THE CITY Council will discuss tonight a proposed new three-year contract with Cable Management Associates, which provides public access cable-TV programming and community relations activities.

In a study session, councilmen will also discuss charges to Westland by the Canton Township library for use of the facility by Westland residents. The study session will start at 6:30 p.m. in the council's conference room in City Hall, 36601 Ford.

Other topics are a proposed car wash on the southeast corner of Joy and Newburgh and traffic control signs at several intersections. The CMA contract and library charges are scheduled to be discussed at about 7:30 p.m. and 8 p.m., respectively.

THE WAYNE-WESTLAND school board is scheduled to meet at 7 tonight in the Dyer Social Service Center, on Marquette between Wayne Road and Newburgh.

The board is expected to ratify a new three-year contract with the Wayne-Westland Education Association.

Agendas are available at the board office.

THE WAYNE-WESTLAND Family YMCA, 827 S. Wayne Road, will sponsor an open house from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 23.

There will be membership promotion, program information and resident camp details.

Y staffers from Camp Obiyesa and Camp Nissokone will show movies of their camps and award prizes.

THE SOUTHEAST Westland Homeowners' Association has elected William Raglin as president and elected officers for 1991.

Other officers are L. W. Stephens, vice president; Reasther Everett, secretary; Thelma Sadler, corresponding secretary; Velma Wilson, treasurer, and Arlandis Dobbins, representative captain.

Installation is scheduled for 7 p.m., Thursday, Feb. 28, at the Peoples Community Center, 4825 Dancy, Westland.

THIS WEEK is Hudson's Healthy Heart Week and the Heart Smart! program of the Henry Ford Heart and Vascular Institute will sponsor a free cooking demonstration in the Marketplace section of Hudson's at Westland Mall. Chef Mark Skamilela of Charley's Seafood Tavern will demonstrate.

THE WESTLAND D.A.R.E. (Drug Abuse Resistance Education) program and the Wayne-Westland school district are seeking sponsors for a benefit basketball game between the Detroit Lions football team and the Westland Police Department. The two need 15 sponsors at $150 each to fund the event, scheduled for 7:30 p.m., March 15, at John Glenn High School.

Names of sponsors will be printed on the back of jerseys worn by members of the police officer's team. Sponsors will also be listed in the event's souvenir program. Other advertisements are also available at $135 for a full page, $70 for a half-page and $40 for a quarter page. All proceeds from the event will be contributed to D.A.R.E. ## Tax backers to downplay raise issue

By Darrell Clem
staff writer

Wayne-Westland school millage supporters will try to downplay teacher pay raises as they seek voter approval of a tax increase in the special March 13 election.

Teachers today are expected to ratify a new contract giving them an 11.9 percent raise compounded over two years. The pact, which would cost the district an estimated $4 million, would be submitted for school board approval tonight.

In a meeting with teachers last week, Ken McGregor, a Michigan

Education Association political action consultant, warned that tax opponents will make an issue of teacher pay hikes in an attempt to defeat the proposed 7.75-mill increase.

But McGregor, called in to help the millage campaign, said supporters will draw attention to drastic program cuts and ignore such issues as teacher salary increases.

"We're going to talk about what this campaign is all about — kids and their education," he said.

At one point during last week's meeting at Wayne Memorial High School's Stockmeyer Auditorium, McGregor drew applause from teachers when he told them, "I don't think anybody has to apologize for their salaries, especially you folks."

The top salary for union members with a master's degree and at the top of the salary schedule would be $47,355 this year, under the proposed contract.

MILLAGE OPPONENTS indicated that teacher pay raises will "certainly" draw attention among tax-weary voters concerned about continuing low student achievement test scores.

"People are just getting turned off. What are they paying for?"

asked David Moranty, chairman of the Wayne-Westland Citizens for Education Committee.

Noting that state and city governments have become more money-conscious amid recessionary budget constraints, Moranty charged that "the school district thinks that money grows on trees."

If approved, the five-year, 7.75-mill increase is expected to generate an estimated $11.5 million each year in revenues. One mill represents $1 of $1,000 of state equalized valuation. For a person in a house valued at $60,000 and having a $30,000 SEV, the rate increase would mean an additional $232.50 a year in property taxes.

Voters resoundingly defeated two earlier tax-hike proposals last year.

The Wayne-Westland school board, in a 6-1 vote last month, decided to approve the latest millage request to help restore educational programs and services cut at the start of the school year last August.

The school board is expected tonight to outline additional budget reductions that would be made if the millage fails.

Mayor recommends salary freeze

By Darrell Clem
staff writer

Westland Mayor Robert Thomas, citing an economic downturn, has recommended a two-year salary freeze for himself and the seven Westland City Council members.

Thomas made his request Tuesday in a letter to the five-member Local Officers Compensation Commission, which plans to meet Wednesday to discuss the pay raises.

The mayor's salary would remain at $68,310 if the LOCC acts on his recommendation.

Salaries also would remain unchanged for the part-time positions currently held by council president

Thomas pointed out that a souring economy prompted state legislators to turn down pay raises. Local officials should follow suit, he said.

Thomas Brown ($11,051), president pro tem Kenneth Mehl ($10,551) and members Ben DeHart, Terri Reighard Johnson, Thomas Artley, Charles Pickering and Sandra Cicirelli ($10,051 each).

IN HIS letter to the LOCC, Thomas said a souring economy prompted elected state officials to turn down recent pay raises recommended by the State Officers Compensation Commission. Local officials should follow suit, he said.

"Of course, this is only my recommendation," Thomas wrote. "I realize that you are free to recommend anything you wish."

Thomas' recommendation was in keeping with his mayoral campaign pledge to freeze his salary while in office. He will not accept a raise, even if the LOCC approves one, he said Friday.

JACK SPITZA, LOCC chairman, indicated that Thomas' recommendation "stands a good chance" of being accepted because of concerns about a recession and the Persian Gulf war.

"I would have no problem with it," said Spitza, a local minister. "I was wondering if maybe this would be the year to hold it (the raises) any-

Eatery reverses stand, displays ribbons

By Leonard Poger
editor

There is a huge yellow ribbon tied around the Ryan's Steak House road sign on Warren Road east of Wayne Road. The marquee in front of the one-year-old restaurant also carries a message supporting American troops in the Persian Gulf.

But restaurant manager Tim Barrs said that the outward expressions of support for the troops in Operation Desert Storm were made by the chain's corporate office Saturday, Feb. 2, just two days before a Westland Observer story appeared describing a more neutral policy that banned employees from wearing the familiar yellow ribbons or bows.

After the initial story about the original "no ribbons" policy appeared, Barrs received numerous calls from people who objected, he said. Some callers were even threatening Barrs in a Friday interview.

Not only has the policy been reversed, he said, but the restaurant, one of 130 in the country, is distributing the bows, ribbons and badges that say "Operation Desert Storm — God Bless America," with an American flag in the middle.

He cited a short statement from the company's corporate office that simply said: "We support our troops in the Middle East and we support our president."

BARRS SAID the policy change came after the company consulted with Detroit and Dearborn police departments, which said there have been no problems with feared terrorism.

The original policy was meant only for the Westland restaurant, he said, because of its close proximity to Dearborn, which has a large Arab-

American population, many of whom have relatives in the Middle East.

That closeness to Dearborn "had us a little worried," the manager said, "and we were concerned about terrorists. The comments from law enforcement officials calmed us down."

HE WAS surprised by the public reaction after the Observer story in the Monday, Feb. 4, edition reporting the ban of yellow ribbons and bows worn by employees.

Woman, 4 kids escape blaze

By Darrell Clem
staff writer

A Westland woman and her four children escaped a blazing Norway neighborhood duplex early Thursday by climbing to safety from a second-story window of the smoke-engulfed residence.

Barbara Roose and her children, whose ages range from four months to about 10, were treated and released from Annapolis Hospital for smoke inhalation and minor injuries received during the fire that swept their duplex at 32252 Hillsdale shortly before 5 a.m. Thursday.

The mother remained in the upstairs level while her eldest son, Douglas, climbed through a window and onto a porch roof, Westland fire officials said. Roose then handed her three younger children — Melissa, Joseph and Tiffany — to the older son, who passed them one by one into the arms of others standing below, officials said.

Roose and her elder son then jumped to safety.

Two brothers of Roose who were in the first floor of the duplex also escaped from the building, fire marshal Robert Perry said in a prepared statement.

Request for arena repairs sparks criticism of mayor

By Darrell Clem
staff writer

Mayor Robert Thomas' administration came under fire from two city council last week for seeking a budget amendment for repairs to the Westland Sports Arena.

Criticism from council members Kenneth Mehl and Thomas Artley stalled a vote on amending the budget to provide money for ice-making equipment — a move that some city officials fear could force thousands of local hockey players and ice skaters to use an alternate arena for summer programs.

Though the council members didn't dispute the need for the repairs, they lashed out at the Thomas administration for asking for the budget amendment prior to seeking bids on the project.

"I think we're putting the cart before the horse again," Artley said, adding that he was "very disappointed with the administration" for not seeking at least three verbal bids before requesting a budget amendment.

Thomas indicated that the repairs are expected to cost about $40,000, based on conversations that arena manager Tammy McKinstry had with sports arena officials in other communities, such as Redford.

In a previous study session, council members had asked the administration to obtain cost estimates before placing the proposal on the council agenda, Thomas said, "and we did that."

But the plan was pulled from Monday's agenda, amid concerns raised by Artley and Mehl.

"TO WRITE a carte blanche check for $40,000, I can't do it," Artley said. "I guess I'm not going to operate that way anymore. That's what I'm saying."

Mehl asked for "true figures" on repairs to ice compressors before approving a budget amendment, though he stressed that he didn't want to thwart plans for summer programs at the sports arena.

"I'm not saying to hold anything up," Mehl said.

However, the mayor said the city cannot schedule the arena for summer use until the council commits to a budget amendment for the repairs.

The city council is expected to resume discussion on the matter in March, at which time bids are expected to be presented. McKinstry said the city probably would still have time to have the repairs done if the council approves a budget amendment in March.

The latest skirmish on the sports arena underscored concerns by some council members about city subsidies for the facility, operated by the quasi-governmental, non-profit Municipal Service Bureau. The arena is located on Wildwood, between Wayne and Venoy roads.

portation, sports at all levels and the marching band program. High school hours would be cut from six hours a day to five, and the elementary expressive arts program, already slashed, would be eliminated.

School officials also would trim 45 teaching positions, in addition to 68 teachers laid off last year, and make cuts in administrative and custodial staffs.

"The kids are being critically hurt in terms of programs," said school Superintendent Dennis O'Neill. "People in the community have to know what the drastic effects of a (millage) failure are going to be."

Moranty accused school officials of holding students hostage in the millage campaign.

"Everybody in the community feels this is downright blackmail," he said, "and they (school officials) are trying to blackmail with the one precious thing that parents have — and that's their children."

Moranty lashed out at school officials for their "arrogance" in proposing yet another millage, in the aftermath of the two failed proposals that tax critics believe should have sent a clear message.

"It appears that the administration must think that the public is a bunch of buffoons," Moranty said.

Meanwhile, school officials and the Wayne-Westland Education Association, which had been on opposite sides in recent contract talks, have joined forces in the millage campaign. They also are drawing support from the citizens group Save Our Schools (SOS).

CAMPAIGN HIGHLIGHTS include telephone efforts to reach 25,000 households, a door-to-door push by students and two informational district mailings between now and March 13.

carrier of the month

Westland

Eric Donahue has been named the Westland Observer's carrier of the month for February.

Eric, 12, is a sixth grader at Nankin Mills Elementary School where he maintains a B average.

The carrier, who began his Observer route in July 1989, is the son of John and Gerri Donahue.

His favorite topics are math and science while his hobbies are race cars and baseball card collections.

He has taken part in the Walk America benefit and was Michigan's top money-raiser in the annual "Kids Bowling for Kids" benefit. He has bowled at Woodland Lanes since the first grade.

Although his first goal after school is to play professional basketball, he plans to attend law school.

Skills he has developed with his Observer route are money management and dealing with people.

Eric recommends a paper route to help youngsters save and budget money and learn how to get along with people.

Q. Why are Jason and Jennifer "poor readers" and "slow learners" even though they seem to have average or above average intelligence?

A. Jason and Jennifer may be described as having a learning disability, dyslexia or attention deficit disorder. But what is the underlying reason causing them to lack the ability to learn or concentrate. One possible answer is the visual system.

Having "perfect" or "20/20" vision DOES NOT guarantee that your eyes work together. Nor does it guarantee that your visual perceptual system, which is how your brain responds to what your eyes see, is functioning properly. Some of the symptoms may be blurry vision especially later in the day, skipping or re-reading lines, reversals, headaches after school, tired eyes, poor concentration or attention span or even double vision.

Methods to correct these problems may include reading glasses, bifocals, eye muscle exercises, perceptual therapy or a combination of the above.

When children or even adults have reading problems, it is always wise to have a comprehensive eye exam to rule out eye or visual problems.

Lincoln Elementary students listen attentively as they are taught how to respond to child sexual abuse.

By Darrell Clem
staff writer

One in three girls, and one in five boys, will be sexually abused by the age of 18, according to national statistics.

Although those grim figures may prompt fears among youngsters, Lincoln Elementary School students in Westland learned last Monday that they can get help if they are sexually molested or threatened with abuse.

"You can't keep it a secret," Rosemary Spatafora, a child sexual abuse prevention specialist, told some 80 fifth- and sixth-graders attending a special program. "You have to tell someone about it, or it could happen again."

Spatafora teaches about child sexual abuse as part of the "Safety Bear Inc." program in schools in Wayne, Oakland and Genesee counties. She often wears a bear costume, but she left it behind while addressing the older elementary group last Monday.

Spatafora taught students how to resist the advances of molesters, saying, "The best thing you can do is square your shoulders back, look them in the eye and say 'no.'"

But she warned them that, if they cannot escape, they should not kick or hit the abuser, because "that person could get really violent."

"A LOT of times you can't stop it (sexual abuse)," Spatafora said. But that tells about the incident, Spatafora stressed that help is available from various sources, including teachers, police, principals and school counselors, among others.

Spatafora taught the students that molesters may try to lure them into sexual acts by giving them candy or toys. She had the students participate in role-playing situations to learn how to fend off such approaches.

Moreover, she stressed that children should not feel that they are to blame if they become victims. "When we teach about child sexual abuse, we teach that it is never, never, never the fault of the child."

THE SUBJECT of abuse came as no surprise to the Lincoln students — some of whom told Spatafora about friends who've been mistreated by parents. One boy confided that a good friend of his is regularly beaten by a father who uses coat hangers and belts. A girl told Spatafora that the stepmother she lives with sometimes hits her too hard with a paddle, and that her real mother had threatened to notify child abuse authorities.

Wayne County Children's Protective Services says that 299 referrals of child abuse and neglect in Westland were made to the department in 1990. Of those, 33 cases, or 11 percent, included allegations of sexual abuse, said program manager Keith Larson, though he didn't know how many of the cases were substantiated.

SPATAFORA SAID national statistics show that one in three girls, and one in five boys, will be abused by age 18. She said the problem has worsened in recent years.

Some Lincoln teachers said that a high percentage of their students come from violent families. That's why the teachers hired Spatafora to address the subject of abuse, particularly sexual abuse. The educators paid for the program by raffling off tickets for turkeys donated by Meijer's.

Fifth-grade teacher Dolores Zonca said the school doesn't have much money for such programs, and it has no parent-teacher association to raise funds.

"We just have to do what we can," she said.

Program teaching parents proper child care

By Janice Brunson
staff writer

At 16 months of age, he was only able to sit, useless legs splayed to the side.

His affliction? Poor parenting. He had lived his entire life in a playpen, covered by a sturdy piece of plywood.

Today, he is an active, happy 5-year-old, tended by parents who are learning how to properly care for a child.

"His parents actually did not know any better. They're learning," said Madeline Schroeder, director of the Westland YWCA's Child and Family Neighborhood Program.

"We teach parents how to parent so that children may reach their full potential. The only way to prevent child abuse is to support the parents," Schroeder said of the program, founded in 1978 and currently providing service for some 58 families and 73 children.

In 1988, the last year figures are available by community, 295 incidents of child abuse in Westland were reported to the Wayne County Department of Social Services. Over 60 percent were substantiated, according to department supervisor Ed Zellner, who works from a Westland office.

IN AN EFFORT to help end the cycle of abuse that so often carries from one generation in a family to the next, both Schroeder and Zellner volunteer with the Out Wayne County Council on Child Abuse.

The council, whose primary funding comes from the Children's Trust Fund for the Prevention of Child Abuse, provides education and training for parents and professionals involved in child abuse, according to council director Sandra Murphy.

The council is just one of many efforts supported by the trust fund, efforts aimed at families in which children are abused.

The fund also supports a program patterned after the Westland Neighborhood Program, launched three years ago in a neighboring community. Unfortunately, the newer program, as well as the county's Council on Child Abuse and a host of other programs, classes, support groups and facilities supported by the fund, are threatened.

The Michigan Children's Trust Fund is running out of money.

Michigan taxpayers support the fund entirely, contributing by marking state income tax forms that allow for the donation. Unfortunately, only 121,260, or 3 percent, of all Michigan residents marked forms in 1990. Murphy and others are hoping to up the figure to 15 percent in Wayne County this year.

DONATIONS COULD not serve a better cause, Murphy, Schroeder and Zellner agree, based on their common professional experiences.

The mother is young, a child herself. Still, she has two young sons she is raising alone. She read somewhere that toilet training ideally begins at 18 months.

By the time protective service workers intervene, one child has been lying in a urine-soaked bed for two days, spread-eagled and tied up, part of his toilet training. His older brother is discovered in a cupboard under the kitchen sink, where he has lived for most of his young life. The child suffers from muscular dystrophy and his mother, not knowing how to cope with the disability, kept him in the cupboard to prevent injury from falling.

The woman, Schroeder explained, had been raised in a foster home, mistreated and abused. She was unaware her behavior as a mother was inappropriate.

"I grew up in a foster home. I turned out OK," she told Schroeder.

Today, she attends parenting classes and the family is closely monitored by social workers, assuring two little boys a better opportunity for a healthier childhood.

For information on how to mark state income tax forms for youth fund donations, call Sandra Murphy, 561-4110.

Easing tensions Mayor, chamber dispute quieting

By Darrell Clem
staff writer

A dispute between Westland Mayor Robert Thomas' office and local business people over comments the mayor made about possible terrorist acts here appears to be subsiding.

"As far as we're concerned, it's a dead issue," said Dennis LeMaitre, a Westland Chamber of Commerce board member. "There was never intended to be a smoking gun or an accusing finger."

The controversy erupted last month after a letter was sent to some community members, warning them to become "extra vigilant" against possible terrorist acts stemming from the Persian Gulf war.

The letter, signed by the mayor, Police Chief Paul Scharr and Fire Chief Larry Lane, sparked concerns among business people who feared a commercial backlash. Chamber officials called a press conference in an attempt to alleviate concerns.

"Folks are portraying this like it's a feud, and it isn't," LeMaitre said Thursday. "The mayor made some statements that shouldn't have been made, and we had our press conference to set the record straight."

