and virtuoistically, it is stunning. There are great players around the world,"Sinta said.

Part of the problem has been a limited saxophone repertoire, according to Sinta. Young composers have recently been turning to the saxophone.

"You can literally hear 200 world premieres at one of these conferences," Sinta said. Sinta has introduced numerous pieces, including two Pulitizer Prize winners. He has also made recordings, including "The New Virtuo-

THE SAXOPHONE owes its existence to the urging of composers in another age. They encouraged the work of Belgian instrument maker Adolph Sax

"It was invented by Adolph Sax at the request of composers to fill the gap between woodwind and brass instruments," said Richard Saunders, assistant dean of fine arts and science at Schoolcraft College and a musician. "It was invented as a classical instrument, not a jazz instrument."

Saunders said jazz musicians liked the saxophone because it was an easy instrument to get a pure tone on and because the various sizes - soprano, alto, tenor and baritone - provided variety. The saxophone is a brass instrument with a woodwind reed mouthpiece. Saunders said the bleating sound usually associated with the saxophone is not inherent in the instrument but deliberately made by jazz and rhythm and blues musicians by altering the mouthpiece to create the sound. Though not as popular with composers as the violin and piano, a number of pieces have been composed for the saxophone as a solo and ensemble instrument.

"In all the repertoire, the French have used the saxophone and saxophone ensembles the most. It's a very popular classical instrument in France today," Saunders said.

Debussy, Saint-Saens and d'Indy are among the French composers who have written for the saxophone. Ravel's transcription of Mussorgsky's popular "Pictures at an Exhibition" includes a prominent saxophone part. Richard Strauss, Paul Hindemith and Villa-Lobos have also composed for the saxophone. But many famous composers overlooked the instrument.

"Brahms would have been marvelous to write for us, but he ignored us," sald Sinta.

AUDIENCE RESISTANCE to new or unusual music forces the major music organizations to stay with the tried and true, according to Sinta'.

the new, he wants to hear Beethoven's . 5th again," Sinta said.

Still, the saxophone wins new disciples every day. John Littlejohn of the the Detroit Saxophone Quartet said he and other ensemble members, Russell Mallare, Daryl Monfils and Jose Mallare, were turned on to the saxophone by U.M professor Larry Teal.

"He's an excellent saxophone player. He played with the Glen Gray Casa Loma Orchestra and Jimmy Dorsey. He played several instruments with the Detroit Symphony and had a strong classical background. He was a good teacher who inspired his students to pursue a classical career,"Littlejohn

Teal's flexibility is typical of saxophone players who want to keep busy in music. They learn to play many instruments and fill many roles. The quartet members teach music at various levels, perform in road shows and at rock, jazz and pop concerts and perform with the Detroit Symphony on occasion. They have also recorded on Mark Re-

Saunders said students at Schoolcraft often play several instruments to be flexible. He said a typical student might play flute, clarinet and saxophone.

"I was a professional musician before coming here,"Saunders said, "and I did ice shows, musicals and the rest.

The concertgoer is not interested in I'd bring a tenor and alto sax, a clarinet and other instruments. You need to be proficient in all woodwind instruments for jazz or classical music."

> SINTA SAID times are changing for classical sax players. He said that 20 years ago a player had few opportunities to play. Today, many saxophone players give solo concerts and perform with smaller orchestras. The saxophone player has to make adjustments and put up with frustrations, but the opportunities are improving. Sinta said. he was hooked on the instrument before he had a chance to think twice about pursuing his saxophone career.

"When you're 8 and your parents are asking you, you're not involved in the politics. I was asked to pick between the clarinet and the saxophone," Sinta said. "I thought the saxophone had a better sound. A love affair starts at 8. At 15, you're being stroked for it and by 20 you're hooked."

The instrument has been a strong lure for its devotees.

"The unique sound that the saxophone gives stimulates everyone in the group to continue and follow that music," Littlejohn said.

. Budding classical saxophone players may find the beginning price as hard to handle as the later frustrations. Saunders said a good new saxophone costs about $2,000.

Wine

by Richard Watson

In Michigan, there are nearly 20 businesses licensed as wine wholesalers. It is a very competitive business, and most of them continually contend for new product lines.

Because of this competition, consumers are the winners, as it means we have helped build here one of the best selections of imported and California wines in the United States. (Recently, for example, the Red Wagon in Rochester had more than 160 different California winery labels on the shelves.)

