Proposed Dyer cuts draw seniors' ire

By Darrell Clem
staff writer

The Wayne-Westland school board would stop paying for a senior citizens leisure program under a proposal that sparked an angry backlash Monday from 200 residents who jammed the board's meeting room.

The fiery controversy prompted the board to delay action on the proposal from board member Vicki Welty, who wants to slash $62,700 from the program based in the Dyer Center on Marquette.

"I am not against seniors. Nor have I ever been against seniors," Welty said Monday. "This is a financial issue."

Senior citizens blasted the proposal and accused the board of betraying them by promising that money for the Dyer Center program would be restored, in the wake of a voter-approved tax increase on June 10.

"We believed you," Westland resident Isabella Thompson said. "Why are you going back on that promise now?"

A severe budget crunch last year prompted the board to halt support for the program, but senior citizens paid $25 each to rescue it on a pay-to-play basis. Now they want the money restored for the program, which has a supervisor and includes such activities as ceramics, dances, card games, needlepoint and a "kitchen" band.

"YOU WANT to toss (the seniors) out like an old shoe, and I think that's wrong," local resident Bonnie Schmidt told the school board Monday, adding later, "I just don't understand how cold and callous you board members can be."

Welty, saying the school board must strive for "financial accountability," said the program appears to duplicate many services offered by the city at the nearby Friendship Center on Newburgh Road.

The Friendship Center's director is school board President Sylvia Kozorosky-Wiacek, who drew criticism Monday from some senior citizens who accused her of having a conflict of interest on the issue. (See related story.)

Senior Margaretta Frobe, who said she has paid Wayne-Westland school taxes for 50 years, was among those who said they preferred the Dyer Center over the Friendship Center.

"I think that I have earned a right to the center of my choosing," Frobe said. She also suggested the board should implement an "adopt-a-grandparent" program in which students needing tutoring could receive help at the Dyer Center.

SENIOR ALMA Sudz questioned the board's "unrelenting desire" to halt the leisure program and said, "If it is closed, there had better be a darned good reason. The money is there. We're not taking it from the students."

Senior Doris Fitchett warned of "irreparable harm to the credibility" of the school board if it decides to stop paying for the program.

Another senior, Irma Reynolds, suggested that Dyer Center programs give many seniors a focus in life that keeps them out of nursing homes.

"We speak of the will to live — the will to survive," she said.

Though virtually all of the seniors appeared to oppose Welty's proposal, several audience members — some of them younger — supported the plan.

"It is time for us to put (Kindergarten through 12th) education back on the front burner. Put the children first," said Val Wolf.

CHECK up

Concerned parents picket school offices

By Marie Chesney
staff writer

Buoyed by two small victories, parents opposed to sending Cooper students to Whittier picketed the Livonia Public Schools' administrative offices all day Monday, carrying signs with slogans such as "Read Our Lips" — No Cooper-Whittier and "This Could Be Your Kid and Your School."

The parents hope to be as successful in convincing the district to choose another school besides Whittier as they have been in getting a third test taken at Whittier and in getting a fence built around the entire Cooper school grounds.

"We're starting to get things accomplished," said Tim Gesinski, a member of CHECK, or Concerned for the Health and Environment of our Community's Kids, a parents' group formed after news of the contaminated school grounds at Cooper first surfaced in late April.

Last week, when more than 400 Cooper parents besieged Michigan Department of Natural Resources officials with questions during a five-hour-plus meeting in Westland, the DNR agreed to take a third set of tests at Whittier.

CHECK HAD urged a third, definitive test because the results of the first two tests were contradictory.

The DNR took soil samples at Whittier Tuesday; the results of the testing should be available by Aug. 23, said DNR spokeswoman Mary Vanderlaan.

Livonia school officials recently reaffirmed Cooper students would be sent to Whittier when a second set of tests taken at Whittier showed the school to be safe.

On Monday, Superintendent Joseph Marinelli said the district would "reassess the situation" if the third DNR test showed the school grounds were unsafe.