The Jan. 15 letter was hand-delivered by local police to schools, churches, theaters, shopping centers and other places where large numbers of people congregate.

"Those are places where, if something like this (terrorist acts) did happen, it could cause a lot of damage and death," Edward Gunther, the mayor's executive assistant, said.

Chamber officials said they began receiving telephone calls about the letter before they had even seen it.

"We had no idea what was going on," LeMaitre said.

THOUGH BOTH sides appeared intent on easing tensions last week, Gunther remained critical of the way the chamber responded to the letter.

"I think it's more politics than it is concern," he said. "They're playing politics with this entire thing."

Gunther disputed remarks that chamber president Bruce Priestly made in which the mayor came under fire for "singling out Westland as a possible place for acts of terrorism." Priestly also said chamber officials "do not believe the threat of terrorism is any greater in Westland than it is elsewhere."

In response, Gunther said last week that "we didn't single out Westland, and we didn't say the threat of terrorism is any greater in Westland."

Thomas has chosen not to address the issue any further, Gunther said. "He just doesn't care to discuss it anymore."

Gunther said he didn't know whether Thomas will consider a suggestion from the chamber that a liaison be appointed by the mayor to improve communications.

"Do they want us to clear everything through them before the mayor makes a decision?" he asked. "That's not going to happen."

THE MAYOR'S office last week hadn't yet received a formal request from the chamber concerning efforts to improve communications. But LeMaitre said the chamber's executive board was working on a letter to be sent to Thomas.

Chamber officials would welcome the mayor to send a representative to chamber meetings "or come himself," LeMaitre said. "Why have two separate groups of individuals trying to achieve the same goals?"

A meeting between the two sides had not been set last week, though chamber officials remained hopeful that tensions with Thomas could be smoothed.

"I have had real good working relations with the mayor," LeMaitre said. "I have no reason to want to damage that relationship."

Meanwhile, LeMaitre blamed the media, in part, for the controversy that mushroomed and drew national attention. He indicated that news organizations overplayed the story because of its Persian Gulf war angle.

Family sweetheart social set

A "family sweetheart social" will include a spaghetti dinner and a magician's performance Sunday afternoon.

All of the fun is part of the city of Westland's 25th anniversary ongoing celebration throughout the year.

The social, planned by co-chairs Sherron Schultz and Sandy Tye, will be 2-5 p.m. at the Westland Friendship Center, 1119 N. Newburgh, north of Marquette.

Tickets are $7.50 each with children under 5 admitted free, Schultz said. Tickets must be bought in advance.

The dinner will start at 2 p.m.

with magician Mike Thornton scheduled to perform at 3:30 p.m.

Schultz said that winners of a committee-sponsored essay contest will be recognized at the social.

THERE WILL be five first prize winners and 20 honorable mentions, making a total of 25 winners, reflecting the number of the city's anniversary, she said.

Theme of the essay contest, held among local fourth, fifth and sixth grade students, was "What I Love Most About Living in Westland."

The five top winners will each receive a $25 gift certificate to Children's Palace.

Master of ceremonies for the Sunday social will be Council President Thomas Brown, who was elected Westland's first mayor when the city incorporated in 1966.

Tickets may be obtained through the city clerk's office and city council office in city hall, 36601 Ford, Friendship Center, American Carpet at 8220 Merriman, Harlow Tire at 1849 N. Wayne Road, and the Cable TV/Community Relations Department, on Warren Road at Bison.

The anniversary committee has planned a public event for each month of this year to mark the city's 25th year of incorporation.

obituaries

GERALDINE L. BROWN

Services for Mrs. Brown, a Westland resident and a retired Livonia school district teacher, were held Jan. 29 from the Winkel Funeral Home in Olsego. Her son, the Rev. Dr. David Brown of San Mateo, Calif., officiated. Burial was in Mountain Home Cemetery.

Mrs. Brown, 74, died Jan. 26 in Novi.

Born June 2, 1916, in Kalamazoo, Mrs. Brown taught more than 25 years in the Livonia schools before retiring in 1978. She grew up in Kalamazoo, began her teaching career in Plainwell, Mich., and moved to Westland in 1964.

She was a member of Newburg United Methodist Church in Livonia and active in the American Association of University Women in Kalamazoo.

Mrs. Brown received her undergraduate degree from Western Michigan University and her master's degree from Eastern Michigan University.

Besides her son, survivors are husband, Maynard; daughter, Elizabeth Tinklenberg of Kalamazoo; seven grandchildren and one great-granddaughter.

Memorials may be donated to the Newburg United Methodist Church Sunshine Club.

Woman, 4 kids escape fire in duplex

Fire officials believe the fire started in the first-floor kitchen, though its cause remained under investigation Friday. The blaze caused extensive damage downstairs, while the second floor suffered mostly smoke damage, officials said.

SMOKE-BLACKENED pots and pans and other kitchen items were strewn across the front lawn of the duplex on Friday, and the front window had been boarded up. Rose's next-door neighbor, Donna Villegas, said the family was thought to be staying with Rose's father, though Villegas didn't know where the father lived.

"It was scary," Villegas said of the fire. "I heard glass breaking and I got up and looked out the window. At first I thought they were fighting. I didn't know at first that the place was on fire."

The Westland Fire Department received a 911 telephone call from a neighbor who reported the fire at 4:52 a.m. Thursday, fire officials said. Firefighters could see flames coming from the building when they arrived. Rose and her children had already escaped.

Firefighters from three fire stations responded to the blaze and then called in rescue personnel from a fourth station.

Emergency vehicles took Rose, her children and one of her brothers to Ann Arbor Hospital. None suffered serious injuries.

The identities of Rose's brothers were not immediately known.

Fire officials couldn't confirm where Rose was staying. They were waiting for her to call them in order to obtain more information about the fire.

Mayor urges salary freeze for officials

way, and the mayor's recommendation makes it easier.

"I think he (Thomas) is to be commended for making the suggestion.

Ribbons displayed

Many people read the first part of the story, Barrs said, and not the second, which described the company's concern to protect the safety of its employees and customers.

He quoted several employees as supporting the original ban, which they said reflected a concern for their own safety.

The public's reaction was based on a view that the ban on ribbons and bows was unpatriotic or unsupportive of U.S. troops in the Persian Gulf.

But Barrs insisted that the ban was meant only to maintain a neutral position and protect the safety of the Ryan's employees and customers.

Some of the workers are Arab-Americans.

Twice a week is better

It's not too often they ask you to hold the line, is it?"

THE FREEZE would stand in stark contrast to the last mayoral salary increase in 1987 that gave then-Mayor Charles Griffin a 25-percent raise the first year and a 7.6-percent increase the second.

Council members also received hefty increases that boosted their salaries by about 61 percent over two years — from $6,027 to $9,755.

Based on conversations he has had with other LOCC members, Spitz indicated the mayor's recommendation will win support.

Thomas' proposal also appears to be drawing support from council members.

"I WOULD venture to say that even if (the LOCC) recommends a raise, the council would turn it down," Mehl said.

The council seats of Artley, DeHart, Brown and Pickering are up for re-election this year, Mehl said.

However, Mehl questioned why the mayor has proposed 4-percent pay raises for his staff directors.

"I wonder why he didn't do that (recommended salary freezes) for his directors, too?" Mehl asked.

Thomas responded that his staff directors "deserve the salary increase," though not all of them will receive pay raises of 4 percent, he said.

"That will depend on my evaluation of them," he said.

CITY OF GARDEN CITY ORDINANCE NO. 2-91-001

AN ORDINANCE TO AMEND THE CODE OF THE CITY OF GARDEN CITY BY ADDING A NEW SECTION WHICH NEW SECTION SHALL BE DESIGNATED AS SECTION 35.08 OF CHAPTER 35 OF TITLE III OF SAID CODE.

THE CITY OF GARDEN CITY HEREBY ORDAINS That a new section, designated as Section 35.08, Chapter 35, Title III of the Code and entitled, PREVAILING WAGE AND FRINGE BENEFIT REQUIREMENTS FOR CERTAIN DEFINED CITY PROJECTS is hereby added to the City Code and to read as follows:

Section 35.08 PREVAILING WAGE AND FRINGE BENEFIT REQUIREMENTS FOR CERTAIN DEFINED CITY PROJECTS.

A. For the purpose of Section 35.08, the following words and phrases shall have the meanings ascribed to them as follows:

1. A "construction mechanic" shall mean a skilled or unskilled mechanic, laborer, worker, helper, assistant, or apprentice working on a City project, but shall not include executive, administrative, professional, office or custodial employees.
2. A "City Project" shall mean any new construction, alteration, repair, installation, painting, decorating, completing, demolition, conditioning, reconstruction, or improvement of public buildings, works or roads authorized by a contracting agent as defined herein and which costs or is estimated to cost in excess of Twenty Thousand ($20,000.00) Dollars.
3. A "Contracting Agent" means any officer, CITY COUNCIL, board or commission of the CITY OF GARDEN CITY, or any institution of the City supported in whole or in part by City funds, authorized to enter into a contract for a City Project or to perform a City Project by the direct employment of labor.

B. Every contract executed between a contracting agent and a successful bidder as Contractor, and entered into pursuant to advertisement and invitation to bid for that City Project which requires or involves the employment of Construction Mechanics, and which is financed in whole or in part by the City shall contain an express term that the rates of wages and fringe benefits to be paid to each class of mechanics by the bidder and all of his subcontractors shall be not less than the wage and fringe benefits rate prevailing in the City as established by the most recent survey of the Michigan Department of Labor for Prevailing Wage determination under Michigan Public Act 168 of 1963. (MCLA 408.551, et seq. MSA 17.256(1) et seq.)

C. A schedule of the prevailing wage and fringe benefits for all classes of construction mechanics called for in a contract shall be made a part of the specifications for the work to be performed and shall be printed in the bidding forms where work is to be done by contract.

D. Every contractor and subcontractor shall keep posted in a conspicuous place on the construction site a copy of all prevailing wage and fringe rates prescribed by the contract and shall keep accurate records showing the name and occupation of and actual wages and benefits paid to each construction mechanic employed by him in connection with said contract. This record shall be made available on demand for inspection by the contracting agent or city.

E. The contracting agent by written notice to the contractor and the sureties of the contractor known to the contracting agent shall terminate the contractor's right to proceed with that part of the contract, for which less than the prevailing rates of wages and fringe benefits have been paid or will be paid, and shall proceed to complete the contract by separate agreement with another contractor. The contracting agent shall withhold payment for work done until liabilities for unpaid wages and excess costs to the City of reletting the work have been met.

F. Any person, firm or corporation or combination thereof violating the provisions of this Act is guilty of a misdemeanor. In addition, any contractor found to be in violation of this act by any contracting agent shall be debarred for two years from bidding on any City project.

Except as herein modified, said Code of Ordinance shall remain in full force and effect.

This amendatory ordinance is declared to be effective upon publication as required by law.

Child care cuts shock providers

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

Plans to eliminate child care licensing have sent shock waves through area nurseries and day care centers, with operators stunned such a move was even being considered.

"I'm not saying a license is the only reason a center is good, but I can't understand why you wouldn't want to have licensing," said Carol Tresik, of Learning Tree Child Care Center, Livonia.

That would happen by March 16, however, as part of a 9.2 percent cut in the state's Social Services budget. As of that date, Michigan would be alone among the 50 states in eliminating licensing.

"This would be devastating," said Tresik, one of a number of center operators who recently discussed the issue with state Social Services Director Gerald Miller.

"I can't imagine any insurance company giving insurance to an unlicensed facility and without insurance you can't even operate."

While removal of licensing could increase the number of centers, area center operators say competition worries them far less than what they believe will be a decline in quality of child care.

"IT OPENS the door for any individual to hang out a shingle," said Geri Angel, district manager for Children's World Learning Centers, which operates child care facilities in Canton, Farmington Hills, Livonia, Redford and Southfield, among other communities.

Beyond that, Angel said, state regulators often provide helpful information to center operators.

"They're our first source," she said. "We'll call upon them, for their expertise."

"The bottom line is what's best for the children," said Sheila Niehaus, district manager for Kinder Care Learning Centers, which operates child care facilities in Farmington Hills, Westland, Plymouth Township and Canton, among other communities.

Though cuts appear driven by economics, not philosophy, some political conservatives have long questioned licensing. Some believe licenses tax business without protecting the consumer.

"Child care providers, however, say that's not the way it is in their businesses."

"Our inspector was very thorough," Tresik said. "We welcome the inspection."

"THIS IS an industry that wants to be licensed," said state Rep. Lyn Banks, R-Livonia. "These are people who'd even pay a fee to keep licensing going."

Banks, a member of the House Republican Task Force on Child Care, said she been working for years to increase the number of state regulators.

"In Ingham County right now, there's a six month wait to open a center just to get the regulator there," Banks said.

The GOP task force is meeting Feb. 19 to discuss the proposal as well as alternative changes in state regulations.

One plan, Banks said, would set up regional regulating bodies, though she noted that proposal hasn't received strong support from center operators.

Despite the fact that state regulators have received pink slips, Banks said she was optimistic licensing would continue.

Without it, she said, the state would stand to lose more than $20 million in federal money.

Beyond that, Banks quoted Gov. John Engler's campaign pledge to make education and children a top state priority.

"I know that in Gov. Engler's executive order, he held licensing and regulations harmless (from cuts) and he's holding education harmless," she said. "He cares about children and he's shown this."

'Chili dog open' beckons area golfers

Golfers are invited to sign up for the first Wayne County "chili dog open," with registration open until Friday.

The event is scheduled for 11 a.m. Saturday, Feb. 16, at Warren Valley Golf course. It includes nine holes of golf on the snow covered course, plus refreshments — including warm drinks and chili dogs. Spikes and carts aren't necessary. Golfers are allowed to use a maximum of four clubs. Free golf balls will be provided, though they will be replaced by tennis balls if the snow is too deep.

Fee is $15 per person. Fees can be paid in person at the course, 26116 W. Warren.

Lawmakers study auto injury catastrophic claims

By Tim Richard
Staff writer

In 1980 you hardly noticed the $3 item in your auto insurance bill.

By 1986 the item was $16 per vehicle.

Last year it cost $67, this year $101, and by 2000 state lawmakers fear it could soar to $350.

The drain on the Michigan Catastrophic Claims Association is getting a hard study by Sen. Doug Cruce, R-Troy, and his Commerce Committee. Under state law, insurers set up a non-profit group in Livonia to pay auto injury claims of more than $250,000, mostly for brain and spinal cord injuries.

"There's an ominous chance of unlimited benefits," MCCA head Edward M. Machowski told the panel last week.

COMMITTEE member Paul Wartner, R-Portage, asked, "In summary, we're out of control — right?" "I would say so," Machowski answered.

"MCCA distributes unlimited losses so no one insurer suffers a catastrophic loss. The cost is passed on to policyholders," Machowski explained. "The insurer bears the loss of the first $250,000, and MCCA bears the loss beyond that amount."

Michigan's no-fault insurance law requires insurers to pay benefits for "all reasonable charges incurred for reasonably necessary products, services and accommodations for an injured person's care, recovery or rehabilitation." There are no annual or lifetime limits.

Claims have escalated: $2 million in 1982, $9 million in '84, $24 million in '86, $55 million in '88, and about $100 million last year.

"MICHIGAN law is the most generous in the nation, MCCA said.

Cruce put it another way: "The state has imposed a cost on people who own autos that the state is not willing to bear. The state has shifted the burden to auto insurance carriers and imposed a higher level of care."

Machowski said insurers have no control over the costs, nor have they any incentive to challenge big claims. "The charges tend to be as heavy as the traffic will bear," he said.

Gregory Hayward, a State Farm actuary who works with MCCA, said early premiums were "grossly inadequate" because the rate-making committee had no experience from which to estimate future costs.

"Rising costs are not due to more claims but utilization of technology and rising costs," Hayward said.

CRUCE SAID there is no bill before the Legislature, but he indicated several directions in which lawmakers would look:

- Charge more for motorcycles. Cyclists pay 4 percent of total assessments but suffer 8.5 percent of the catastrophic injuries.

- Cap medical care charges.

- Limit coverage to (say) $1 million.

- Base premiums on the number of drivers rather than the number of vehicles. A person with three vehicles pays three times.

- Look at risk factors. Young drivers have a higher injury rate, and the elderly will live fewer years and receive fewer benefits.

- Consider geographic area, as is done with regular auto insurance.

Cruce, who gave up his Appropriations Committee seat for the Commerce chair, said his panel would continue its study at its 3 p.m. Tuesday meetings into March. Excused from the first session was Sen. William Faust, D-Westland, who was out of the state.

Seminar targets home security

Self-defense and home security are among the topics to be discussed at a Crime Prevention Seminar, Saturday, Feb. 23, at Madonna College, Livonia.

The program will be presented 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. in Kresge Hall for adults 17 and older. Police specialists will offer tips on detecting would-be attackers, con artists and other criminals.

Enrollment is limited. Fee is $25 for those pre-enrolled; $35 at the door. Groups are welcome.

Additional information is available by calling Jan Lewis of the college athletic department, 591-5163.

Madonna is at I-96 and Levan, Livonia.

Gibson seeks auction items

More than 400 items will be available at the third annual Gibson School for the Gifted auction Saturday, March 23, at the University of Michigan-Dearborn.

The independent, co-educational day school, based in Redford, seeks auction donors.

The school serves 120 students, age 4-13 from 27 communities in metro Detroit.

The auction helps keep student tuition down.

Anyone who wishes to contribute items to be auctioned is invited to call 537-8688.

Political reform focuses on PACs, big bucks

By Tim Richard
Staff writer

Big-money campaigns clearly are tainting politics and frustrating voters, said a panel of Republican legislators in Oakland County.

"PACs (political action committees) have too big a role. Money has too big a role. You have to force the campaign to be run in the streets," said Terry Sever, a Farmington Hills resident who sought the Republican nomination for state senator in 1990.

"Special interests dominate the process," said Karen Holcomb-Merrill of Common Cause of Michigan, citing how legislators collect money at the same time policy decisions are being made in Lansing.

BUT THE TASK force chair, Rep.

Frank Fitzgerald, R-Grand Ledge, warned that fixing the system wasn't as simple as putting spending limits into state law because of the "rule of unintended consequences." If PAC spending is limited, Fitzgerald said, PAC leaders will get around the law by collecting "individual" donations or running "third-party" campaigns on behalf of a favored candidate.

Joining Fitzgerald in the Friday hearing in the Farmington Hills library were: Reps. Jan Dolan of Farmington Hills, Barbara Dobb of West Bloomfield, William Bryant of Grosse Pointe and minority leader Paul Hillegonds of Holland.

The task force is a device minority Republicans use to influence the agenda that later will be set in Democratic-run House committees.

HERE ARE some of the ideas that speakers on the task force urged:

- Joe Knollenberg, 18th Congressional District GOP chair: "I would like to see power restored to the political parties." PACs can't be eliminated, as President George Bush advocates. But PACs have the bad effect of reinforcing incumbents who get 95 percent of PAC money. Parties should have either high spending limits or none. County executive campaigns have no spending limits. People see that judicial races are being "bought" from family money or single sources. But I have no solution.