Here is a look at some of the newer

Most notable of the recent entries is Newton Vineyard, the beautiful western Napa property owned by Peter Newton and Ric Forman. The latter, of course, has long been esteemed as one of the finest of all California winemakers, and his association with Newton goes back to their days at Sterling Vineyards.

THEIR WINES WILL all be estatebottled once their plantings bear. For now they must use purchased grapes, but Forman is to be trusted for his -judgment in this. Very little of this initial release was made, and we are privileged-to-be-one of very few markets for it. Indeed, it is hard to find here (Red Wagon has it), and it is not cheap, but it is Ric Forman's wine and so worth trying.

There is a deep, rich, complex merlot, a fine sauvignon blanc and a chardonnay that almost balances out its fruit and oak. Given time, it will (but it will all be drunk by then, unfortunately). Waiting in the wings is a cabernet sauvignon, to be released within the

Another highly esteemed winery from Monterey County is Jekel Vineyards, makers of excellent pinot blancs, white rieslings and cabernet sauvignons. Priced somewhat less punishingly than the two labels above, these should find good outlet sources in Zinfandel lovers will welcome two new wineries from Gold Country, Stevenot Winery and Sierra Vista. Especially the first of these has developed a strong following. Both come in at very good value.

WE ARE now able to buy locally the products of some nine wineries from the Amador-El Dorado region. Two years ago only Montevina and Boeger were available. That should encourage the sauvignon blanc and big'zinfandel crowd.

From Mendocino two new tiny wineries have begun to send small amounts. Tough to locate (Village Corner in Ann Arbor had them first), they are worth finding. Dolan Vineyard makes chardonnay only, while Milano Winery excells in making big, beely

Two new Napa wineries are here as well. John Buehler offers massive zinfandels that to me do'not fulfill the promise of his earlier efforts with this grape. The only hint one has that the '80 zinfandel is nearly a port is to read the alcohol level of 14 percent. His cabernet sauvignon is a biggie, too.

Much more subtle and dignified are the Shafer Vineyards cabernet sauvignon and zinfandel releases. It also has a Curious because the storyline is farfetched, the character of the president (played by Fredric March) frightfully ill-conceived, and the character played by Ava Gardner nothing more than a screenwriter's afterthought; yet "Seven Days" is full of suspense right until its terribly anti-climactic ending. focus and structure detract from the solid acting in the play. There's no clear climax in the action, just a zigzag of emotional ups and downs leading nowhere in particular. The focus seems to shift at random with monologues from one character, then another. If the strength of a play depends on how well it succeeds in making the audience believe in and care about its characters, then "The Women Here Are No Different" only partially succeeds, and the problem is not in the acting. We learn enough about each woman's past but are left hungry for plot about what happens at the shelter. The plot, what there is of it, wobbles without clear direction and is too skimpy to satisfy.

TO THE PLAY'S credit, there's not a paper-dolly character in the bunch - no cardboard women. From Ruth, the frumpy farm wife played with stoic strength by Divina Cook, to Dorothy, the earthy black woman played superbly by Sakunah DeLaney, these women are strong even when they're most vulnerable. Whether they're prim, split-level matrons like Annette De-Petris' Theresa and Laurie Logan's Jeanette, or women from working class backgrounds like Clair and Laurie, played by Val McKinna and Beverly Hainault, they share more than being abused by men.

They share the turmoil of women caught in the cross fire of a society whose ideas about being female are changing. They share being trapped on a web of living and having to haul around the emotional baggage of their pasts as they try to fight their way to independence. They share a resilient strength. They're no different from other women.

Thank goodness the play is not a feminist diatribe. Although we never see any of the men who sent these women on the run, we sense that the men are as much victims of their own frustrations as they are violent

Bulldogs' comeback stopped

Plymouth Salem held off a late Livonia Bentley charge to gain a 58-49 Western Lakes Activities Association (WLAA) Lakes Division basketball win

Salem (7-2) led by as many as 17 points in the final quarter, but Bentley chipped away and cut the margin to three with 1:11 to go. But a goal-tending violation and a pair of turnovers ended the Bentley threat.

"It was maybe a moral victory for us because for the first time in awhile we played a decent ballgame," said Bentley coach Jim Komula, whose team fell to 4-5 overall. "The kids are showing me that's there is some improvement.