"But I don't think the test results will show anything different," Marinelli said. "There has been no tampering with the data. The health and safety of the children is our paramount concern. Children going to Whittier will be as safe as those going to any other school in Michigan."

Also at the urging of Cooper parents, 3,300 feet of fencing costing approximately $15,000 will be erected around the Cooper school

Board president takes the heat, denies 'conflict'

By Darrell Clem
staff writer

Several senior citizens lashed out Monday at school board President Sylvia Kozorosky-Wiacek, saying her separate roles as school board member and the city's senior resources director have posed a potential conflict of interest.

Kozorosky-Wiacek heads the city-funded, Westland Friendship Center on Newburgh near Marquette. She was criticized Monday for saying that a separate seniors program in the Dyer Center on Marquette near Carlson should be self-supporting, instead of receiving school district money.

"I have no conflict. I vote my conscience on what I believe is right," she said.

Lewis Fitchett, one of 200 seniors who attended a school board meeting Monday, told Kozorosky-Wiacek, "It's apparently evident to everyone here that an obvious conflict of interest exists."

Fitchett and several other seniors called on Kozorosky-Wiacek to abstain from a vote on whether the school district should stop paying for the Dyer Center senior citizens leisure program, which offers various supervised activities for the elderly. The board delayed the vote.

— Esther Remmenga

Board member Vicki Welty has proposed slashing the district's $62,700 contribution — more than half of which comes from state aid.

"I WOULD like to know why she has always been for the seniors, and why now she isn't for the Dyer Center," said Esther Remmenga, who said she and Kozorosky-Wiacek have been friends for many years.

Assessor the 2nd city director to go

By Darrell Clem
staff writer

Westland Mayor Robert Thomas, continuing "a housecleaning" in his administration, has told city assessor William Schmidt that he plans to fire him.

But Thomas, saying "we're going to make a nice, smooth transition," has decided to keep Schmidt until he finds a successor.

"I told Mr. Schmidt that he will need to look for another job," Thomas said Monday.

The mayor's remarks came one week after he fired building director Michael Cullity — a city employee of 21 years — and immediately replaced him with Robert Fritz, who had held the building director's post prior to Cullity.

Schmidt, who became city assessor in January 1989, under former Mayor Charles Griffin, did not discuss his pending dismissal at length.

"I hired in knowing that I was at the pleasure of the mayor," Schmidt said Tuesday.

Judge: Enersen can keep other children

By Darrell Clem
staff writer

An attorney's attempt to remove four other children from the custody of Westland minister Michael Enersen and his wife, Carol, failed Monday as a juvenile court judge ruled that the youngsters are not threatened with physical abuse.

Juvenile defender Rosemary Chase had sought to have the children — ranging in ages from several months to 10 years — taken from their parents until their long-term fate can be decided in a Sept. 24 trial in Wayne County Juvenile Court.

Chase argued during a court hearing Monday that one of the children, a 10-year-old girl, already has been abused and remains "frightened to death" of her parents.

The 10-year-old was one of two Enersen children who initially fled from home in March and sought help from former church associates of Michael Enersen.

Enersen remains the pastor of Westland Full Gospel Church, an Assemblies of God-affiliated church on Palmer, between Wildwood and Venoy, in the city's south end.

Judge Charles McDonald, ruling against Chase's motion Monday, said testimony that emerged during the hearing indicated no "substantial risk" of harm to the children.

The Enersens already lost custody of two children — a 16-year-old girl and a 14-year-old boy — who were born to Michael Enersen during a previous marriage. Court testimony accused the Enersens of abuse that included severe beatings with an oak paddle and human bite marks.

IN DENYING Chase's motion Monday, McDonald said the juvenile court petition to seize custody of the four younger children "deserves a full hearing" during the Sept. 24 trial.

Chase, in turn, asked for a jury trial — a motion that McDonald will decide before the trial begins.

The Enersens' attorney, David Kallman, hailed the judge's decision Monday, amid what Kallman called "wild allegations" of abuse that he said did not occur. Earlier, Kallman had accused Chase of having "a vendetta" against the Enersens.

LARRY LEWIS, an Attorney General's representative for the state Department of Social Services, backed Kallman at the hearing.