- Common Cause's Holcomb-Merrill: In 1978 PACs provided 40 percent of campaign money; in 1988, 70 percent. Prevent officeholders from "building up financial war chests" by requiring them to return or give to charity their unspent campaign funds. She advocated more fund disclosure, limiting the amount candidates can accept from PACs and public funding of campaigns.

- Dobb, a freshman lawmaker, was skeptical about the value of disclosing contributors. "In this area, there was a lot of media attention on expenditures. But the people who spent big amounts got elected," she said.

- Sever: Limit PAC spending to 30 percent of any campaign.

- Jean Fox, Farmington Hills councilmember and an active Republican: "Campaign expense reports need to be out before people go to the polls." Copies of candidates' spending and collecting reports should be filed in city and township halls as well as county seats and the state capital.

- Barbara Moorhouse, Bloomfield Hills, representing the state League of Women Voters: Limit size and type of contributions, provide public funding of campaigns, or allow reduced postage rates for candidates.

- Mary Avery, Farmington Hills: Require unspent campaign funds to be given to the state or charity.

- Isaac Sheppard, Clawson: Limit campaign spending to a percentage of an officeholder's salary. "Can you imagine a business surviving if they spent 600 percent of its revenue on advertising?"

- William Liba, Farmington political activist: "We should have public financing."

- Dick Poehlman, president of the Farmington Republican Club and vice president of the local chamber: "Legislating should be viewed as a public service, not as the best job in town." Maximum pay should be $50 a day. Pay should be based on 20 hours a week times 50 weeks at a rate of four times the minimum wage. Professionally run campaigns are "shallow but expensive media hype" and should be replaced by less costly candidates' speeches and interviews.

- Bob Heinrich, president of the Farmington Area Chamber of Commerce with experience in raising bank PAC funds: PACs should be prohibited from contributing to elections outside their area.

- Patrick Anderson, anti-tax economist with Alexander Hamilton Life Insurance Co.: School districts openly violate state law by using their funds to campaign for property tax increases, but no one enforces the law. The Farmington district newsletter advised people wanting to get involved in favor of its tax request to call the millage committee or the teachers union office.

Consumers campaign raises nearly $200,000 to aid needy

Consumer's Power officials announced the company's 1991 People-Care campaign has raised $197,584 for the Salvation Army to date.

The program raises money for Salvation Army public assistance programs aimed at helping elderly, low income and unemployed people.

The campaign continues this month. In it, Consumer's customers are asked to add a $5 contribution to their monthly bill. Contributions can also be made by writing a check to: The Salvation Army/People Care, c/o Consumers Power Co., 212 W. Michigan Ave., Jackson, Mich. 49201.

In addition to customer contributions, Consumers Power is making available $200,000 in bill credits to help needy area residents pay their energy bills.

Last year, the program raised a record $571,559 in contributions and bill credits. A Consumer's Power spokesman said it was likely this year's campaign would match or exceed that figure.

History teaches different lessons about war

SORRY, BOSS, I know I promised not to write about the war, but what else is there?

Anyway, this isn't really about the war — not the one in the Persian Gulf, at least. It's about the war on the homefront, the one between the protesters and the activists.

It hasn't gotten too heated yet, and, frankly, I don't think it will. But it's there... ooh, boy, it's there... sometimes simmering beneath the surface, sometimes boiling over into heated arguments with emotions bared.

Just look (and listen) around the news room here. There are those who absolutely, positively oppose the war and will have nothing whatsoever to do with anything that might suggest, might even hint, that they are not adamantly against it.

Most of them, whether they'll admit it or not, are either baby boomers, politically correct thinkers or liberals in the 1960s sense of the word. They say things like "War never solved anything" and "The United States can't be the policeman of the world" and "No blood for oil."

They curse George Bush and chuckle darkly when they read reports of allies being killed by "friendly fire."

"I told you so," they seem to be saying. And amid the mutterings, the word "Vietnam" is heard — over and over.

THEN THERE are the activists — the ones who come up with banners to send to the sons and daughters of O&E employees who are stationed in the Persian Gulf.

They write messages on the banners — "Best wishes to America's All Stars," "Get in, get out, get home," "We're behind you all the way." Some of the more strident ones write things like "Nuke 'em and pave 'em." They fly the flag at home and wear flag pins on their lapels.

The protesters won't sign the banners and certainly won't fly or wear the flag. "We can't," they say.

"We're against this war."

Two camps. Two opposing camps. Two stridently different voices. Right here on the homefront. On the surface, they seem to have nothing in common.

Yet, curiously enough, each group, in chastising the other, falls back on the same rhetorical question: "Didn't they learn anything from history?"

Well, apparently if they did, they learned different lessons. Or maybe it depends on which history you're talking about.

The protesters always fall back on Vietnam and Korea for their examples. Perhaps those wars didn't solve anything. For the life of me, I can't figure out what they produced except for a lot of bodies on both sides.

But if you go back a bit further, say the activists, to World War II, the Civil War, the Revolutionary War, you come up with a different answer. The world isn't speaking German today, the United States is still the United States and we're an independent country, not a colony of Great Britain.

Some wars, they say, do solve some things. War may not be the best solution, but sometimes it's the only one.

AS FAR AS this war is concerned, the jury is still out. Maybe we shouldn't be there. Maybe we should. At this point, it really doesn't matter. We're there.

The protesters say we shouldn't be there and that's that. It's a cut and dried issue. They learned that from Vietnam. But the people who are making the banners and wearing flag pins in their lapels are not war hawks promoting imperialism or expansionism or any other kind of "ism."

Most of them aren't even supporting the war, they're supporting the American troops who are there fighting it, troops who would rather be just about any place else. And they learned that from Vietnam.

Maybe, when this business in the Persian Gulf is over, we will all learn something from it. I just hope we can agree on what it is.

Jack Gladden is a copy editor for Observer & Eccentric Newspapers. He lives in Canton Township.

New technology adds to adult illiteracy problem

Question: There seems to be a national concern about adult illiteracy and what impact this has on our nation's future. How bad is the situation and what does this mean to us in the future?

Answer: There has been some recent research on this topic that years ago was either not talked about or ignored. We all should be aware that in the '50s and '60s, non-readers could work on a production line, etc., and do well. Now that computer technology is taking over, it is a different ball game.

We do have a serious reading and literacy problem in our country much more than I realized, probably because I taught and was an administrator in moderate to affluent school districts.

To start with, 20 percent of the country is outright illiterate. They can't read a sentence. They are the ones who hold the menu in their hands but always ask the waiter or waitress what's good today, knowing they can't read the menu.

It has been found that 70 percent of our unemployed adults have very serious reading problems.

Fifty percent of American adults are unable to read a ninth grade level book with comprehension ac-

ording to some recent studies.

THE COST OF reading illiteracy to business and taxpayers is about $20 billion a year, such as errors made in misreading directions for assembly, etc.

Yet studies show that just 35-40 hours of reading tutoring will improve an adult reading score by at least one year. Yet this historically neglected and overlooked group often goes through life maintaining their silent illiteracy secret to avoid personal embarrassment.

And most damaging is that the children of illiterate parents are twice as likely than their peers to become functionally illiterate. A continuing cycle emerges! Even now it is estimated that approximately 15 million adults who today hold jobs are functionally illiterate.

Somewhere, we have had an enormous number of former high school students who "fell through the cracks" — either as drop-outs or as those we educators socially promoted because of their physical size: whether they could read or not.

YOU ASK, "What does this mean to the future?" First, because of the technological world we are entering, only 27 percent of newly created jobs can be filled by people with poor reading or writing skills.

And second, "futuristic thinkers" predict that only 15 percent of all jobs in 2010 will require a college education while 85 percent of future jobs will require very specific training — training experiences in which people must be able to read and write.

It is no wonder, that those who know insist that we must attack illiteracy as a growing fungus being passed on from one generation to another.

I do hope our next priority, after Desert Storm, is education, especially the education of those who can't read, who have no marketable skills and who live off of governmental hand-outs when most would rather have a job and dignity.

James "Doc" Doyle is a former administrator with Troy Schools. His column now appears periodically.

Get involved in support of troops

To all Americans who support our country, our troops and love the United States of America:

If you hear of any "teach-ins" (and rallies) at your local colleges, please attend. You will see and hear things that will appall you, when you realize they are taking place on campus that your tuition and tax dollars support.

The people that are leading these "teach-ins," are the same type who protested the Vietnam War. It would make your blood boil to hear these people and realize that a majority of them are teaching our students. They speak of "Freedom of Speech," but the troops that fought the wars throughout our history, have enabled them to have this freedom.

At this time, when we are at war, there should be no division made between the troops and the war they are waging. They are there and they are fighting and cannot end up feeling like they fought an unjust war and get blamed for killing "innocent children and civilians." These protests are being seen over there. This is what the protesters did to the Vietnam veterans and made them feel like dirt. Please don't wait 20 years to support these troops during and after this war.

If you love this country and support our troops, please get involved, do not be the "silent majority" this time. If you hear or see anything that disturbs you, like the actions of protesters, certain congress people, certain media, etc., call or write and let them know. Fly the U.S. Flag, call your city hall to see about a proclamation to fly our flags for our troops. Send letters to any service person, and buy items to give to support groups to send to our troops. Watch TV, check your papers to see when and where anti-war anti-war protests are to be held, attend them, carry your flags and placards and don't be afraid to speak your mind. Perhaps, our V.F.W. organizations could get involved by attending these rallies, etc., showing their support of their troops.

This is still a democratic society where the majority rules. To the "anti-war" protestors I say, "take your gripes to the voting booth, call your congressmen, but do not use the war and our troops for a platform for your own causes. Don't undermine our troops!"

Believe me, no one in their right mind could like war, but once our troops are committed, we can do no less than support them all the way.

Michigan Memorial Park

Memories Cherished in Nature's Glory

To ensure the cemetery's beauty for generations, Michigan Memorial Park's Perpetual Care Accounts are financed above and beyond what is required by the state.

Michigan Memorial Park features:

- Experienced prearrangement counselors who can help you plan before the need arises
- Two prominent mausoleums nestled in the woods
- Eight garden crypt areas
- Two lakes
- A rural atmosphere with easy access to major expressways

With over 300 acres of wooded land running along the banks of the tranquil Huron River, Michigan Memorial Park is one of the state's most prominent non-denominational cemeteries.

Our staff is committed to making the mourning period as easy as possible and filling the years that follow with the comfort of reminiscing amid extraordinary beauty.

Tax checkoff aids children

The current recession means hard times for Michigan's children, says one of the state's top child abuse prevention experts.

According to Joe Crump, chairman of the board of the Children's Trust Fund for the Prevention of Child Abuse, "It's a vicious circle."

"One of the tragic outcomes of tough economic times is the increase in family stress, which in turn produces a sad increase in child abuse. And all this is happening at the same time there is a decrease in the amount of money available to provide child abuse prevention services," said Crump.

Crump said the Children's Trust Fund itself is the victim of the current economic downturn.

"Less than 3 percent, only 121,260 Michigan taxpayers, were concerned enough about child abuse last year to check off the CTF line of their income tax form," he said.

"The funds collected through the income tax check-off are vital to child abuse prevention efforts in this state. In the past eight years these donations have made possible the funding of hundreds of programs which have provided help to more than 300,000 Michigan children and families."

"We're hoping Michigan taxpayers will be generous with their contributions this year. Last year we had to reduce our support because of dwindling donations and cuts in a federal matching grant. This year, programs offering child abuse prevention services are depending on us more than ever because there is less money available from other sources. You can be sure that state budget reductions will hit these programs hard," Crump said.

This year's tax form includes a new CTF logo which Crump hopes will draw more taxpayers' attention to the check-off. The new logo includes the words "Stop Child Abuse," is a child-like print with an octagon stop-sign shape and the word "Before Another Child Is Hurt" underneath.

The trust fund is an independent, non-profit agency established in 1982 as a permanent source of funding for local programs throughout the state to prevent child abuse and neglect. Currently more than 100 programs and local child abuse prevention councils receive funding in 76 of Michigan's 83 counties.

"It's important we all recognize that child abuse is everyone's problem. We either pay now to prevent child abuse or we pay a much higher price later," said Crump.

NEEDING MEDICATION

You awaken in the morning with stiff hands. Walking up stairs hurts your legs, and you have curtailed shopping in the malls because walking causes your knees to ache. Perhaps it is time to start medication for your arthritis.

Perhaps not, as medicine, besides offering help, brings hazards. Taking medication exposes you to drug side effects and to the possibility the new medication may interact and render ineffective other drugs you are using.

Once you begin an arthritis medicine you have an obligation to remain faithful to its dosing schedule. Missing doses results in a marked loss of efficacy. Doubling up may only increase the likelihood of stomach upset or cause the body to improve its effort to eliminate the drug.

Your condition may be the result of heredity and aging, and despite treatment, your stiffness, ache, limits, and deformities will remain. Heat, rest, and pacing your activities might remain as your best therapies.

Furthermore, an understanding of your arthritis and its severity could be all you require. Relieving your concerns, may eliminate tension that accompanied your joint discomfort; gaining this perspective may be the best reason to visit your doctor.

It's cold and he's crabby

It must be this cold weather that brings out the crabbies in me. Being the eternal optimist, thank heaven, I don't get crabby too often. But when I do, watch out.

Having just spent two weeks doing some incredible travel, I will never understand how airlines get away with passing off that tray garbage labeled as food. I took a charter flight to Las Vegas and was tossed a tray containing an entree, vegetable and starch measuring no more than three-by-five inches.

It contained something that remotely resembled chicken, some rice that tasted like overdone instant and some pole beans cooked beyond oblivion. Couple that with a salad of questionable age, a roll that doubled as a hockey puck, and the only remotely tasty item in the box — a two-pack of Popen's Danish Shortbread Cookies — even McDonald's sounded good on the way home.

So you think this only happens on charter flights, eh? The above description makes dinner on United Airlines to New York City sound like a banquet. The only word of advice when flying domestic, either pack your own (and be prepared for airport security to crush your Oreos), or do as I will do from now on, order a specialty kosher or vegetarian meal when booking your flights.

ANOTHER OF life's little idiosyncrasies is the meaning-to-do-well servers who insist on filling my glass to the brim, sometimes after one sip from the wine glass. Even with reminders, they all must have gone to that Biafrikan school that says you must drink and eat it all. Things got so out of hand at a trendy Royal Oak eatery the other day that I literally picked the bottle from the bucket and set it next to me, out of any server's reach. Read my lips folks: I'll pour my own wine, whenever I want.

I would love to get my hands on the person who invented that seemingly-innocent-looking raspberry container that make it look like you are getting somewhat near your money's worth. Instead, you open it to find that the sides slant in on a 45-degree angle and what looked like two cups of raspberries has shrunk to nothing more than half a cup.

This entire column could be spent on television commercials. The one that most readily comes to mind is of the floor-cleaning women who can make a dirty kitchen floor "shine like new." First off, I can't just damp mop my kitchen floor and expect it to be even remotely clean. The way I cook, this job turns out to be one of those down-on-your-hands-and-knees sessions I always dread.

Can you really damp mop a floor and expect it to be clean and shiny? Am I the only person who has to scrape off crud with a butter knife while washing my kitchen floor?

I do the grocery shopping for the Janes Gang. Someday, I hope to get called for "The Price is Right." I will never be able to understand how or why the price of soap powder can fluctuate. One week, I can get a 40-pound box of All for $8.99 and two weeks later it goes for $12.49. Does Saddam Hussein exert control over the United States laundry market?

I have come to realize that I have about as much control over the food an airline serves me as I do the price of soap powder. One thing that always makes me feel better is a batch of double chocolate cookies and an oversized mug of hot chocolate, especially in the throes of winter.

With Love: Desserts and Wine

By Geri Rinschler
special writer

DOES ANYONE KNOW who St. Valentine was? No one seems to know for sure. A number of legends describe the patron of lovers. Author Edna Barth explains in "Hearts, Cupids and Red Roses" that early church records list a number of martyrs with the name St. Valentine, and they all shared the same feast day, Feb. 14, during the third century.

In spite of its obscure origins, the celebration of love has survived through the centuries. What better way to celebrate the holiday than with hearts, the symbol of love: chocolate cheesecake hearts, pastry hearts filled with custard and fresh fruits, genoise layer-cake hearts layered with buttercream, custard cream and strawberries; or frozen chocolate ice cream hearts filled with lingonberry sauce and topped with bittersweet chocolate.

A Valentine dessert party is an easy way to entertain because all the desserts can be made ahead or purchased from a number of talented local chefs or bakers. Complement the desserts by adding four or five fine dessert wines, to create a majestic dessert, wine-tasting party.

If you have never attempted a tasting party before, there are some things you need to know. Decide on the number of guests, then select a few sumptuous recipes and a few appropriate dessert wines. Not sure where to begin? To help out, we have consulted experts in the field of fine food and wine.

AFTER ESTABLISHING the guest list, develop the menu. Elwin Greenwald of Elwin's Tu-Go in Royal Oak and David Auer of Baking by the Auers in Southfield returned our challenge with three fabulous heart-shaped delights. For a party of 10, the experts agreed five desserts is a workable number to generously accommodate the group.

Greenwald suggested the menu have at least one chocolate dessert. He decided to prepare Espresso Way Tu Your Heart, individual chocolate cheesecakes served with a passion fruit sauce and a pastry heart filled with custard and topped with honeydew, cantaloupe and watermelon balls.

One of Auer's most spectacular recipes is for a Bagatelle Torte. This French genoise cake is layered with pastry cream, buttercream and fresh strawberries covered with a layer of pink-tinted marzipan and topped with a hand-shaped fondant rose, at our request.

To round out the menu, we added an apple-cranberry crisp and a 10-inch chocolate ice cream heart, filled with lingonberry sauce and topped with melted bittersweet chocolate.

Five desserts for 10 guests may seem extravagant but is essential for a dessert-tasting party when dinner is not being served. One guideline to keep in mind is that the desserts should be distinctly different from each other — a few very light and one or two of them very rich. For a larger party with 20 guests, five or six courses are certainly ample, just double the recipe.

Chef is in the know

Gary Danko knows food. Gary Danko knows wine. Many chefs know food but not many know wine. Gary Danko knows wine because for the last several years he has been the chef/manager for The Restaurant at Chateau Souverain Winery in Sonoma County, Calif.

During his tenure at Chateau Souverain, the Restaurant received a four-star rating from the Wine Spectator magazine, and Chef Danko was honored as one of the Top 10 New Chefs of 1989 by Food and Wine magazine.

Danko recently demonstrated his skills of matching wine and food, at Detroit's London Chop House, where he participated in the Great Chefs program. "First and foremost," Danko said, "freshness is the hallmark of my cuisine."

Beginning with a coupe of Maison Deutz California Brut Cuvee, Danko explained that the Deutz had a French taste because the limestone-chalk soils at Deutz are very much like the soils of Champagne, France. "Salty, fried, spicy and Thai foods go best with sparkling wine," Danko suggested. "The bubbles lift the food and refresh the palate. I prefer this wine when it is served very cold."