Rick Berberet, a 6-foot-6 junior, paced Salem with 18 points. Glenn Medalle and Dave Houle, who sparked a 20-12 third quarter Salem scoring surge, added 14 and 12, respectively.

Bentley's 6-8 junior center, Phil Graczyk, poured in 19 points and blocked four shots. Jim Thorderson, John Turner and John White added eight points each.

Both teams shot well from the free throw line. Bentley made 17 of 18 while Salem hit 10 of 12.

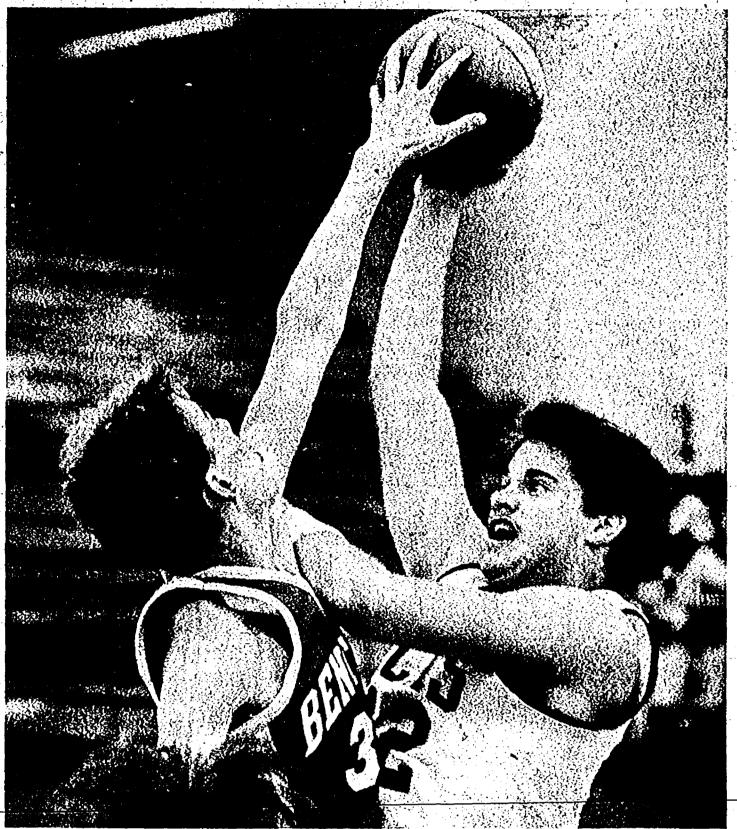

LIVONIA STEVENSON 70 WALLED LK. CENTRAL 59

The Spartans jumped out to a 20-6 first-quarter advantage and never looked back to post their ninth win in 10 starts Tuesday at home.

The Lakes Division (7-0) leaders got 21 points from 6-7 junior Tom Domako and 15 more from senior guard Pete Rose. Curt Ullstrom, making the start, added 10 points and senior point-guard Gary Mexicotte had five assists.

Dean Terpstra tallied 20 for Central. Jim Kreutzer and Clark Bock added 16 and 13, respectively.

Stevenson's JV squad remained unbeaten with a 65-30 victory.

Spectators brawl as Rice surprises Catholic Central

By C.J. Risak staff writer

Geez, this must have been for the state championship!

No? Well then, surely a league title must have been at stake.

Wrong again, quiz kid. It was just another Catholic League regular season basketball game.

Well, maybe not just another Catholic League game. It's never just a game when Detroit Catholic Central and Birmingham Brother Rice meet - it's a battle. This one wasn't decided until Ray Wheelock came off the bench to ignite Rice with eight fourth-quarter points, lifting the Warriors to a 59-54 triumph at CC Tuesday.

Fans of both schools were packed and stacked into the tiny CC gym, right up to the edge of the court. When a CC student made off with the Rice flag and started pounding it on the floor during a fourth-quarter timeout, the rowdiness spilled out of the stands and onto the court in a fist-throwing melee.

ORDER TO THE COURT was soon returned, but not to CC's game, which disintegrated after the third quarter. The Shamrocks were up a basket going into the final eight minutes, but then Wheelock, a 6-foot-4 junior forward, went to work.

Banished to the bench for the first three quarters, Wheelock quickly made his presence felt. He scored the tying basket with 6:03 to play. A Stan Heath (18 points for the game) free throw and a Mike Maleske (10 points) bucket put CC up by three before two straight Wheelock baskets put Rice ahead for Andy Kolp, who topped the Warriors ith 22 points, hit a jumper with 3:09 left to make it a three-point lead.