WITH THE 1989 Beringer Napa Valley Sauvignon Blanc, Danko prepared Pan Steamed Fresh and Smoked Salmon with Fennel, Leeks and Spinach. Pinwheels of fresh and smoked salmon were quickly sauteed to leave a center of delicate pink flesh. "Salmon is a medium fatty fish," Danko said. "It matches well with dry, high acid wines like sauvignon blanc. The wine's acidity cuts through the fatty character of the fish just like lemon."

Grilled Marinated Quail was presented with Polenta Croutons, Cranberry Onion Compote and three vintages (1984, '85, and '86) of Beringer Reserve Cabernet Sauvignon. The small game birds matched with the cabernets because the cranberries tied the dish to the wine. The tannin in the cranberries heightened the fruit character of the wines and acted as the tie that binds.

The same three wines accompanied the third course of Lamb Medallions, Tarragon Lamb Essence, and Celery Root-Garlic Puree. A completely different phenomenon carried off this combination. The puree of celery root, with its earthy flavors, played against the natural herbal qualities of the cabernets, highlighting a completely different wine personality.

"Serve the best wines early in the meal," Danko advises, "before the palate tires or dessert arrives. I serve a 'savory course' following the entree to allow the diner to finish the red wine before dessert."

Our saffron was a Warm Sonoma Goat Cheese Tart with Caramelized Onions on a bed of mixed greens and walnuts dressed with a delicate touch of walnut oil. The 1987 Chateau Souverain Zinfandel was fresh and fruity, but we preferred to enjoy the last few sips of the 1985 Beringer Reserve Cabernet.

DANKO'S FINISHING touch was

WINE SELECTIONS OF THE WEEK

1989 Dry Creek Vineyard Fume Blanc ($11). This is one of the nicest fume blanc (sauvignon blanc) we have tasted. It shows fresh pineapple and grapefruit aromas and flavors with a hint of straw just to let you know that it is 100 percent sauvignon blanc.

1989 Beringer Vineyards Sauvignon Blanc ($10.50). This wine showcases delicious, up-front, melony flavors with fresh, clean acidity. A a Gratin of Apples with Warm Nutmeg Cream and Pistachio Ice Cream served with the 1986 Beringer Late Harvest Johannisberg Riesling. It is difficult to skillfully pair dessert and wine, particularly when the wine is sweet enough to be dessert by itself. With a residual sugar of 16.4 percent, this wine is definitely sweet.

In this case, it tastes even better with the dessert than it does alone. The tart, spicy apple gratin brings out the wine's spicy character and keeps the acids in balance.

great wine to serve with seafood, fresh fish, or fresh clams and oysters. Beringer also makes a second style of sauvignon blanc called Fume Blanc.

PAIRING APPROPRIATE wines with five different desserts is not an easy task. Although the general rule of matching light wines with light food and rich wines with rich food holds true, the alchemy of sweet dessert wines is more complicated. To help sort out the confusion, Joe Bruno, wine consultant for the Merchant of Vines's Birmingham store, came to the rescue.

How does one decide on which wines to choose? After planning the dessert menu, organize a list of the desserts and their prominent flavors.

A good, experienced wine consultant should be able to recommend a variety of wines to choose from, based on the outstanding flavors of each recipe, the number of guests and your wine budget. It is helpful to set cost parameters. For this wine tasting party the object was to spend no more than $20 per bottle and no less than $10.

Bruno, who has traveled throughout vineyards in Europe and the United States, pointed out that there is no set formula for matching dessert wines to specific desserts. He said, "In order to choose the right wines, you must first visualize the scents and smells of a wine as well as the taste."

The olfactory senses play an important role in wine matching. "Honestly, a dessert wine is a dessert in itself and can stand alone beautifully," Bruno added.

DURING THE conversation he suggested making notes of the wines sampled and recording likes, dislikes and distinctive flavors and aromas. After examining the recipes and ingredients, Bruno recommended five wines based on the body, alcohol content, sugar content, taste and aroma.

For the apple-cranberry crisp, Bruno selected a white, California riesling from Jekel Vineyards because the riesling has an apple aroma, which marries well with a butterscotch apple dessert. A 1988 Moscato d'Asti was highly suggested to serve with the Bagatelle Torte.

Bruno explained that the delicate egg custard and fresh strawberry filling make the perfect combination to accompany the light sparkle of this unique Italian wine.

For the custard-melon tart, a 1982 Chateau Monbazillac white Bordeaux wine was chosen because of its resemblance to ripe fruits. "Since cheese and port have an affinity for one another, I selected a Harvey's Hunting Tawny Port," Bruno added. Tawny port is a fine port, and with its almost citron quality is a natural companion to the individual chocolate cheesecakes with passion fruit.

Chocolate ice cream with a chocolate topping is by far the richest of the desserts on the menu. "Sherry, which is one of the strongest wines in the world, closely resembles the body of chocolate," Bruno said. A Pedro Ximenez Sherry by Emilio Lustau is the very sweetest of the dessert wines and one with a rich taste that needs to be acquired.

ENTERTAINING WITH desserts and dessert wines needs a little extra planning for serving pieces and wine glasses. You will want to have enough individual dessert plates for each course for every person. If you don't have enough wine glasses to go around, it is perfectly acceptable to rinse the glasses in between courses.

For an elegant evening, plan to serve the desserts one at a time with an appropriate wine. You also will need to have lots of mineral water, for palate cleansing between courses, and regular and decaffeinated coffee served toward the end of the party.

ESPRESSO-WAY TO YOUR HEART (Individual chocolate cheesecakes)

Crust:
2 cups vanilla cookie crumbs
3 tablespoons unsweetened cocoa
1 teaspoon coffee powder
4 tablespoons butter, melted

Mix ingredients thoroughly in a bowl and divide evenly among 12 individual heart-shaped molds 4-by-3-inches each. Press equal amounts of crumb mixture into bottom of molds. Chill until crumbs are set.

Batter:
6 ounces semi-sweet chocolate
1 1/2 pounds cream cheese, softened
1/2 cup sugar
2 large eggs
1 cup heavy cream
1/2 cup espresso coffee
1 teaspoon vanilla extract

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Melt the chocolate in the top of a double boiler over hot, simmering water.

In a mixer bowl, beat the softened cream cheese with sugar until light and fluffy. Add eggs, one at a time, beating well after each addition. Add cream and beat well until blended.

Remove chocolate from heat when melted and cool slightly. Slowly pour chocolate into cheese mixture beating well. Add coffee, vanilla and blend thoroughly.

Pour cheese mixture into the 12 prepared heart molds. Bake for 15-20 minutes or until edges of cake pull away from the sides of the pan. Remove pan from oven and cool on a rack. Chill until firm, 1 hour. When firm, run edge of a paring knife around edges to loosen from mold.

Carefully unmold cakes onto a rack, invert and arrange on a serving plate. Refrigerate until serving time.

Passion Fruit Sauce:
2 cups pureed passion fruit, made from ripe fresh passion fruit or canned
1 cup sugar
Juice and zest of 1 orange
1 tablespoon fruit liqueur (such as Le Grand Passion)

Combine passion fruit, sugar, orange juice and zest in a saucepan and cook over medium heat until mixture is reduced by about 1/4 and becomes thickened. Remove from heat and stir in liqueur. Cool, cover then refrigerate until serving. Serve alongside each cheesecake. Makes 12 individual cheesecakes (3-by-4 inches).

Healthy meal centers around Teriyaki Steak

With Valentine's Day coming up, thoughts turn to affairs of the heart. It is always fun to remember loved ones with cards and little treats. This week's Winner Dinner will help you offer them healthy fare for their hearts as well.

Planned by Linda Millard of Livonia, the menu features recipes for spinach salad, teriyaki steak and rice, and home-made fortune cookies. After five years of studying and internship, Millard recently became registered as a dietitian. She is very aware of the importance of eating healthy, well-balanced meals, and the menu she submitted is low in fat, calories and sodium.

Married for three years, Millard works at St. Mary's Hospital in Livonia as an assistant dietitian. She loves her job and especially enjoys interacting with the patients, offering them advice and helping them with any food-related problems they may have.

When not working, Millard loves to sew and do cross-stitch. She also loves to cook and always makes a point of garnishing plates, using whatever fruits and vegetables she might have on hand.

Millard included with her menu and recipes a list of some dietary guidelines for Americans. They are as follows:

- Eat a variety of food.
- Maintain a healthy weight.
- Choose a diet low in saturated fat and cholesterol.
- Choose a diet with plenty of fruit, vegetables and grain products.
- Use sugars only in moderation.
- Use salt and sodium only in moderation.
- If you drink alcoholic beverages, do so in moderation.

The following saying is one she keeps in mind when dealing with others. It is particularly relevant with Valentine's Day just around the corner: "Gifts from the heart are never forgotten. They are merely left in the hearts of others."

Thank you, Linda Millard, for sharing your tasty and nutritious recipes with us, and congratulations on family-tested winner dinner

Menu

ORIENTAL SALAD
TERIYAKI STEAK AND RICE
FORTUNE COOKIES AND SORBET

Recipes

ORIENTAL SALAD

4 cups fresh spinach
1 can mandarin oranges, drained, 8-ounce size
1/4 cup slivered almonds
1 sweet red pepper, cut into strips
Sliced water chestnuts (optional)

Combine the ingredients and divide evenly onto 4 separate salad plates. Use 1 tablespoon of your favorite low-calorie dressing. Kraft Low-Cal Catalina dressing tastes particularly good with this salad.

TERIYAKI STEAK AND RICE

Although this recipe uses beef, you also may use boneless chicken or turkey breast meat. Other vegetables, such as chopped onion, chopped celery, chopped green pepper and broccoli flowerettes can be added during the last half hour of cooking. Pea pods, which add color and crunch, can be added in the last 5 minutes of cooking. This recipe serves 4.

1 pound lean round steak or sirloin, trimmed of all fat
1/2 teaspoon ground ginger
1 1/2 teaspoons sugar
1 tablespoon vegetable oil
1/4 cup low-sodium soy sauce
1-2 cloves garlic, minced or 1/2 teaspoon garlic powder
4 cups cooked rice
Your choice of vegetables

Combine the first 6 ingredients in a crockpot and cook for 1 1/2 hours at 350 degrees. Or, if a crockpot isn't used, place the ingredients in a large skillet and simmer for 1 1/2-2 hours. If necessary, add a little more soy sauce in order to prevent dryness. Serve over 1 cup of cooked rice.

FORTUNE COOKIES AND SORBET

Fun to make, these fortune cookies will delight your family. Serve them with a dish of your favorite fruit-flavored sorbet.

1/4 cup flour
2-3 tablespoons sugar
1 tablespoon cornstarch
2 tablespoons vegetable oil
1 egg white
1-2 tablespoons water
8 small strips of paper with fortunes written on them

Mix flour, sugar and cornstarch. Add oil and egg white and stir until smooth. Add water and mix well. Pour 1 tablespoon of batter on a small skillet that has been sprayed with a non-stick spray. Spread the batter out thinly in a 3-to-4-inch circle. Cook over very low heat for about 4 minutes or until lightly browned. Turn the cookie over with a spatula and cook for 1 more minute. Remove the cookie from the pan and fold in half, placing the fortune in the middle. Fold cookie again over the edge of a bowl. Place in a muffin tin to cool. Repeat the process with the remaining batter.

Shopping List

A menu for Valentine's Day

In today's busy world, we all tend to cut corners, and look for the quickest way to do everything. In cooking, quickest is not always best.

Not only does the taste not always measure up, but I believe that the time and effort put into creating a special meal can have a calming, almost therapeutic effect on the cook.

The satisfaction of setting a really good table is good for the soul, as well as the stomach, of the one who does it, and of those who partake of the meal.

On Valentine's Day this year, why not take the time to prepare a really special menu, with all the extra touches that make a meal a memorable occasion?

USE YOUR BEST crystal and china. Have candlelight, soft music and fresh flowers. You don't need an expensive floral arrangement. Just one flower, with a sprig of ivy, floating in a bowl of water or a brandy snifter, can add grace to your table.

If you don't have the right tablecloth and napkins, don't despair. You can make them cheaply and easily, without even sewing a stitch. Go to your nearest fabric store and look for lace remnants. They will be on a sale table or in a bin.

Choose a piece that will fit your table (or can be cut to do so), in a color that will either match your table service, or in red or pink for Valentine's Day.

Cover your table first with any plain white cloth or paper. Then cover with the lace, so that the white shows through.

For napkins, buy any inexpensive white material that feels good. Cut into large squares and fray the edges, making an attractive fringe effect. If you don't have appropriate napkin rings, make some — by braiding ribbons, silk flowers, pipe cleaners or what-have-you.

If you are well established in a relationship, make this a romantic dinner for just the two of you. But if you are in a new relationship, or if this is the very first time you have invited your new friend to dinner, you don't want to scare him or her away. So, make an intimate dinner for four.

Invite another compatible couple that you feel comfortable with. It can still be a very romantic affair and can set the mood for future dinners for two.

CHOOSE YOUR menu carefully. Each dish should be a special event, not something your guests might have had for dinner just last week.

Here is a suggestion for such a menu:

Strawberry Spinach Salad
Beef Wellington
Broasted Potatoes
Hot Rolls and Butter
Ice-Cream-Topped Cream Puffs, Topped with Home-made Hot Fudge
Rose or Red Wine

BEEF WELLINGTON

This is a very special dish. It is expensive and time-consuming to make. It is also an artistic delight that tastes even better than it looks. It speaks of love to those who eat it. Only those who really enjoy cooking should attempt it.

To prepare enough for 4 generous servings, you will need:

Beef tenderloin roast, about 3 pounds. Important: do not substitute any other cut of meat.

1 sheet frozen puff pastry. This is available in most supermarkets. Be sure it is completely defrosted before you unroll it.

Salt and pepper
Flour, for dredging

½ cup liver pate Canned will do, but homemade is much better. If you don't have a recipe, call me.
2 tablespoons cognac, or caraway liqueur
Dijon mustard, about 1 tablespoon
1 egg
1 tablespoon water

Rub meat with salt and pepper and sprinkle with flour. Place on a rack in a shallow roasting pan. Bake uncovered at 425 degrees for about 30-35 minutes. Do not overcook. Remove from oven and cool. Save pan drippings for gravy.

Roll out puff pastry sheet and spread with a mixture of mustard, pate and liqueur. Adjust to taste, as you mix it.

When meat is cool enough to handle, place it in the center of the pastry sheet. Pull up sides and ends of pastry to neatly cover the roast. Cut off excess pastry and save. Seal by pinching and turning edges under attractively.

Beat egg in a cup and add 1 tablespoon water. Brush this mixture over the pastry, making sure all edges are sealed.

Using the leftover pieces of pastry, shape or roll and cut out hearts, flowers and birds. Use them to decorate the pastry-covered meat. Use the egg mixture to stick them on.

Place finished roll on a well-greased cookie sheet.

If you are not ready to bake your roast at this time, refrigerate it, so that the pastry won't rise.

When you are ready, place the roast in a 425 degree oven and bake an additional 20 minutes or so, until crust is a beautiful golden brown.

To serve, slice crosswise and cover each slice with gravy made from the pan drippings, or with fresh sauteed mushrooms.

If you need any recipes for this meal, call Gundella at 427-1072.

SOME OF THE BEST MANAGERS IN THE WORLD HAVE DIABETES.

Controlling glucose levels is the management challenge of a lifetime.

There are blood tests to conduct, exercise routines to plan, and special meals to prepare.

And for nearly one million Americans with insulin-dependent diabetes, daily injections to administer.

Not to mention coping with the stress of knowing diabetes can lead to heart disease, kidney disease, and blindness.

For all the work they do, people with diabetes deserve more than a pat on the back. They deserve a cure.

Pritikin's top prize goes to Chef Steve Allen

Chef Steve Allen of the Golden Mushroom in Southfield was awarded Best of Show in the first Pritikin Culinary Classic on Monday at Schoolcraft College in Livonia.

Allen took first place in both the Dinner in My Restaurant category and the Mystery Basket category. His prize is a two-week stay at the Pritikin Longevity Center in Santa Monica, Calif.

For Dinner in My Restaurant, chefs created a menu and prepared the courses they would serve in their restaurant. For the Mystery Basket, each chef had to select from ingredients provided in a mystery basket, and then prepare the food.

Every recipe was required to follow the guidelines of the Pritikin program for healthy eating.

Ed Janos of Too Chez in Novi received second place for Dinner in My Restaurant and Steven Schopen of the Whitney in Detroit, third place. Schopen also placed second among Mystery Basket winners and Jeff Gabriel of Les Auteurs in Royal Oak, third.

A category called Four Local Favorites (People's Choice) included as winners Ed Janos of Too Chez, Pat Dunn of the Van Dyke Place in Detroit, Jeff Baldwin of Norm's Eton Street Station in Birmingham and James Kowalski of Opus One in Detroit.

ROBERT PRITIKIN, director of the Pritikin Longevity Centers, headquartered in California, was on hand for the event.

While the 19 chefs prepared their dishes in the Schoolcraft College kitchen, Pritikin talked to the Observer & Eccentric about the Pritikin program. It was started more than 20 years ago, by his late father, Nathan, and was "thought of as a very effective Rx (prescription) for people with medical problems who were concerned about their health."

"The Hollywood set started going through the program the last eight years," Pritikin said, "and we had the Who's Who of Hollywood." The top tri-athletes in the country were next to be attracted to the program because, "It gave them more endurance."

One of the main points of the Pritikin program is to reduce fat intake to 10 percent of the individual's total diet. That's the only diet that's ever shown reversal for patients with coronary disease, Pritikin said, contrasting results of four recent studies that indicate a 30-percent-fat diet, recommended by the health community, has led to regression of coronary disease, in some instances.

"People are starting to say, 'Maybe your diet's not so extreme,'" he pointed out.

ALTHOUGH MANY people think that tasty food and healthy food are not compatible, "You can follow the healthiest diet and it can be tasty," Pritikin said.

The chef's competition is part of the Pritikin Systems Inc. current "Eat Healthy! Live Hearty!" campaign in metropolitan Detroit. Pritikin products are sold in groceries, and Kroger, A&P, Farmer Jack and Shopping Center Markets are participating in the project.

Marcus Sarnovsky (with ball) of Livonia Churchill is pinched in by Farmington Harrison's Dan Hight (right) and Roy Granger (background) during Friday's Western Lakes basketball clash. Churchill won in two overtimes, 56-55.

Chargers upset Harrison, 56-55

By Neal Zipser
staff writer

Thursday night's Duke-Virginia basketball game proved to be more than just watching a good matchup on television for Livonia Churchill coach Fred Price.

Price watched the contest and learned a defense he thought would work against Farmington Hills Harrison Friday. His strategy worked, as the visiting Chargers upset the Hawks 56-55 in a thrilling, double-overtime Western Lakes Activities Association game.

Senior center Randy Calcaterra's free throw with six seconds remaining in the second overtime proved to be the difference. Harrison junior guard Roy Granger launched a three-pointer at the buzzer, but the ball rimmed out.

Churchill dominated the boards and rallied from four-point deficits in each overtime to end the Hawks' nine-game winning streak.

With the win, Churchill tied Harrison 3-1 in the Western Division. The Chargers (8-6 overall and 4-4 in the WLAA) face Plymouth Canton and the Hawks (11-3 and 6-2) play Northville in each team's division finale.

Price saw a defense Virginia used on Duke and drew it up on the chalkboard prior to the game. The coach thought it might slow Hawk leading scorer Andrew Smith down. The senior forward was held to 13 points, 10 under his average, and was blanketed all game by junior guard Brian Johnson.

basketball

"IT WAS A gimmick defense," Price said. "We never worked on it one second in practice. I drew it up before the game. It shows the team's intelligence by executing a blackboard adjustment."

Granger led all scorers with 16 points. Johnson and Mike Thomas tallied 15 and 13 points for Churchill, respectively.

For Harrison, the innovative defense wasn't as big a factor as Churchill's dominance on the boards. The Chargers held a 49-30 rebounding advantage, led by Calcaterra's 18 boards, including nine offensive caroms.

Harrison coach Mike Teachman realized the rebounding, as well as other factors, doomed his squad.

"Their work on the boards did it," Teachman said. "We didn't get any second shots for most of the game. What really changed the game was that we missed five layups in the first quarter. If we make those, it's a different game.

"They dictated the tempo and you have to give them credit for getting all five of their players back on defense."

The game seesawed for the entire game with neither squad taking control. The Chargers jumped to a 12-4 first-quarter lead, but a 7-0 Hawk run closed the margin to one entering the second quarter.

HARRISON TOOK its first lead of the game at 13-12 on an Andy Fitzpatrick layup. Calcaterra poured in five straight points and asserted himself as a force underneath the basket, collecting half of his four blocked shots midway through the quarter. Smith was held to just two free throws in the first half, but the Hawks only trailed 24-22 going into the third quarter.

The teams duelled to a 16-16 stand-off in the third quarter, which featured six ties. The fourth quarter began with Churchill ahead 40-38.

The Chargers scored the next six points on a jumper by senior Steve Townsend and tip-ins by Calcaterra and senior Thomas. However, Churchill couldn't score for the next 3:53 and the Hawks crawled back to cut the lead to 46-42.

Churchill missed three consecutive one-and-one opportunities at the charity stripe and converted only

Belleville fends off determined Wayne Memorial

By Darren A. Nichols
staff writer

Senior guard Carl Bow hit a layup with 36 seconds left, igniting a 5-0 Belleville run Friday, lifting the Tigers to an exciting 61-55 basketball win over host Wayne Memorial.

Belleville, which now has a two-game lead over Wayne at 11-0 in the Wolverine A League, moved to 15-1 overall. Wayne dropped to 10-6 overall and 9-2 in the conference.

"This was the typical Belleville-Wayne game," Belleville coach Mike Garland said. "They (Wayne) have nothing to be ashamed of. It's great to play a team of their caliber and take a two game lead after beating them."

"I'll tell you what, there was a lot of pressure on the kids' shoulders. I feel a little relieved, but we (still) have three games left and two of those are on the road. We have to win at least two for the outright championship."

"Everyone was focused tonight," added Belleville senior forward Derrick Boles, who led all scorers with 21 points. "It was a big game and before the game coach told us that the big fellas had to come to play and everybody came to play."

It came down to a chess match of possessions, with the final two minutes being the most crucial.

On Wayne's next possession, junior guard Rick Barnes hit a three-pointer to cut the deficit to 56-55 with 1:18 remaining. Belleville ran a delayed offense and called a timeout with 50 seconds left, resulting in Bow's layup with 36 seconds to go.

Wayne brought the ball down the floor and called its final timeout at the 19-second mark.

The Zebras worked the ball around, only to have Barnes miss a three-point attempt with 8 seconds remaining.

Belleville senior forward Ron Hunter rebounded the ball and was fouled. After missing the front-end of the one-and-one, junior guard/forward Greg Hartman called a timeout with three seconds to play, but was called for a technical foul because the Zebras were out of timeouts.

Boles then hit both free throws for a 60-55 lead. Hill, intentionally fouled, added a free throw to close out the game.

"When the three-pointer left Barnes' hands, I thought it was good," Wayne coach Dan Henry said. "I feel so bad for Hartman. He didn't know we didn't have any more timeouts left. He's our most intense player and he's taking it personally right now. It wasn't his fault. . . those things happen in high school basketball."

SAID GARLAND: "I was pleased with (the fourth quarter). We haven't had a tight ballgame, so I didn't know how we would respond. It was good to see we could win a close game. We made some good decisions down the stretch. Defensively, we made some errors which is uncharacteristic of us."

Besides the final tally, no team had more than a five-point advantage the entire second half.

After taking a 17-12 first quarter lead, Belleville opened the second quarter with a 10-4 run in the first 4:09 to put the Tigers ahead 27-18. Belleville continued the rally, taking a 34-24 lead with 3:17 left in the quarter on a three-pointer by Hill.

WAYNE FINISHED the quarter with an 8-1 rally in the last 2:23 in the second quarter and trailed 36-32 at the half.

"What happened was that I made a mass substitution because I thought I could wear them down," Garland said. "It kinda backfired."

Wayne was paced by Fletcher's 15 points. Williams and Hartman added 11 points apiece. For Belleville, Hunter added 16 points; Hill had 11 and Bow chipped in 10.

"Derrick (Boles) came to play tonight," Garland said. "He's a Division I ballplayer (having verbally committed to Idaho State). When he comes to play he's the best on our team. He was totally focused and was confident tonight. He knew what was at stake."

"Boles played a lot better and with more intensity than the first time we played them. He showed me a lot more than I thought he could do," Hartman added. "He took the ball to the hole a lot better and he stayed inside (more), too. He's more of an effective player inside than outside."

"It hurts to lose, but I have a saying, either you win or you go down swinging. You always hate to lose, but when you lose by going down swinging, you can live with yourself. We're a young team. We'll be back."

Patriots, CC advance in tourney

Livonia Franklin won its second straight Class A district wrestling title last week, defeating Redford Union in the finals (47-18) and city rival Stevenson in the semifinals (38-20).

The Patriots, now 11-2-1 overall, advance to Wednesday's four-team regional at Plymouth Salem. Franklin could draw either Belleville (last week's district host), Novi or Pinckney.

Among the Franklin winners in the victory over Stevenson: Derek Rowland (103 pounds), a pin in 1:05 over Greg Kendall; Aaron Ingold (135), an 11-5 decision over Wayne Krause; Freg Vargas (140), an 11-5 win over Adam Carriere; Pat Poisson (145), a 7-5 victory over Tate Dobbs; Paul White (160), a pin in 55 seconds over Tony Sereno; Pat Poisson (171), a 2-1 decision over Chris Lehti; Brian Whetstone (189), a pin in 3:15 over Erich Kikland; and Bobby Johnson (heavyweight), a pin in 1:26 over Marco DeSanto. (In the 119-pound match, Franklin's Jesse Shakarian and Stevenson's Bob Carter fought to an 11-11 draw.)

Stevenson victors included: Bryon Berci (112), a pin in 3:50 over Dave Rowland; Ryan Carriere (125) by void; Brian Mitchell (130), an 8-1 win over Nick Kostakis; and Doug Carmack (152), a 14-9 triumph over Ben Lecce.

Churchill's winners included Scott Doerr (130), Chris Brown (140), Andy Brown (145), Rob Karadsheh (152), Mike Shanlikian (160) and Mike Brooks (189).

Franklin then faced the Panthers, capturing nine of 13 matches.

Patriots winners included Rowland (103), Kostakis (125), Ingold (130), Vargas (140), Poisson (145),

wrestling

Lecce (152), White (160), Whetstone (189) and Johnson (heavyweight). Stoddard, Arai, LeTourneau and DeBates won for RU.

REDFORD CATHOLIC CENTRAL (20-7) also advanced to the regional after beating Dearborn Edsel Ford, 42-24; Dearborn High, 37-27; and Dearborn Fordson, 64-9 at the Class A district Woodhaven.

CC will also go Wednesday to Salem, but will be paired with Trenton, Temperance-Bedford and Romulus.

In the first-round win over Edsel Ford, CC individual winners scoring pins included Randy Castro (103), Rusty Fowler (119), Jason Krueger (160), Dan Kelly (171), Dan Suhajda (189) and Rob Sylvester (heavyweight). Jim Whall (152) won by a 5-4 decision and Declan O'Donahue (125) by a 20-3 superior decision.

In the semifinals, CC held off Dearborn thanks to the efforts of Mario Scicluna (103), Adam Giantassio (112), Fowler (119), Whall (152), Krueger (160), Kelly (171) and Suhajda (189).

In the rout over Fordson for the title, CC individual mat winners included Scicluna, Giantassio, Fowler, O'Donahue, Steve Burke (130), Steve Sucher (135), Dan Rieple (145), Krueger, Kelly, Suhajda and Sylvester.

GARDEN CITY'S Class A district title last week went to Romulus.

The Eagles defeated defending district champion Westland John Glenn for the championship, 36-24, and the host Cougars, 53-23, in the semifinals. (Glenn drilled city rival Wayne Memorial in the other semifinal, 65-7.)

Among the winners for GC against Romulus: senior Darryl Dzendzel (125), a technical fall in four minutes over Jawan Russell; sophomore Jeremy Smith (140), a pin in 1:05 of Ronnie Bray, sophomore Mike Bullard (145), a pin in 3:37 over Jeff Filek; and heavyweight Jason Peterson, by void.

Dzendzel raised his season record to 18-12 with the win. Chris Gorak (135), the Cougars' top matman with a 25-8 record, lost his match.

Meanwhile, Bullard won in his varsity debut.

LUTHERAN WESTLAND lost to state-ranked Flat Rock in Wednesday's

The host Warriors opened with a 47-27 triumph over Livonia Clarenceville as Craig Shafer (103), Doug Johnson (112), Tony Horvath (119), Jeff Walrich (140), Tim Murray (152), Mike Kaitner (160), Jason Leimbach (171) and Jamie Hardy (heavyweight) all won matches.

Livonia confrontation pits powers Churchill vs. Stevenson

Volleyball supremacy in the Western Lakes Activities Association will be at stake tonight when Livonia Stevenson travels to city rival Churchill.

The match begins at approximately 8.

Both Churchill (22-0) and Stevenson (19-5-4) are coming off weekend action at the Schoolcraft Invitational (see Thursday's paper for results).

On Wednesday, Stevenson was sluggish, but had enough to win at Plymouth Salem, 15-6, 9-15, 15-7, 15-10.

Sue Bell led the Spartans to their 10th straight WLAA win with 18 digs and 10 kills in 25 attacks. She also served 10 aces.

Sophomore setter Patty Diamond added 17 digs and was 15-of-15 serving with one ace. Teammate Teresa Sarno contributed 16 digs, two solo blocks, nine assist blocks and had four kills. Laura Zatorski had 18 digs.

volleyball

"I think we're playing like we're in the doldrums," Stevenson coach Lee Cagle said. "It's late in the season, but we have to pick it up for the big match Monday (tonight) with Churchill."

Churchill, meanwhile, defeated Plymouth Canton in a match Wednesday at home, 15-8, 15-8, 15-9. The Chargers beat Farmington Harrison earlier in the week, 15-7, 15-4, 15-4.

LIVONIA LADYWOOD clinched second place in the Catholic League's Central Division Thursday with a 15-10, 15-9 victory at Birmingham Marian.

The Blazers finished 8-2 in the Central, one win behind champ Farmington Hills Mercy. Ladywood is 30-9-2 overall.

Ladywood's top hitters on the night included senior Keli Haeger, 11 kills; Liz Gunn, five; and Rebecca Willey, four. Mary Jo Kelly and Haeger also recorded 14 and 10 assist kills, respectively.

Haeger also ran off a string of 14 service points between the first and second games. Teammate Valerie Adzima contributed two aces.

Julie Wilson had 17 digs and only one error. Tara Wasiak and Michelle Wilson combined for five digs, while Jannel Hemme had two solo blocks.

Coach Tom Teeters also singled out the defensive efforts of Nancy Durr.

WESTLAND JOHN GLENN lost in five games Wednesday to visiting Walled Lake Central, 15-8, 15-5, 13-15, 12-15, 15-10.

The Rockets are 8-14-4 overall and 3-7 in the WLAA. Kara Beeny led the Rockets with 18 kills in 52 attempts with six errors. Teammate Nikki Wojcik added 14 kills in 15 attempts with eight errors.

Kerry Byberg and Jenny Massey each served eight aces in a losing cause.

Nikki Nagel collected 20 digs in 28 attempts.

Glenn's defensive standout was Leighton Dunlap.

"The comeback effort fell short, but we played with a lot of heart," Glenn coach Linda Jimenez said.

LIVONIA FRANKLIN could not beat WLAA foe Walled Lake Western for the third time this season, falling to the host Warriors, 15-7, 15-13, 16-14.

"Even though we lost, it was our best match of the year," Franklin coach Terri Morehouse said. "Western has really improved."

Despite the loss, Colleen Lai and Ann Mondro combined for eight block-stuffs. Mondro also collected four kills. Setter Sue Bona recorded 12 assists, while Jacki Warner and Karl Zabell stood out defensively.

The Patriots are 2-5 in the Western Division of the WLAA and 5-12 overall.

Spartans rebound to gain late victory

Gibbons nets 25 to stop Glenn

Livonia Stevenson maintained its one-game lead in the Western Lakes Activities Association (Lakes Division) thanks to Friday's 61-56 basketball win over host Westland John Glenn.

The Spartans are 8-6 overall, 5-3 overall in the WLAA and 4-0 in the division. Glenn falls to 2-12 overall, 1-8 in the league and 0-4 in the division.

Stevenson trailed 38-35 at halftime, but outscored the Rockets 11-7 in the third quarter and 15-11 in the final period.

Glenn led 56-53 with 3:50 remaining in the game, but made just 2-of-9 free throws in the fourth quarter and 3-of-15 for the game. The Spartans scored the game's last eight points.

Senior forward Dan Gibbons led the winners with a game-high 25 points. Matt Grodzicki added 13 and Dave Amey nine.

Gamel Ahmed scored 20 points for Glenn, including three treys. Kevin Champion chipped in 15 points, seven coming in the quarter.

DeLaSALLE 93, REDFORD CC 66: On Friday, host Warren DeLaSalle capped off a perfect 10-0 season in the Catholic League's Central Division with a lopsided triumph over visiting Redford Catholic Central.

The victorious Pilots are 14-2 overall.

Junior forward Bob Kummer scored 23 points for the Shamrocks, who fell to 6-9 overall and 4-6 in the Central.

Chad Varga and Bob Schneider chipped in with 15 and 10, respectively.

CC trailed 46-27 at intermission and could never recover.

basketball

HAMTRAMCK 87, CLARENCEVILLE 58: Metro Conference leader Hamtramck jumped to a 48-25 halftime lead Friday en route to a big win over visiting Livonia Clarenceville.

The Trojans fall to 5-9 overall and 2-5 in the league. Hamtramck is 13-3, 6-1.

Senior forward Claude Finley scored 17 points to lead the Cosmos.

PLY. CHRISTIAN 70, HURON VALLEY 53: Plymouth Christian clinched second place in the Michigan Independent Athletic Conference Friday thanks to a win over Westland Huron Valley Lutheran at Stevenson Junior High.

The Eagles improve to 9-6 overall and 5-1 in the MIAC. Huron Valley is 7-6, 3-2.

Plymouth Christian led 24-19 at halftime and 49-36 after three quarters.

Senior forward Keith McCants and junior forward Jeff Hess each scored 16 points to lead the winners. Senior guard Manish Nandani added 15 points and six assists, while Rob Askew chipped in 11 points.

Lady Ocelots shoot blanks in 77-65 loss

The formula for success against Schoolcraft College's struggling women's basketball team is simple, apparently — force the Lady Ocelots to the perimeter.

Alpena CC did just that Wednesday, particularly in the second half, and it worked for a 77-65 Lady Jacks victory at SC.

"It was the same problem," said SC coach Jack Grenan. "Our guard play and inconsistent shooting. In the second half, (Alpena) played zone and we couldn't score outside."

Alpena's sagging zone took the Lady Ocelots' inside players, Tricia Lucas and Nicole Dapprich, out of the game. Lucas, who scored 17 points in the first half to keep SC close (34-30 Alpena at halftime), was limited to one in the second half.

Dapprich netted 11 points and grabbed seven rebounds, Leeann Lightfoot had 10 points and Laurel Haener got nine points and nine boards. Mo Merritt led SC with 13 rebounds.

Foul problems ruined SC's hopes for victory. Lucas fouled out with 10 minutes remaining; Haener followed her to the bench shortly thereafter with her fifth.

Kim Corey led Alpena (now 7-3 in the Eastern Conference, 14-7 overall) with 24 points. Beth Cannon added 18 and Jackie Kennard had 12.

The loss, SC's ninth-straight in conference play, left the Lady Ocelots at 8-11 overall, 1-10 in the conference.

Franklin, Roberts sink Canton

By Dan O'Meara
staff writer

For Livonia Franklin junior Keith Roberts, Friday's basketball game began much earlier than the scheduled 7:30 p.m. start.

"I came here right after school and shot until 5, so I got about three hours of shooting," said Roberts after he scored a career-high 28 points — one more than his previous varsity best — as the Patriots downed visiting Plymouth Canton 65-60.

The win was especially important for Franklin, which knocked off one of the Western Lakes Activities Association leaders at a time when teams are positioning for the post-season tournament.

The Patriots are 6-3 in the league and 10-5 overall. The Chiefs, who have lost three of their last four games, are 7-3 and 9-7.

"(The extra practice) did help a lot because my shot was flat," Roberts said. "We don't have that much time in warm-ups. We come here late at night, too, so I've been shooting a lot lately."

THE 5-FOOT-8 guard was a big factor early in the game when Franklin nearly ran away with it and again in the last quarter when the Patriots rallied to overcome Canton.

Roberts scored 11 points in the fourth period when Franklin outscored the Chiefs 22-13 and reversed a 47-43 deficit entering the finale. He made three perimeter shots early in the quarter and was 4-of-5 shooting free throws. His free throws with 17 seconds remaining gave the Patriots a 63-60 lead.

"Roberts was not going to let his team lose that game," Canton coach Dave Van Wagoner said. "He took over and said 'We are not going to lose this game.' That was the last three minutes, I think."

After an unimpressive first half, the Chiefs regrouped in the third quarter to outscore Franklin 21-6 and own the lead with eight minutes left.

Mike Stafford scored all of his 12 points in the second half, including seven in the third, and post players Brett Howell and Rob Wilson made key contributions in the third quarter, too.

Stafford's triple tied the score at 43, and his layup off the fast break gave Canton its first lead of the game, 45-43. The Chiefs were 9-of-18 from the floor in the third period, Franklin 3-of-15.

"WE'VE GOT too many good people and too much senior leadership to fold," Franklin coach Rod Hanna said. "That's not our style. We've got too good a work ethic; we're too dedicated."

"We had our spurt in the first quarter, and they had theirs in the third. Fortunately, we got our second spurt in the fourth, and that helped us win the game."