Heath narrowed it to one but Wheelock hit again on a short turnaround jumper and B.J. Armstrong, who finished with 14 points, canned a pair of free throws to ice it with 25 seconds remaining.

"THEY'RE MISTAKE," Rice coach Nick Conti told his players after the game, "was that they announced that CC was the home of the Catholic League football champions.

"They forgot one thing — who the Catholic League basketball champions

That, of course, is Rice, which won the title last season. CC was 8-0 coming into Tuesday's game to 5-4 for the Warriors, but now both teams are tied in the Central Division with a 4-1 mark.

"Our rebounding was very bad," a dejected CC coach Bernie Holowicki analyzed. "That's been our weak spot all year. The boards and our outside shooting was pathetic.

"We just didn't play aggressive enough. They took the game to us on Warrior miscues kept them behind most of the way. Rice turned the ball over six times in the second quarter as CC overcame a 21-17 first-quarter deficit to take a 38-34 halftime lead. Kevin Kral and Heath triggered the rally, Heath driving to the basket, then dishing off to Kral for an easy layup.

KRAL NOTCHED 12 points in the game, all in the first half, with eight coming in the second quarter. Rice stayed close thanks to the sharp outside shooting of Kolp, who bagged 16 points in the first half (12 in the first quarter).

The Shamrocks pulled out to a sixpoint lead in the third quarter, but that Meanwhile, Glenn's junior varsity team was nearly as successful, falling to Ann Arbor Pioneer in the championship of a tournament at Plymouth Canton, 15-4, 15-9. The Rockets earned a spot in the final with a 15-3, 15-3 triumph over Walled Lake Central.

LIVONIA STEVENSON remained unbeaten through five matches with a hard-fought 15-13, 15-8 victory Monday night over Lakes Division foe Plymouth Salem.

"Plymouth Salem is a good team," sald Stevenson coach Lee Cagle. "They kept the ball in play. There were a lot of long rallies."

Junior Tami Scurto showed the way for Stevenson.

"She just had an awesome night," Cagle said. "She had 11 unreturnable

Stevenson's JV squad also won, 15-8,

REDFORD UNION; behind the serving and setting of Julie Barden, downed Livonia Clarenceville Monday night at home in a best three-of-five match, 15-4, 15-4, 17-19, 15-8.

The win gives coach Jim Gibbons' RU team a 4-4 overall while Clarenceville fell to 3-1.

Barden served eight straight points to give RU a victory in the first game. She was also the team's most consistent setter.

Kathy Storvis served seven points in the second game and teammate Amy Livsey served eight to close out the

"Everybody played and it was a good chance to give the others some action," said Gibbons, who cleared his bench in the third game. "We played well, but we didn't attack as well as we should although Kellie Szabo had a good game

The Aggies made it six straight with a 15-10, 15-6 win Monday night over Detroit Immaculata.

Agatha controlled the match, but served poorly. Junior Sue DeBilsio, however, served out the final seven points to put the contest away.

Agatha meets Detroit Holy Redeemer today at home. The match begins at 5:30.

REDFORD THURSTON struggled Monday night to beat Plymouth Canton in an inter-sectional match, 15-6, 9-15,

The Eagles (4-1) had to go without No. 1 setter Cindy Isenegger, who injured an ankle.

"We didn't play very well," said Thurston coach Chris Wandyg. "We had to make some adjustments in our offense with Cindy out. We ran a 4-2 (alignment) instead of our usual 5-1."

Martha Adams came off the bench to spark Thurston. She served out the match with five straight points.

Area sports missing from airwaves

It was a cold and snowy night. Static crackled and whistled from the speaker of my Sony Litetime Digimatic clock radio.

Michigan's high school basketball tournament was raging full force on this particular Saturday last March. There were interesting regional finals being played all over the state.

Tuning carefully, I hoped to pick up a play-byplay broadcast of one of them, or at least gather in a few scores. But no such luck. Not with the Michigan teams, anyway.

What I heard instead was a stirring account of the Plymouth, Ind., High School team beating somebody in that state's tournament over WOWO. Ft. Wayne. And later a girls' state semifinal game involving Mercy and Marshall County, two Kentucky high schools, came booming in over WHAS, Louisville:

As a true sports junkie, I listened in and enjoyed every minute. But why, I wondered at the time, did I have to tune out of state to hear some high school basketball? Why were there no broadcasts of Michigan games on stations that could be received in the Detroit area?

It wasn't always thus. In the mid-1970s, two very hearable stations, WPON in Pontiac and WBRB (now WWHK) in Mt. Clemens, made local high school football and basketball a regular part of their Friday night programming.

I remember hearing Kurt Schneider, then WPON's sports director, call North Farmington's stunning upset of Birmingham Brother Rice in the 1978 Class A football semifinals. Rice beat Utica Henry Ford in a 1977 classic basketball regional aired on the old WBRB station.

And outstate, away from metropolitan Detroit's tar and cement and lots to do on Friday nights, local sports are all over the dial.

A colleague, remembering his college days at Central Michigan University in Mt. Pleasant, said of the local radio: "On Friday night, you'd jump in your car, and it seemed like you could pick up a high school game on just about any spot on the dial

SO WHAT HAPPENED to the Detroit-area

Well, very little English is spoken around WPON these days. The station has undergone a couple of recent "format" changes, switching from middleof-the-road to country music and finally to to its present ethnic programming under new ownership. A lot of foreign-language broadcasts are featured.

In its middle-of-the-road days, WPON broadcast some Oakland University basketball games as well as Pontiac-area high school games.

"We still do local sports in the sense that we report the scores and things like that," said David Lee Harper, WPON's news and sports director. "But we haven't done any play-by-play for about a year.

"We were negotiating to get OU basketball back on the air, but with the new owners and all, other things take priority, unfortunately." Over at WBRB - oops, make that WWHK - the sounds of the big bands are floating on the airwaves that once carried the exploits of high school teams. "There was a lot of cost involved what with the equipment, the travel and paying someone to broadcast the games," said office manager Debra Krystyniak, explaining the station's decision to drop local sports. "And advertising response just" wasn't that good." Any plans to revive school sports coverage? "To tell you the truth, I don't think so," Krystyniak said: "We're really going good with our music now, and 🗽 we want to emphasize that."

BUT THINGS are different up in Mt. Pleasant' where WCEN (almost certainly one of the stations) my colleague "touched" during his college days) is happy to broadcast football and basketball from two high schools and CMU,

"It's an important part of our programming," said WCEN news director James Hughes, "because" the local people are listening. . . their children are playing. We seem to have a big listenership for allthree schools."

Would Hughes care to venture an opinion about why it seems to work so well in Mt. Pleasant and not around Detroit?

"I don't know . . . unless it's just that the station. is willing to get involved in the first place," Hughes answered. "In Detroit you have the big leagues, sure, but you have lots of stations, too. They shouldn't ignore the locals. That's really their breadand butter."

Now, this report is not to be taken as a knock on those small FM stations owned by school districts and operated by students (Southfield's WSHJ and, Plymouth's WSDP come to mind) because some of them do a good job with local sports.

Krauss sparks GC; Thurston cagers roll

The eyes have it and Mike Krauss is glad he's back in Garden City basketball lineup.

The 6-foot senior, out of action for the past three weeks with an eye infection, came off the bench to score 19 points as the Cougars won a non-league game Tuesday at Taylor Center.

"I almost didn't play him because he had only one day of practice," said a happy GC coach, Bob Dropp. "The main thing about this game is that we had a chipped in with 11 for the winners. player come in and help us off the

The Eagles ran their season mark to 8:1 behind senior forward George Sibel's 28 points and 10 rebounds.

Thurston led 35-27 at intermission, but Annapolis cut the gap to six at the end of three quarters before Thurston could pull away.

Sibel got plenty of support from guard Steve Smith and junior center Dan Starinsky as each tallied 12 points. Jim Weiss, a 6-5 senior forward, chipped in with 11 points, 11 rebounds and six assists.

Forward Sean Berro paced Dearborn Heights (1-9) with 18 points.

The host Lancers (7-3) rallied in the . final quarter by hitting key free throws down the stetch.

Dave Grupenhoff netted 22 and John Fitzgerald added 21 for the winners. Gallagher made 23 of 27 free throws in handing Borgess its fifth loss of the

Westland Bowl houses new 700 club members

Modern equipment has changed the entire game of bowling.