Roberts restored the lead (57-55) for the Patriots with a basket at 3:40. After Dave Roman's free throws made it 61-58, Canton missed three tries from three-point distance, but Karl Wukie got the Chiefs within one with a pair of free throws with 19 seconds to play. Roberts made it 63-60 with free throws, and Stafford's three-point attempt rolled off the rim with :05 remaining.

Hanna also had some praise for Roberts, who had six assists, three rebounds and four steals.

"We keep the ball in his hands at the end," he said. "We're smart enough to know that. He's a pressure player, he wants the ball. Shooting those crucial free throws, he was smooth as silk on that line."

"Keith's game will improve, and he'll be one of the better guards to play for our school by the time his career is over."

HANNA LIKED the play of 6-foot-1 Russ Keberly, who missed the last two games and spent two days in the hospital with an infected knee. He returned Friday to lead Franklin with eight rebounds.

Hanna added the Patriots were sharp at the free throw line in the last quarter, making seven of eight shots.

"We only missed one free throw in the fourth quarter and that was important. We would have won four more games if we had made 65 percent or better."

Roberts, who made three triples, scored 10 first-quarter points as Franklin built a 25-11 lead. Steve McCool had half of his 12 points in the opening period.

After Jon Paupore's triple got Canton within 12-11, the Patriots, who were 11-of-15 from the floor in that quarter, scored the last 13 points.

"I just don't think our guys were ready to play and we got out-quickied," Van Wagoner said. "We weren't ready to play with the intensity Franklin wanted to play tonight, and I'll take the blame for that. They were red hot but when you don't guard people it's pretty easy to make 11 of 15."

DESPITE A drop to 3-of-11 shooting in the second quarter, the Patriots still led 37-26 at halftime. Roberts had 13 points and McCool 10 at the halfway point.

"We were real positive with our kids at halftime," Van Wagoner said. "I thought we would come back and win the game, but it slipped away from us."

Roman added nine points and Keberly seven for Franklin. Howell scored 13 points for the Chiefs, Wilson nine and Karl Wukie seven.

Gimmick defense carries Churchill past Harrison, 56-55

five of its 13 attempts for the game. With 1:02 remaining, Johnson split a pair to give the Chargers a five-point lead.

Fitzpatrick countered with two foul shots and, with 37 seconds left, stole a Charger pass and fed Smith who canned a triple to knot the score at 47-47. Neither team scored again and the game entered the first overtime.

Harrison jumped out to a 51-47 lead behind a Granger jumper and a Fitzpatrick layup. Churchill scored on its next two possessions and tied the score with 1:00 remaining. Teachman set up Smith for a final shot, but the forward missed an open 15-footer to send the game into its second extra period.

THE HAWKS again jumped out to a four-point lead behind a jumper and two free throws from Granger. Two jumpers by Johnson set up Calcaterra's heroics.

Calcaterra, who finished with 12 points, broke to the basket, where Thomas found him. Fitzpatrick fouled Calcaterra, who missed his first foul shot but nailed the second.

With Calcaterra in Granger's face, the guard took a desperation three-pointer that almost fell.

"I knew they were watching Andy so I had to take the shots like I did last week (in the Hawks' victory over Canton)," Granger said. "When I let go of it, I couldn't tell if it was going in because the big guy was in my face. But we'll do better from this day on."

MIXED EMOTIONS

Students swap flag burning for flag waving to support troops

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

Don't bother lecturing Lori Grady of Canton about the unpleasantness of war. Don't tell her about United States casualties or the mounting cost of the endeavor to get Saddam Hussein and Iraq out of Kuwait.

She understands all that.

And though Grady was a mere infant, she's well versed in the history of U.S. involvement in Vietnam. A lesson was learned from the protests of that war, she said.

"That wasn't a positive thing," said Grady, 21, a 1988 graduate of Plymouth Salem High School. "It hindered the troops."

"Here they (U.S. soldiers) were over there and back home here we had riots at Kent State and people burning draft cards. What do the soldiers think? They're wondering 'Why are we here?'"

Wednesday, Jan. 16, Grady saw history repeating itself.

After initial reports of the bombing of Baghdad, Iraq, came on television, Grady and her friends heard an anti-war demonstration outside the window of her dorm room at Eastern Michigan University. Then they saw the United States flag being hung upside down.

She became infuriated.

It's one thing to be upset. It's quite another to spend time organizing a group of students to have a counter rally. Grady decided to act.

GRADY AND six other students at EMU formed United Students for the United States. The group has organized several rallies at the campus, designed to show U.S. troops that unlike during the Vietnam War, many students support them.

Some of the organizers have family members fighting in Operation Desert Storm. One person, amiably called "G.I. Joe," fought in the Vietnam War.

Then there are others like Grady. She only knows that Americans her age are fighting and dying for a cause they believe in.

"I think a lot of people are confused on this," said Grady, who estimates 75 percent of the students support U.S. efforts in the Persian Gulf. "A lot of people are afraid to support the troops because they believe it's supporting war."

For her efforts, Grady and her fellow students have been called "war mongers" by some.

Their first rally in the center of the EMU campus was marred by a scuffle, which Grady said didn't involve members of her organization. Eastern Michigan University's Department of Public Safety reported a car damaged during the gathering.

A veteran political activist would say it's part of the territory. Not for Grady.

THE WOMAN with red hair standing in Goddard Hall resembles the average college junior dressed in blue jeans and a sweat shirt clutching a Bart Simpson key chain. She describes herself and the other students involved as "conservative."

Radical or malcontent is not the first words that come to mind.

Grady is not involved in student government or any political causes. She majors in special education, not political science or any applicable field of study one would associate for a rally organizer.

She's lived a typical white, middle class "Beaver Cleaver" existence. Her personality is more suited to be a spectator than the leader of the pack.

Yet something happened at the first gathering, attended by 800 students.

"I think a lot of people are confused on this. A lot of people are afraid to support the troops because they believe it's supporting the war."

-LORI GRADY

Anti-war activists state case with words and phrases

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

Before going into battle, the anti-war protester first needs to check his uniform.

The olive green Army-issued coat with punk band names such as The Clash, Angry Red Planet and the Blanks scrawled in black marker on the back is put over his frame. He notices the right sleeve is torn.

"I got roughed up at the last demo," said the activist inspecting the shredded material. "I wonder if the police will pay for that."

A couple of buttons are strewn on the table, one is a peace sign. He strategically affixes them to his coat and then places a baseball cap atop his disheveled mane of brown hair.

Bill Boyer, 29, is ready to protest.

In his arsenal are a slew of catchy phrases, ones that lend themselves to sound bites on the 11 o'clock news. Every once in awhile, he tries them out.

"Wargasm, how's that for a word?"

"We don't want people to be casual about casualties. How's that for a quote?"

Today's demonstration won't call for those, however. Boyer and a group calling itself Bread, Not Bombs will stage a silent protest against United States involvement in the Persian Gulf War at the Patrick A. McNamara Federal Building in Detroit.

TWELVE PROTESTERS will sit silent in the lobby of the government site at 4 p.m.

The idea is for workers of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, Internal Revenue Service, Social Security Administration and Government Purchasing Office Book Store to take heed and perhaps re-evaluate U.S. participation in the war against Iraq.

"I'd rather show them pictures of casualties than get my picture in the paper. We want to alert people to the realities of the war."

MOVING PICTURES

Julia Roberts is Laura Burney, a young woman who takes desperate measures to escape a destructive relationship with her husband Martin, played by Patrick Bergin, in "Sleeping With the Enemy."

'Sleeping With Enemy' needs some fine tuning

Given her recent track record, "Sleeping With the Enemy" (C+, R, 95 minutes) is not up to Julia Roberts' standards, despite the fact that she gives yet another excellent performance.

But in the final analysis, the film is slow and the tension in this psychotic thriller flows from technical tricks rather than vigorous acting and exciting human interaction.

The basic flaws in the film revolve around the scenario and all the loose ends which need explanation and fine tuning for the film to work on our nerves and our sensibilities.

Roberts is married to a fellow who suddenly turned brutal and psychotic shortly after their wedding. No explanation of this drastic behavioral change is ever provided nor do we learn how she escaped his shrewd, psychotic scrutiny, learned to swim, saved money and planned a successful escape with a new name, Sara Waters — a cheap play on her fear of the water and parallel to her fear of hubby, both of which she has now conquered.

It's all pretty thin and a good deal of the film's central portion is taken up with a music-video styled sequence as Ben wins her heart by letting her try on costumes in the college theater.

MOST OF the tense moments are telegraphed by obvious musical passages and acute camera angles. Her husband is pretty bland as psychotic threats go these days.

"Sleep With the Enemy" is a minor, predictable film so don't let the promos raise your expectations, it's not all that exciting.

"Cadence" (C+, PG-13, 95 minutes) misses the beat in an unrealistic, cliched story about a wild, unruly soldier, PFC Franklin F. Bean (Charlie Sheen), who ends up in a stockade run by a sadistic, bigoted sergeant, Otis McKinney (Martin Sheen).

The background of Franklin's problem is not all that clear and the film largely is played out on two sets, the stockade and a hard-labor locale. Franklin is confined with five black soldiers who, despite convictions for rape, murder and other sordid crimes, are friendly, loyal and really nice guys who quickly accept Franklin as one of their crowd.

That apparent contradiction is not explained very satisfactorily.

The five, who call themselves the "Soul Patrol," are lead by Stokes (Larry Fishburne) and they march to a different beat, their own "Cadence." Along with Franklin they fight to survive. Their biggest weapon is an attitude, something "Cadence" lacks.

"L.A. STORY" (B-, PG-13, 95 minutes), Tri-Star's latest romantic comedy, stars everybody's favorite "wild-and-crazy guy," Steve Martin, who also wrote the script and served as co-executive producer along with Carolco CEO Mario Kassar.

Harris K. Tellemacher (Martin) is a TV weatherman in the midst of a series of crises in his personal and professional lives. His girlfriend, Trudi (Marilu Henner), is having an affair with his agent, an electronic freeway sign is sending him messages and he loses his job when his weather forecasts prove to be extremely inaccurate.

way to finding true love with Sara McDowell (Victoria Tennant), an English journalist on assignment in Los Angeles.

While "L.A. Story" is a love story, its real charm lies in the fact that it is a Los Angeles tale told from an outsider's viewpoint, English director Mick Jackson who noted that "I do bring a fresh eye" to the scene with an exaggerated view of L.A.'s lush qualities.

In case the satire of "L.A. Story" doesn't grab viewers bothered by a weak love story, cameo appearances by Chevy Chase, Woody Harrelson, Rick Moranis and Patrick Stewart help matters along. (Reviewed by Eric Phillips)

No doubt those who remember Part I from 1984 will enjoy "The Neverending Story II — The Next Chapter" (*, PG). Bastian Bux (Jonathan Brandis) returns to Fantasia for another adventure in that wondrous land of magic.

A warlock is a male witch and "Warlock" (a R), is combat between a noted witch hunter and one of them bad types. They battle across the centuries from 1600 to date.

STILL PLAYING:

"Alice" (B+, PG-13, 100 minutes). Woody Allen's latest, fanciful and romantic comedy about New York City stars Mia Farrow as a privileged but troubled lady.

"Awakenings" (B, PG-13, 121 minutes). Robin Williams and Robert DeNiro as doctor and catatonic patient call to mind too many other films. The doctor's special care and sensitivity lead to temporary recovery but film lacks spark expected from these talented actors.

"Come See the Paradise" (B-, R, 130 minutes). American labor organizer (Dennis Quaid) in mid-'30s marries Japanese-American who is interned after Pearl Harbor.

"Dances With Wolves" (A, PG-13, 180 minutes).

"Edward Scissorhands" (C, PG-13, 100 minutes).

Unusual young man with scissors instead of hands shakes up the suburbs after moving in with the Avon lady and her family.

ALTERNATIVE VIEWING

Depardieu makes 'Cyrano'

By John Monaghan
special writer

To make his point, master swordsman Cyrano de Bergerac doesn't always need to brandish his sword. When a pompous young nobleman protests over his actions, Cyrano cuts him down with an extemporaneous string of quips and comebacks that leaves his foe vanquished.

The epic French adventure that cast Gerard Depardieu in the role he was born to play comes to the Maple Theatre for a limited run. When it opened the Detroit Film Theatre season last month, "Cyrano de Bergerac" caught many people off guard (including myself) for its epic wit, romance and excitement.

Cyrano, originally the hero of a play by Edmond Rostand, trains and leads a formidable fighting force of long-haired swordsmen. They are comfortable with their leader but know the one subject that must never come up — his monstrous nose.

So when a new arrival starts poking fun at it, the cadets expect bloodshed. Instead, Cyrano, who has made a promise to his beautiful cousin Roxanne, takes the handsome young man under his wing.

The classic scene under Roxanne's balcony, where Cyrano literally puts beautiful words in the young man's mouth, plays especially well. Cyrano, of course, loves Roxanne and makes epic sacrifices throughout the film to keep her happy.

The filmmakers have wisely scaled down the size of Cyrano's nose. Depardieu's already pronounced proboscis only needed a bit of touching up to bring it up to Cyrano standards.

The production cost of $20 million (a fortune for the French film industry) and every penny shows. The film sumptuously re-creates 17th century theaters, training academies, castles and battlefields.

Dr. Helen Russell (Barbara Bain) cocks her head and assumes the peculiar stance blonde cheerleaders take while gazing rapturously at star quarterbacks. The object of her regard is Commander Koenig (Martin Landau), commanding officer of Moonbase Alpha, a moon station hurtled out of earth's orbit by a major explosion.

All this and much more are being released Feb. 15 by J2 Communications in an exclusive arrangement with Waldenbooks. That's the only outlet (at $14.95 each) for four one-hour episodes of "Space: 1999". If you don't — or can't — deal with Waldenbooks, dial (800) 448-2449. Actually this "Star Trek" clone isn't that bad despite the fact that Bain and Landau are much more accomplished performers than their dialogue or delivery in "Space: 1999" indicates.

Moonbase Alpha has a mix of intergalactic hue, some 300 inhabitants who were flung into intergalactic space. They are doomed to travel through space unless they can find a planet to colonize — or until the series is canceled.

The episodes are structured with regular fades to black for commercial breaks so "Space: 1999" may very well be pilots for a canceled series. Or did I miss a season on television?

IN ANY event, for an idle hour or two, they're not bad if you're a sci-fi, space fan. In one episode, billed as "Volume 2 — Matter of Life and Death," Dr. Russell's husband, Lee (Richard Johnson), turns up mysteriously after supposedly perishing five years earlier. He warns them not to land on a nearby planet because of its anti-matter characteristics. Naturally, they ignore his advice and run into a good deal of trouble.

The music is obtrusive and phony and some of the technical details are totally unbelievable. On the other hand, the special effects, animation and story concept are all done well enough to attract attention. Unfortunately, the whole thing falls flat when the scenarists write themselves into a corner and get out of it with a completely off-the-wall, unconvincing conclusion.

The Bristols — Kelly Knapp, Kim Ernst, Michele Haber and Colleen Kelly — is making a name for themselves in Boston with two of their records reaching No. 1 on radio charts.

Bristols cook in Beantown

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

Probably, the last homecoming Kelly Knapp and Kim Ernst experienced included pom-poms, a marching band, floats and a queen getting crowned on a football field. This one promises to be different.

For one, this homecoming will be their own.

Oh, and there's a band. In fact, the pair of Livonians front it. But the only ones getting crowned will be those in the audience with some lethal doses of rock'n'roll.

Knapp and Ernst return to the area Thursday with the all-female, hard rocking outfit The Bristols. The group opens for The Replacements at Hill Auditorium.

would've pegged these 1976 graduates of Livonia Churchill High School to be doing 15 years later.

"They would be surprised," said Knapp, who is lead singer of the band.

Naturally, this begs the question: What has kept them away for so long?

Well, blame it on The Bristols. Knapp and Ernst have been busy as the band is making quite a name for itself in the Boston-area and beyond.

The group formed in 1983 as a basement punk outfit and has since evolved into a high-powered, melodic rock entity on the Boston scene. The Bristols play an engaging brand of blistering rock'n'roll that some have likened to a cross between The Rolling Stones and the Pretenders.

ALREADY, THE quartet has had two of its songs, "You're All Around" and "Soldier of Misfortune," reach No. 1 on Boston radio charts (WBCN-FM and WFNX-FM respectively). Also, The Bristols have opened for Julian Cope, The Ramones, Til Tuesday and the Del Fuegos to name a few.

Although Boston-based, some might attribute their raw rock sound to their Detroit upbringing. "I don't know," said Ernst, who is bassist and backing vocalist. "We're not as punky as the Stooges or MC-5. When we got around to (playing), it was much later and Motown was way before that."

The Detroit music scene, namely

In fact, Knapp and Ernst met up with a band at the legendary club, The Real Kids, who convinced them to load up the truck and move to Beantown.

Only Knapp had any musical experience, performing with Nikki and the Corvettes for a brief period. Knapp and Ernst met up with Michele Haber and Colleen Kelly and The Bristols were started.

"I guess we were searching for something," Ernst said. "We were out in L.A. doing extra work. We didn't like the people and we said, 'We didn't like this.'"

The Replacements map twisting musical course

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

The Replacements have never understood what it takes to please people.

That has been to their credit, and some may argue, has also been their Achilles heel.

When things were ripe for commercial success, The Replacements failed to capitalize. Case in point: The release of "Don't Tell a Soul" in 1989.

The LP wasn't the commercial smasheroo anticipated. "Don't Tell a Soul" marked a considerable detour for the Minneapolis, Minn., quartet, whose laurels were rested snugly upon snarling hard-core punk augmented with Paul Westerberg's insightful lyrics.

On "Don't Tell a Soul," the boil became a simmer, Westerberg was more reflective instead of spewing.

In essence, The Replacements had suddenly become accessible, if not commercially acceptable, but in the processes alienated some 20 of their most devoted fans.

Some accused the band of pandering to the programmers of AOR radio. Especially since the change in musical direction happened to coincide with a major record deal with Sire Records.

Two years later, The Replacements offer no apologies.

"We didn't care actually," said bassist Tommy Stinson, whose band performs Thursday at Hill Auditorium in Ann Arbor. "We just make a record and hope it does well."

"CERTAINLY, some people didn't go for it. Some people did. At that time, it seemed right."

So, in one sense, the acoustic nature of the band's latest offering "All Shook Down" offers yet another paradox to The Replacements legacy. Westerberg decided to produce the effort (with help of noted R.E.M. producer Scott Litt), seeing all 13 songs through to fruition.

REVIEWS

HOODWINKED — The Neighborhoods

For all its guitar bravado and male posturing, The Neighborhoods' "Hoodwinked" is quite humorous, although one would guess that wasn't the intention.

Why would a band dare to risk fame and fortune by releasing such a sophomore effort at such a pivotal point in its career?

Perhaps it stems from The Neighborhoods' lack of originality.

Of course, insipid lyrics, a somewhat lethargic rhythm section and repetitive (and boring) guitar solos could be easily overlooked considering the genre from which The Neighborhoods work. After all, this is hard rock we're talking about here.

But The Neighborhoods are in some serious need of HUD intervention by the judge of "Hoodwinked."