There was a time when a bowler carrying an average of 200 was considered a real star. Today, more than 50 of the 80 bowlers in the men's All-Star league average better than 200 with the top man registering a 227 average.

These changes have been brought about, so the bowlers say, because of the advent of plastic pins in favor of the oldtime wooden maples. The bowlers insist that balls made of different materials suit different finishes now used on the lanes.

Another change was brought about by the insertion of stars on the lanes to guide the bowler in directing his or her ball. In the old days the bowlers, and each had a different style, counted the boards from the right.

But the new conditions have made a mockery of the old game. For example, in a recent All-Star match, a team which posted a 3,250 series lost all three games.

But the present game is popular. Just às baseball wanted the home runs, bowling now wants high scores — and is getting them. THE 700 CLUB inducted a host of new members during the week in the western suburbs.- A great change in the game was proven Jan. 10 when six 700 series were posted in one day at Westland

Three of those occurred in the Monday Morning men's league with Jim Jesson showing the way with a 731. He was followed by Ted Ratliff, 705, and Rick Russell, 701.

Two more were registered in the All-Star league

Glenn matmen stay perfect

Westland John Glenn's state-ranked day night. wrestling team continues to burn up the mats.

The Rockets, coached by Tom Buckalew, ran their season-dual record to 12-0 with four victories last week.

The latest win came against Saginaw, 48-15. Glenn captured 10 of 13 matches with Rick Gillies (98 pounds), Mike Rossi (119), Jeff Chicky (132), Tom Forchione (138) and Don Forchione (155) scoring pins.

Glenn also blanked Warren Cousino, taking five matches on walkovers and scoring seven pins. Rossi had the fastest pin, taking just 23 seconds to beat opponent Bruce Scarsella.

Glenn's 47-20 victory over Warren Lincoln was highlighted by Chicky's 23second pin of Eric Reemer.

Other Glenn winners included Tom Gibson (105), 'Dan Gibson (112), Rossi (119), Mike Proffitt (126), Robb Paciocco (145), Don Forchione (155), Bryan Dye (185) and Tom Aliosi (198).

The Rockets made it two straight in the Northwest Suburban League with a 47-19 triumph over North Farmington in a match closer than the final score indicates.

Scoring victories for Glenn were: Torn Gibson, a pin in 1:55 over Mike Zoretic; Dan Gibson, a 12-3 decision against Matt Gasser, Rossi, a pin in 3:56 against Todd Brown; Paciocco, a pin in 2:40 versus Dave Goldberg; Don Forchione, a pin in 1:23 over Mark Nernas: Vaughn Viar (167) decisioned Jeff Kirkendall, 4-2; Aliosi, a pin against Dan Eaton in 49 seconds; and heavyweight Kurt Potulski, who pinned Greg

At 98 pounds, Gillies and North's Terry Donovan battled to a 2-2 tie. And at 185, Dye and North's Brian Hood fought to a 3-3 deadlock.

Woodhaven battled to a 36-36 tie Tues-

Borgess is now 4-10-1 overall. Sophomore heavyweight John Ketchum ran his season record to 22-7 on the year with a pin in 1:23 against Mike Pashenee.

Other Borgess winners were: Mark Anderson (98), who pinned Darren Johnson in 4:29; Ken Freeman (105), who pinned John Mierz in 5:55; Joe Linck (112), a 4-0 decision against Todd Metzger, Brian Smeardon (145), a 8-6 decision over Pat Curry; Mike Graczyk (155), a pin in 4:02 versus Dan Wilson: John Ward (167), a pin in 3:58 against Bob Carroll.

Freshman Arnold Gonzales from Taylor Truman scored 39.0 on all around, another solid performance that satisified Woodruff.

"HE (GONZALES) was only one point away from our school record," he said. "We'll have three guys break the all-around mark before the season is over."

Livonia Franklin grad Joe DiDomenico, who came into the sport last fall as a novice, placed second on the team in vault with a score of 8.3.

Woodruff is also optimistic about Chris Headrick of Redford Union in the floor exercise, rings, vault and horizontal bars. Plym-Schoolcraft's captain, Bruce Schafer, a sophomor from Ionia, outh Salem's Scott Carlson will also help out on the bars routines and Dave Schmidt of Bishop Borgess is expected to provide depth on rings and floor exercise. Woodruff said the goal of the team is to reach the nationals March 18-19 in Farmingdale, N.Y.