This effort is a non-stop, chainsaw guitar rock mish-mash with lyrics directed at women since left. These songs, if anything, produce some priceless lines that span the range of banal — "You were made of glass and steel/I took you home and we made a deal." ("King of Rats") — to the wretchedly funny — "In the time it takes you to do your pancake face ... another coat of paint" ("Sea of Memories").

But to truly appreciate the depth of The Neighborhoods' musical scope, there is, yes, a song about motorcycle daredevil and paragon of manly pursuit "Evil (sic) Knivel" (Knivel's first name is actually Evel).

Musically, The Neighborhoods sound like a Guns N' Roses/Aerosmith genetic experiment gone bad. The power guitar chords are excessive to the point of being excruciatingly boring. The acoustic strumming in "Love Holiday" offers a hint of tonality but disintegrates into a muddled mess of amplified fodder.

On "Hoodwinked," The Neighborhoods can take solace in one fact: Things can only get better.

— Larry O'Connor

NATIVE SONS — The JudyBats

Conventional wisdom tells us to beware of an album that is billed as "a stunning debut from a band that floats like a butterfly and hits like a bat." Sounds like someone in the Sire Records publicity office might try decaf.

"Native Son" by the JudyBats, though, is an intriguing exploration of various styles of music. This sextet from Knoxville, Tenn., somehow manages to blend cosmic new wave with mud puppy folk among other things and crafts a batch of songs that are sometime infectious if not sometimes annoying.

To their credit, the JudyBats' sound is unlike anything heard before. From the opening cut, "Native Son," it's quite apparent the JudyBats are working with a skewed vision of trying to be cosmopolitan yet quite rooted in Southern musical tradition. This in the past has led to some great music by R.E.M. and the B-52s. The JudyBats are no exception.

BUT HIPNESS can get this band in trouble. "Convalescening in Spain" starts off promising with an up tempo theme, added by some jaunty piano. Lead vocalist Jeff Heiskell breaks down into some Steely Dan-esque melancholy mid-song, ruining the rhythm.

— Larry O'Connor

REAL LIFE — Detroit Blues Band

Jim McCarty's best-known work has been with the rocking likes of Mitch Ryder and the Detroit Wheels and, later, The Rockets. He's also contributed his guitar talents to such releases as Bob Seger's "Seger VII" and Jimi Hendrix's "Nine to the Universe."

But the blues is where McCarty's heart truly lies. And there is no better indication of that than in "Real Life," the latest release by the Detroit Blues Band (Blues Factory Records).

McCarty, along with fellow guitarist Emanuel Garza, bassist "Billy" Landless and drummer "T-Bone" Walker, has put together a blues album that is gritty as a dirt top road and yet polished enough to put a military shoeshine to shame. The album features both uptempo dance numbers and some gut-bucket, backwoods blues.

"Back on My Feet Again" provides the first salvo of guitar heat, burning with high spirit and infectious dance rhythms. "My Life is Ruined" runs the opposite end of the spectrum and features some serious heartfelt guitar ache as McCarty reveals his early influences of B.B. King. "Walkin' Out the Door" is a similarly protracted blues guitar number that includes both McCarty and Garza going to the well of pain and rejection.

This is a team effort, though. Garza displays his innumerable skills as a guitarist with the Delta tinged "Scandalous Behavior" and the raucous dance number "Go Downtown." He wrote both songs.

Its diversity alone makes this album worthwhile. Its guitar pieces make "Real Life" a killer.

— Larry O'Connor

STREET SENSE

Blanket isn't bad

Dear Barbara:

My four-year-old son carries his blanket (what is left of it) with him at all times. He seems like a well-adjusted youngster in every other way.

Is it harmful to allow him to carry around his blanket piece? Should I insist that he stop? When I have tried in the past to stop him, he has become furious. Why is it comforting for him to hold pieces of cloth?

Betty

Dear Betty:

Your son is carrying his security around with him. Infants believe they are a part of their mother. They believe that they are one with her as they were in the womb. As they grow, reality sets in and the falsity of this belief becomes apparent.

The reality of their separateness is accompanied by an awareness of their weakness. If he is not one with mom, then he is just a little guy on his own. We can all understand how scary that is.

Children find different methods of coping with their anxiety. One of those methods is to impart mom's power to the blanket (or whatever is left of it). Small children typically think irrationally. If they distort reality, that's OK. When we examine the alternatives, we see that your son has made the best choice.

One alternative is to remain anxious and cling to mom. Thus, your son would be a crybaby and not much fun. The other alternative would be to deny needing mom. This, as is giving mom's power to the blanket, is a distortion of reality, but it is less adaptive.

For most people, distortions of physical reality are easier to correct than are distortions of inner reality. They are tangible and, therefore, more easily proved.

It is important for you to see that this is an adaptive measure. Your son is calming his anxiety by carrying around the blanket. Children will usually give up their "security" blankets by themselves. Either they independently stop needing them or peer pressure forces them to change the world on their own.

But it could happen that he will confound you by giving up the blanket only to take up with a teddy bear. Let him. Children should be allowed the time they need to find out that they can get along without continuously touching mother or her substitute. Each child has his or her own time schedule.

If your son has not given up his blanket or some other security device as it becomes appropriate, please write again and I will give you advice on how to separate him from them with as little trauma as possible.

Barbara

If you have a question or a comment for Barbara Schiff, a trained therapist and experienced counselor, send it to Street Sense, 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150.

The Replacements have found success of sorts, even though the group has yet to figure out what it takes to please people.

Replacements: No apology

Though acoustic, the songs are punchy and no less stinging in their commentary about life as seen through Westerberg's eyes.

"He (Westerberg) did a lot of this record to a click," Stinson said. "We (the rest of the band) just came in and started playing some things."

"I think the way the record was made he could get his ideas down the way he saw fit."

"All Shook Down" is affirmation that The Replacements have matured.

The virulent nature of albums like "Sorry Ma, Forgot to Take Out the Trash," "The Replacements Stink," "Hootenanny" and "Let It Be" revealed the work of a group that believed it was immune to the complexities of life, invincible to its pitfalls.

ROCK'N'ROLL was the answer. Even that was tenuous proposition. With limited musical experience, the outfit relied on pure guile and inspiration from newly-found friends. They practiced nightly, learning their craft from scratch.

Then an opening band for the Nervous Eaters canceled at the last minute for a show at The Rat. The Bristols made their debut.

The group started off playing a jangly '60s style with Knapp's resonant vocals leading the way. As they learned how to play their instruments, the band gravitated to the more melodic, hard-edge part of the spectrum.

"It was nothing contrived," Ernst said about the band's beginnings. "That's all we knew how to play. It's simpler music and we didn't know any better."

"That's what was really great about the punk movement. They told us, 'If you want to do it, do it.'"

Elektra thought enough of The Bristols to pay for a five-song demo. The group is still in search of a major record deal, which could be just around the corner.

Major deal or not, the songwriting collaboration and friendship between Knapp and Ernst remains solid. The two have been friends since they were 16 and both were involved in drama at Churchill.

"It's very natural," Knapp said. "I've tried to write with other people. For some reason, it's easy for us to write together."

Sci-fi and fantasy have limitless potential so it's a shame that "Space: 1999" isn't a lot better than it is.

Another kind of fantasy appeared Feb. 7 with "Babar: Barbar Returns", a 49-minute episode of the charming and much-loved children's hero now available on cassette for under $15. This 1989 television program describes Barbar's life in the city with his friend, Madam, and his return to the forest to fight the hunter.

AND FEB. 20 looks to be a major date on the video cassette release calendar so lets jump the gun and cover the crowd. MGM

A Home Video is offering four first-time on home video titles that day plus a number of repackaged and reduced-price videos of well-known films.

The four are all in black and white, unrated as was the case in the early '30s and heavy in the Oscar department. While they're not all that well known these days, there's some interesting stuff in this package.

Wallace Beery won an Oscar as best actor in "The Champ" (1931, 87 minutes). Another Oscar-winning performance is available with Norma Shearer in "The Divorcee" (1930, 83 minutes). Clark Gable stars as a crime boss but, despite his uncouth behavior, he wins Norma Shearer in "A Free Soul" (1931, 91 minutes).

ALTERNATIVE MOVIE

In one of the most exciting sequences, set on a foggy midnight near the waterfront, Cyrano single-handedly takes on 100 swordsmen. Using his hulking physique to knock them into the water like dominoes, he comes through it with only a scratch.

Not just swordplay, "Cyrano" is about the adventure of words and the beauty of his poetry comes across in almost every scene. The careful translation of author Anthony Burgess, who did all the subtitled, helps greatly.

"Cyrano" is only done in by its music, which reminds an audience too much of the countless John Williams scores of the 1980s and more recently Danny Elfman's "Batman" music. Something more unique should have been concocted for the sword play.

You'll be hearing more from "Cyrano" in the months to come. There's talk of Depardieu — who won best actor at Cannes last year — being nominated for an Academy Award this spring. "Cyrano" is also France's entry in the best foreign film category.

SCREEN SCENE

"Hollywood Musicals" (USA — 1972), 7 p.m. Feb. 11. This documentary interviews eight songwriters who brought music to the screen from the '30s and the '40s.

LIVONIA MALL, Seven Mile and Middlebelt roads, Livonia. Call 476-1166 for information. (free)

"The V.I.P.s" (Britain — 1983), 10 a.m. Feb. 12. Passengers lives intercross as they wait for a delayed flight at a London airport. With Richard Burton, Louis Jordan, Orson Welles and Elizabeth Taylor, in tribute to the popular actress.

MAPLE THEATRE, 4135 W. Maple, Birmingham. Call 855-9090 for information. ($6, $3.50 twilight)

"Vincent and Theo" (USA — 1991), call for show times. Robert Altman directed this rehash of the life of Vincent Van Gogh and his supportive brother Theo. While it often provides some new insights, it's more often long, pretentious and far from a masterpiece.

"Cyrano de Bergerac" (France — 1990). Gerard Depardieu in the role he was born to play — Edmond Rostand's master swordsman and poet, who sacrifices everything for love. An entertaining and beautiful epic.

MICHIGAN THEATRE, 16301 E. Liberty, Ann Arbor. Call 669-8397 for information. ($4.50, $3.50 students and senior citizens)

"C'est La Vie" (France — 1990), through Feb. 15 (call for show times). The latest film from Diane Kurys traces the devastating effects divorce has on a pair of young girls during summer vacation by the sea. Full of witty and insightful moments only the French seem able to capture.

"The Magician" (Sweden — 1959),

7 p.m. Feb. 12-13. Ingmar Bergman directed and Max von Sydow stars in this brooding account of a 19th century mesmerizer.

"Akira Kurosawa's Dreams" (Japan — 1990), 9:10 p.m. Feb. 14 and 7 p.m. Feb. 15. For some people, this was more of a nightmare, a crazy quilt of dream images from the great director's long and full life. The images range from beautiful (the spirits of chopped-down trees) to embarrassingly bad (castling Martin Scorsese as Van Gogh). For curious Kurosawa fans only.

MUSEUM OF AFRICAN AMERICAN HISTORY, 301 Frederick Douglass, Detroit. Call 833-9800 for information. (free)

"Go Tell It on the Mountain" (USA — 1984), 6 p.m. Feb. 13. An award-winning film based on James Baldwin's autobiographical first novel about a boy growing up in Harlem in the 1930s.

Big Bang Production will put 30 acts on stage for "Sonic Blur" 8 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 16, at the Latin Quarter in Detroit.

"We've asked people to check their egos at the door," MacLeod said. "This is a chance for them to shine."

Also, bands performing will help a charitable cause. One-third of the net proceeds will be donated to the general fund of Children's Hospital of Michigan. Admission is $8.

Each group will perform 10 minutes, roughly enough time for two or three numbers.

Two minutes will be allowed to change bands. The goal is to have five groups perform every hour.

To facilitate this, groups will use the same P.A. equipment and drum kit. Names will be drawn from a hat to pick the order of band appearance.

THE MUSICAL tag-team event is expected to be well-attended by artists and repertoire people from both major and independent labels, according to MacLeod. Industry people can expect quite a cross-sampling of Detroit rock'n'roll.

Among the various styles represented will be monster rockers 3-D Invisibles, skameisters Gangster Fun, bubble gum popsters See Dick Run and all-female punk rockers Inside Out.

Area bands on independent labels performing include Metal Blade's Junk Monkeys, 4AD's His Name is Alive and Restless Record's Elvis Hitler. Also, the bill features some of the newer faces on the Detroit music scene such as Blue Nimbus and Love Kings.

The massive undertaking was the idea of Gary Arnett, art director of Orbit Magazine, who jokes he might try for 60 bands next year.

MacLeod said response from bands wanting to participate has been tremendous. Organizers received 80 calls from people wanting to get involved, he said.

The number of bands performing on one stage is the first event of its type in this area. Gary Reichel, who has organized such bandfests for Tremor Records, will be the stage manager for "Sonic Blur."

"He knows how to run a tight show," MacLeod said. "He's going to be up there with a whip."

If they get arrested, well, it's the price to get the point across.

"I'd rather them show pictures of casualties than get my picture in the paper," Boyer said. "We want to alert people to the realities of the war."

Before his departure, Boyer checks his pockets once more. He pulls out some blood capsules.

Visual effects, he said.

Despite the slogans and the props, one wouldn't have pegged Boyer to be one of the vocal discontented. Where he was raised, where he went to school . . . those places don't breed anti-establishment types. And Boyer was the model suburbanite in his youth.

The 1979 graduate of Birmingham Seaholm High School has surprised them, though.

"My dad and I had an argument earlier today," said Boyer wearily. "He told me I was too emotional about the war."

BOYER'S IS not the rhetoric of a limousine liberal, a person whose radicalism stops when he plops into his BMW and rushes off to shop for a new fur coat for his paramour. He lives what he preaches.

His residence is the Cass Corridor, an area considered the epicenter for prostitution and poverty. He gets by on $70 a week, giving music lessons to inner-city youths.

"I guess it was moving down here and experiencing real community," said Boyer, explaining his choice of alternative lifestyle. "In the suburbs, community is lending your lawn mower to your neighbor."

"Underneath the violence and poverty, you have a real network of friends. I guess partly out of necessity, but mainly because people try to practice what they believe in."

Boyer's political activism stretches to a wide array of causes. His most visible campaign has been with the Evergreen Alliance, which fought (and still fights) the incinerator in Detroit.

He's been involved in more than 100 protest rallies and has been arrested three times before this day.

The activist is also an artist. He's guitarist and founder of The Blanks, a raucous neo-political rock'n'roll outfit with a new album "If This Had Been an Actual Emergency . . ."

BOYER IS also a playwright, recently debuting "Deer Crossing" at the Trumbull Theater in Detroit.

He pulls out a frayed copy of Arthur Miller's "Death of a Salesman" before leaving for the sit-in.

Something to read in jail, he said.

Boyer, if anything, exemplifies the '90s anti-war protester who is perhaps more educated, media savvy and, unlike their '60s compatriots, less likely to call U.S. soldiers "baby killers."

"People say we don't support the troops," Boyer said. "We do support the troops. We want them home."

Even if it means sitting crossed-legged on the floor in the Federal Building for 1½ hours.

A member of the building security informs demonstrators they can sit until 5:30 p.m. when the building closes. If they refuse to move then, they'll be arrested.

Another member of security walks by with a handful of plastic handcuffs.

"We're not going to beat them over the head or anything," said a smirking security staff member to a newspaper photographer, looking obsequiously hip in tennis shoes and jeans.

A few people stare. For the most part, though, those leaving the building as work lets out seem indifferent.

As the deadline nears, Boyer gets a little antsy. He stands up and walks around, defying security orders. He also changes the plastic lettering on the cafeteria felt menu to spell "peace."

Boyer turns and puts up two fingers to people protesting outside the building. It's not the peace sign, just the number of minutes until the building closes and they'll be arrested.

A few minutes after 5:30 p.m., the sitters are handcuffed and led away down the corridor away from photographers. Outside the group sings choruses of "We Shall Not Be Moved," which caps off a rather anticlimactic conclusion to the protest.

For his efforts, Boyer was held by police for three hours and released. He was ticketed for disobeying a lawful order. Boyer said he'll probably plead guilty.

"I thought it was successful," he said. "We reached a lot of people in the building who are only exposed to one side of the war."

BOYER SITS defiantly grasping a "cease-fire" sign with his teeth.

Security scurries about and clears the rear entrance of media. No one is allowed to enter the building.

STEVE CANTRELL/staff photographer

Bill Boyer, 29, meets with a fellow activist in a parking lot before a recent sit-in in the lobby of the Patrick A. McNamara Federal Building in Detroit to protest U.S. involvement in the Persian Gulf.

Truth and the Red, White and Blue

"It was the most incredible thing," Grady said. "I wrote a speech. I put a lot of heart into it."

"I just got up there and got so full of this confidence and I read it with all this emotion I didn't know I had."

Her immaculate dorm room is an enclave of activity. The phone continually rings as she checks out the final details.

"Is G.I. Joe out there with the flag?" she asks Kevin Glazer of Bay City, another organizer for United Students for United States.

A FEW MINUTES before 10 p.m., Grady braces against the near-zero night air in a long overcoat with a red, white and blue ribbon tied around her arm and a yellow bow on the label and trudges out to the rally site.

Only a few students have arrived at the kiosk, which has been painted red, white and blue for the event. A small blond woman goes around with a tape recorder, asking people to say some words of encouragement to be sent to the troops.

"Don't print any of the obscene chants you might hear," Grady asks.

Grady coordinates the confusion with a bullhorn in hand.

"So your brother and his platoon are on the front line of Saudi Arabia and you're coordinating letters to be sent to them? Sweet," Grady says to one of the scheduled speakers.

As the rally proceeds, Grady stirs up the crowd with some Arsenio Hall-style arm thrusts. The students, some dressed in fatigues and some in fraternity jackets, begin to chant "U.S.A., U.S.A."

BILL HANSEN

The door of Lori Grady's room at Eastern Michigan University's Goodard Hall reflects her support for the troops serving in Operation Desert Storm.

Grady puts her hand covered by a white mitten over her heart during the Pledge of Allegiance. A TV crew from WKBD-TV Channel 50 arrives and she commands the throng not to mob the cameras.

THE PATRIOTIC display is complete with heartfelt renditions of "The Star-Spangled Banner" and "God Bless America."

Speakers each take their turn, including the girl asking for people to write to the soldiers in the desert. She holds up a tape recorder so the troops can hear the cheering.

Grady grasps a small U.S. flag and listens intently.

The rally proceeds in a march around campus. Several students wave large American flags while one supporter carries an Iraqi flag with a cardboard skeleton pinned on it.

Some students poke their heads out of their dorm windows and yell encouragement to the rally. A couple question Saddam Hussein's parentage.

"We have total control tonight," Grady says, beaming as the parade snakes around the dorm halls. "Last time, we lost control."

"These are the true supporters. This is going great."

Part of that credit goes to Grady herself. In an authoritative voice belying her personality, she commands that there be no alcohol. When the line strays onto the lawn, she yells for them to get back.

If anything, the event confirms her belief that many students support the troops in the Persian Gulf. She doesn't hold any malice toward those who don't agree with her and hold anti-war rallies.

"I think they really do care, and they do support the troops in their own way," she said, "... but they're going about in the wrong way."

Art flowers in poster competition

"First Tulips," a Polaroid transfer by Dina Kawer of Huntington Woods, took the top $1,000 AAA of Michigan prize in the Detroit Institute of Arts 1991 Art and Flower poster competition.

Her entry will be used as the logo for the fourth "Art and Flowers: A Festival of Spring," to be held April 16-21. In this popular biennial project, members of the DIA's major volunteer groups work with the 7,000 members of Michigan's 250 Federated Garden Clubs in designing flower arrangements to complement works of art from the museum's permanent collection.

Kawer's design was chosen from 275 entries and her work, along with that of 17 finalists, is part of an exhibition that has been shown in Jacobson's stores. It will be at Jacobson's in Livonia through Sunday. Kawer will be there to sign the posters 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday. The exhibit will be in Detroit's New Center One Building Feb. 19 to March 3 and will close its tour at the DIA March 5 to April 21.

Kawer has said that even when she working on her degree in fine arts at Wayne State, she was interested in transfer processes such as this. She liked the virtually grainless quality of Polaroid film. When she later discovered a source for a particular Japanese handmade paper, Kozo, that gave her exactly the quality she wanted, her output and her enthusiasm increased measurably.

Her prize winning print, 3 1/4 by 4 1/4 inches was in her one-artist show at Pierce Street Gallery of Birmingham last April. "It's the only piece I can't part with, it's my personal favorite, so it was especially gratifying to have it win," she said. She can make only one print and there is no way of duplicating it.

Her work is handled in the metropolitan Detroit area by Pierce Street Gallery in Boca Raton, Fla. by Linda Hayman Gallery.

Area artists among the 17 finalists include: V. Janus Benda, Farmington Hills; Marilyn Blinder, Southfield; Marjorie Chellstorp, Farmington Hills; Bertha Cohen, Bloomfield Hills; Carole L. Hadley, Rochester; Sonia Molnar, Troy; Ruth Neuman, Birmingham; Fran Nicholson, Birmingham; and Kathleen Thompson, Farmington.

Dina Kawer's winning Polaroid transfer, "First Tulips," (above) has warm, lush shades of red, green and brown.

Watercolor by Carole L. Hadley of Rochester, one of the finalists, is titled "Bordered Iris."

"La Escencia," a black-and-white photograph by Kathleen Thompson of Farmington, was one of the finalists in the poster competition.

Cleveland Ballet schedules auditions

Cleveland San Jose Ballet has scheduled Detroit area auditions 1-2 p.m. Sunday, March 3, for three male and two female youths to appear as supernumeraries in Michigan Opera Theatre's upcoming presentation of "Coppelia" at the Masonic Temple Theatre.

Five young people will be chosen to play the very active roles of village children to altar boys. They will appear in Acts I and III clad in the colorful costumes of the company's resident designer David Guthrie.

Interested girls should be between 4 feet 4 and 4 feet 8 in height, boys between 4 feet 4 and 5 feet 7 in height. Supernumeraries need have no previous dance experience, but should be enthusiastic, disciplined and able to take direction easily.

APPLICANTS MUST telephone the MOT Production Office at 874-7850 no later than Friday, March 1, to register and for exact rehearsal and performance details.

Auditions will be conducted by Cleveland San Jose Ballet artistic director Roni Mahler and will be at the Michigan Opera Theatre administrative offices, 6519 Second Avenue in Detroit's New Center Area.

The first rehearsal will be immediately after the audition (2:30-4:30 p.m.), so those who audition should be prepared to remain until 4:30 p.m.

Cleveland San Jose Ballet will give four performances of Leo De-libes' storybook "Coppelia" with full symphony orchestra March 8-10 at the Masonic Temple Theatre in Detroit. The company's artistic director, Detroit native Dennis Nahat, choreographed the ballet.

For tickets, call the Michigan Opera Theatre ticket service office, 874-SING.

THE BALLET will have auditions for the 1991-92 season at noon Sunday, March 3, at the Masonic Temple, 500 Temple, Detroit. Nahat will conduct the auditions for both professional positions with the company and for the professional division of School of Cleveland Ballet.

The current season schedule includes performances in Cleveland, Ohio, and San Jose, Calif.

In August 1990, the 15-year-old company made its European debut performing at the Edinburgh International Festival in Scotland as the featured dance company and at the Point Theatre in Dublin, Ireland.

The company performs classical as well as contemporary works by such world-renowned choreographers as Balanchine, Limon, Tudor, deMille, Fokine, Jooss, Massine, Bournonville, Flindt, Horvath and Nahat.

Contracts for apprentice and trainee positions are available. A $10 fee will apply to all auditions. For information, call Cleveland Ballet, 216-621-2260, Ext. 2700 or 1-800-732-5651, Ext. 2700.

Singers invited to compete

The Bel Canto National Opera Competition will be Friday and Saturday, Feb. 22 and 23 at Southland, 23000 Eureka, Taylor.

The competition, sponsored in part, by Michigan Opera Theater, is for singers ages 23-35. One will be offered a chance to study this summer under the tutelage of Maestro Walter Barracchi, director of LaScala Opera House in Milan, Italy.

Suzanne Acton, music director of Michigan Opera Theater, will be one of the judges. Others are Ken Cazan, director of Opera Workshop at University of Michigan and a representative of the Bel Canto Opera Foundation of Chicago.

Interested singers must complete an application form and send an advance audition tape (at least two of the Italian repertoire) to the Bel Canto Foundation in Chicago.

For information, call Charleen Lamphear, manager of sales and marketing, Southland, 374-2807 or Becky Happle, of Michigan Opera Theater, 874-7850.

Paradigm shift initiates change

Q: Last week, you discussed the meaning of proactive. There's another word I hear a lot but don't understand and that's paradigm.

A: You're right. Paradigm is another popular word for which the dictionary won't give you a satisfactory explanation. Originally a Greek scientific word, "paradigm" today means a model, theory, perception, assumption or frame of reference. It refers to the way people "see" the world, not visually but rather the way we understand or interpret it.

People's perceptions can be divided into two categories: realities (the way things are) and values (the way we think things should be). We assume the way we see things is the way they are or the way they should be, yet this may not be the case.

Many years ago, Harvard Business School demonstrated two people can see the same thing, disagree, yet both be right. Students were asked to view a black and white drawing which, when viewed through one perspective, looks like an old woman with a big nose.

By interpreting the same picture differently, however, the nose melts into a slender chin, forming organizing

ing the outline of a glamorous young woman. This is a graphic example of the different ways people "see" life.

Our actions are derived from our attitudes and behaviors, which are based on our paradigms, or the lens through which we "see" the world. For instance, if we see a rugged-looking man menacing a well-dressed woman with a gun, we might perceive the man has ill intentions and something should be done to thwart the man's threat. This would be our paradigm.

The more bound a person is to see life only one way, the more powerful the experience is when new light is suddenly focused. This is called a "paradigm shift." For example, if the man in the forgoing scene turned out to be a plain-clothes policeman and the woman an escaped convict, our paradigm would change (shift).

Paradigms have important implications in every aspect of life, including order. The right-brain-dominant person, for instance, hardly sees clutter, while the left-brain-dominant, highly structured person may perceive clutter as totally unacceptable.

Paradigms can mean the difference between being "stuck in a rut" ("We've always done it that way") and being open to innovative strategies. Looking at problems through the eyes of others can enhance personal relationships or teamwork between corporate departments.

A paradigm shift can be an instantaneous (Aha!) or a slow and deliberate metamorphosis. It can be the willingness to step outside our comfort zone to risk changing jobs, to suddenly understand how to use a computer software program to save time, or to try a new filing system.

Builders hope for easing of regulations under Engler

By Gerald Frawley
staff writer

For the first time in a decade, builders are excited about a Michigan governor.

Despite the building boom during the 1980s — which occurred during James Blanchard's term — builders were pleased last election day when John Engler narrowly edged out Blanchard for the governor's seat.

Builders may have enjoyed incredible prosperity under Blanchard, but they also encountered no-growth/slow growth sentiment, stricter wetlands and environmental impact laws, out-of-sight property taxes, and what they saw as a cold shoulder to their concerns.

But Engler, he's their guy. A pro-business, pro-economic development governor, they argue, can only be beneficial to them.

But what of Engler? With the exception of a few nebulous statements on improving Michigan's economic environment, Engler's stand on topics of specific interest to the building industry is unclear.

"We'll need some time to determine just how good Engler's going to be for us," said Donald Pratt, president of the Michigan Association of Home Builders and president and treasurer of Wake-Pratt Enterprises in Troy, said.

Pratt said it was not so much a case of "Blanchard being bad for building as it was a case of Blanchard being unsupportive."

One would think, Pratt concluded, that a Democratic governor would be more supportive of builders who provide jobs, revenues and — most importantly — shelter. "But we never felt we had his support."

"But he (governor Engler) understands the over-regulation of our industry," Pratt said. "He seems very receptive to some of the things we need to do."

MARK WYCKOFF, president of the municipal planning firm Planning and Zoning Center Inc. in Lansing, said Engler may be receptive to private sector interests, but as governor he will also have to answer to the public interest.

Wyckoff, a consultant for several Oakland County communities seeking ways to control development, said Engler may be essentially pro-business, pro-private enterprise or even pro-development, but controlled growth proposals do not run contrary to these initiatives.

Wyckoff is a co-author of a report on existing growth management techniques and proposed legislation to better control growth in Michigan.

"I have a lousy read on the new governor," Wyckoff said. Engler has done little more than propose a budget and make a few appointments. As for identifiable positive or negative signals from Engler on development, Wyckoff said he's not certain where the next four years may lead.

Even if Engler desired to eliminate all growth controls, he couldn't do it, he said. "Just because we have a new governor doesn't mean it all gets thrown out the window."

Any changes to state law would have to pass through there first," he said. "It's not a free ride by any stretch of the imagination."

ENGLER'S BASIC philosophy of less government and lower taxes will benefit builders, just as it will benefit all private enterprises, said Engler press secretary John Truscott.

Truscott said specific Engler initiatives that ought to encourage the building industry include a reorganization of the department of natural resources separating recreation and wildlife from its environmental protection functions.

Hopefully, such a move would help to eliminate some of the bureaucracy and redundancy in the department, Truscott said. "In general, the governor believes there's too much redundancy in state government."

Another often-heard complaint from builders is that the state's wetlands preservation act is too vague.

"Governor Engler," Truscott said, "will instill consistency in the state's wetlands regulations. The problem the governor has always had with the wetlands regulations in the past is they haven't been uniform," he said. With no exacting definition, the law has been applied unevenly from case to case.

John Engler
'understands over-regulation'

BUILDER ASSOCIATION of Southeastern Michigan President James Bonadeo said builders don't expect extreme changes in the law that would free builders to develop unrestricted.

What encourages them, is that Engler appears to be a friend of development, whereas Blanchard was not, he said.

Blanchard may have sat in the governor's chair during the building boom of the mid-1980s, but he had little to do with it, Bonadeo said.

"I don't think Blanchard went out of his way to help us in the building industry."

Blanchard's lack of support for the industry resulted in an unprecedented pre-primary election endorsement by the state builder's association which usually waits until after state primaries before backing a candidate, Bonadeo said.

"Hopefully, that will leave some tender feelings (for the building industry)," Bonadeo said.

Gerald Fisher, an attorney with Kohl, Secrest, Lynch, Clark and Hampton in Farmington Hills that represents several municipalities in zoning matters, said it is premature to get either overly enthusiastic or depressed about what to expect of development under Engler.

Fisher is also a co-author of a report on Existing Growth Management Techniques and Proposed Legislation for Michigan.

"My feeling is the governor has an open mind," Fisher said, even though Engler addressed many issues developers might consider beneficial throughout his campaign.

OTHER ISSUES, like controlling urban sprawl and using existing infrastructure — roads, sewers and water — rather than building new infrastructure are likely to favor controlled growth initiatives, Fisher said.

True, builders and developers may have more of a reason to be happy with Engler because of his general inclinations, he said, "but they should also remember these are matters of public interest."

MAHB president Pratt said all builders want are fair laws that will allow them to develop their property. This does not mean unrestricted development that damages the environment or runs contrary to public interest.

Fair, consistent wetlands regulations and a more streamlined platting approval process would go a long way to speeding up — and therefore reducing costs — building projects.

Expediting the permitting and registration process at the local and state level for issues ranging from wetlands and woodlands mitigation to plat approval are making affordable housing an impossibility, Pratt said.

Moving a project from the planning to building phase can take up to three years under current regulations, Pratt said. Shortening that planning period to six months would hurt neither the community nor the project, he said.

Construction expo at Silverdome

The Construction Association of Michigan will host its annual construction expo and conference Wednesday and Thursday at the Pontiac Silverdome, marking its seventh year as the Midwest's largest show of its kind.

More than 800 exhibit spaces will cover the Silverdome's main floor and concourse area with products ranging from hand tools to heavy equipment. Show sponsors do not expect the downturn in the economy to affect attendance.

"Each year the show participation and attendance keep climbing," said James McLaughlin, show manager. "This year doesn't look like any exception to the pattern. With everyone tightening their belts, the show is more important than ever since exhibitors are trying to reach sincere buyers, and buyers are looking for bargains on construction products and services."

He predicts attendance of more than 12,000.

The show will also feature construction-related seminars taught by industry practitioners. The seminars are sponsored by CAM's educational division, the Institute for Construction Management.

Wednesday seminars are:
• The Bidding Process. The program will address bidding, plans and specifications; pre-qualification procedures; and avoiding losses through negotiation. Taught by Mike Ferber, president of Jeffsan, it will run from 1:30-4 p.m.

• Financing Alternatives for the Contractor. Issues are risk assessment; loan structure alternatives; reporting; schedules and backlog; role of a CPA; and case studies. The course will run 3:30-5 p.m. and will be taught by Michael L. Bourke of Comerica.

Thursday seminars are:
• How to Buy or Sell a Business. It will look at ways to determine real value of a business prior to selling; preparation for sale; finding buyers; negotiations; evaluating offers and financing options. It will be offered from 9 a.m. to noon and will be taught by John Engel, director of merger and acquisition services group of Plante & Moran.

• Performance and Payment Bonds: A Clear View of the Total Picture. Class examines the difficulties in getting bonding and restrictions that apply to bonding. It will also address how companies compute bonding capacity; financial reports; minimum capital and financial condition requirements; and perfecting a claim against a payment bond. The class will be taught by Sherry Vondoring, audit manager of BDO Seidman, Thomas C. Koch, account executive of the construction division of Corroon & Black of Michigan, and Marty Burnstein of Seyburn, Kahn, Ginn, Bess, Howard & Harnish. It will run from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

• Drug-free Workplace: Issues include how to comply with federal law; requirements of major owners; extent and cost of substance abuse in the construction industry and why contractors should be concerned. William F. Maloney, professor of construction engineering and management at the University of Maryland at College Park will teach the class, which will run from 1:30-4:30 p.m.

• Attacking the Cash Flow Problem. A panel discussion, the seminar will present an overview of the cash flow situation in the industry. The panel will discuss ways to improve cash flow and how to use the Michigan Lien Law as a way to insure payment. Owners, general contractors and sub-contractors will make up the panel. It will be from 1:30-3 p.m.

In anticipation of larger crowds, there will be two entrances to the show, and advanced registration available. Show hours are 1-9 p.m. Wednesday and 11 a.m. to 8 p.m. Thursday. For more information, call 567-5500.

Condos more attractive than co-ops

Robert M. Meisner

We are living in a 30-unit cooperative. A number of the residents have gotten together to consider converting to condominium. What has been your experience in the feasibility of such an endeavor and does it really result in an increase in the marketability of the units?

More and more cooperatives are considering the possibility of converting to condominiums. First, the marketability of the cooperative turned into a condominium is much greater because of the ability to obtain end financing from banks and savings and loans in connection with condominiums as opposed to cooperatives.

Secondly, as a generalization, the general public is more inclined to buy a condominium than a cooperative in most instances because of the availability of financing and a more general acceptability of condominiums in this vicinity. As far as accomplishing the task, you will need the cooperation of the cooperative members, but it can be successful with substantial economic incentive for all members of the cooperative to seriously consider the conversion process.

My unit is badly in need of what should be routine maintenance. I am experiencing strong drafts through all of my windows, even after assuring that they are fully closed. Upon close examination of the windows, I have noticed bad seals, broken latches and cracked caulking that I believe is contributing to the problem. I would take it upon myself to have the windows inspected and repaired as needed, but I fear retaliation from the association if I attempt such a move. I have written a letter directly to one of the officers addressing this issue, but it has been ignored. What action do you suggest I take?

You have not made it clear whether the association has maintenance responsibility for the windows or if you do. If in fact it is the association's responsibility, and they do not undertake to do so, you should advise the board of this fact and of the fact that you are concerned about the board not discharging its responsibilities. On the other hand, if you choose to undertake the maintenance problem yourself, it should only be done if the board allows you the opportunity to do so or if you have the obligation under the condominium documents to perform maintenance on the windows. I would not be worried about retaliation if you undertake routine maintenance, presuming that the board allows you to do so, or as previously indicated, you have an underlying obligation to do so under the documents.

I am co-owner in a cooperative and am sick and tired of some of the kids in the cooperative tearing up the grass when playing football. I have complained to the board of directors but they say that they are powerless to do anything. What can I do to deal with this situation, as I feel that my interest in the cooperative is being adversely affected by these renegade kids, primarily from other housing projects.

It is hard to tell from your question whether the board has done any investigation as to whether it can limit the playing of football on the cooperative premises. Obviously, to the extent that the kids playing on the cooperative are from other projects besides those of the cooperative, you may have a better basis to pre-suggest that you request that they provide you with a written explanation as to why they are not willing to do so.

Newly Created Opportunities In Mortgage Banking

Independence One Mortgage Corporation, a rapidly expanding subsidiary of one of Michigan's largest banking institutions, has excellent opportunities for the following mortgage banking professionals:

AREA MANAGER

Reporting to the Regional Manager, you'll be responsible for supervising Area Loan Officers and area realtor base development, and developing/expanding new business and client relationships with realtors, builders and Michigan National Bank Branches.

Requirements include 2+ years professional sales and 1-2 years professional supervisory experience, working knowledge of residential mortgage lending, loan origination, and of the secondary market and a B.A. or B.S. degree preferred.

LOAN OFFICER

Reporting to the Area Manager, you will be responsible for developing, retaining and expanding client relationships with realtors, builders and Michigan National Bank Branches, actively cross-selling other products and services of the bank, and generating new mortgage loans.

Working knowledge of Residential Mortgage Lending, Loan Origination and of the secondary market is required; a Bachelor's degree in Finance or Real Estate and 1-2 years of professional sales experience are preferred.

Operating from various locations throughout the State of Michigan, these newly created positions offer an attractive working environment, career growth potential, and excellent benefits. For consideration, please send resume to: Michigan National Corporation, Human Resources-Staffing/DL-DNA, P.O. Box 9065/10-66, Farmington Hills, MI 48333-9065.

We promote a drug-free environment. Substance abuse testing is part of the pre-employment process.

We're doing what it takes.