The DSS, which makes weekly unannounced visits to the Enersen home, does not believe the four children are threatened with abuse, Lewis said.

"It would be grossly unfair to the parents" to remove the children, Lewis said.

However, Chase objected to what she called the judge's "obvious bias against my clients." She also asked that the trial be transferred to another judge — a request that McDonald denied.

IN TESTIMONY Monday, a psychiatrist who evaluated the Enersens in July described them as "a family in which denial of reality appeared to be the paramount feature."

The parents "were not prepared to acknowledge that anything of a serious nature had occurred," even though they pleaded guilty in Detroit Recorder's Court, Dr. Robert Sain said.

Michael Enersen indicated that "the problems were the children and their false allegations," and he blamed the DSS and other forces "who had promulgated lies," Sain said.

Though Carol Enersen at one point told Sain there "may be a problem" in the family, she quickly became hushed after Michael Enersen grew "hostile" during the session, Sain said.

Though the psychiatrist said he doubted the four children would be physically abused — amid the intense public scrutiny of the case — he remained concerned that they will continue to suffer emotional abuse.

Sain suggested the children need "an emotional wall" between them and their parents.

But McDonald ruled that the children are not physically threatened — based on testimony from Sain and earlier statements made by the 14-year-old Enersen boy, who has said he did not see the younger children severely abused.

IN OTHER developments, the Enersens soon will be allowed to begin making supervised visits to the two older children, who have been placed in a foster home.

Authorities had initially sought to sever the parents' ties, but a later court decision will allow them to make periodic visits.

The two children's maternal grandmother, Nancy Esparza, plans to seek custody once the ongoing child abuse case has been exhausted in the courts.

grounds in early September, said Art Howell, the district's director of operations. Right now, keep out signs are posted on the property, while a fence encloses a concrete playground area.

The fencing should keep people off the school grounds during the clean-up operations. But CHECK has opposed sending their children to Whittier, across the street from Cooper, because they fear the test borings and clean-up operations could release toxic chemicals into the air for their children to breathe.

"THEY MIGHT find the levels acceptable, but our kids will be breathing it," said Sylvanne Welker, a mother of one Cooper student who picketed Monday.

Said another mother, Sheri Deskins: "Even if the Whittier site is safe, they can't guarantee it will be safe, with dusty conditions from the clean-up."

Right now, Whittier is being fixed up to house about 300 Cooper students. More than 100 Cooper parents so far have requested that their child be sent to another school.

Painting at Whittier was temporarily halted recently to take air samples, and furniture will soon be brought over from Cooper, Howell said.

Many of the parents who picketed Monday have children who have been transferred to another school.

"My heart goes out to every child who goes to Whittier," said Patricia Overalls, who has two sons going to Coolidge Elementary. "A lot of moms don't want to send their children there, but they can't drive their kids to school. We're forming car pools to help out."

WELKER, A pregnant mother of one son going to Nankin Mills Elementary, said she was picketing not only for her son but for "future generations."

"We could be dealing with this for years," Welker said.

By picketing, Peggy Roby, a mother of three children now going to Nankin Mills, said she was trying to "get the school's attention any way I can."

"We find it difficult to believe that the board can overlook 1,200 signatures from the community," Roby said.

Board proposal angers seniors

Joseph Paus of Westland said he opposed school money being spent on the Dyer Center because of what he called a duplication of services. Paus noted that he has paid school taxes here for 26 years, "and the pathetic thing about the whole thing is my son can't read and write."

IN ANOTHER development, board member Laurel Raisanen questioned whether the school board has a legal responsibility to the Dyer Center under federal guidelines. The federal government paid for the 21-year-old center.

Superintendent Dennis O'Neill said school officials are researching the legal implications.

Board member Fred Warmbler, like Welty and Kozorosky-Wiacek, said he wants the Dyer Center program to be self-supporting.

Board president gets blasted, denies a 'conflict of interest'

"Sylvia, I never beg, but please see that the Dyer Center is open," Remmenga said. "I love you, and I hope that we can still be friends."

Some residents spoke of animosity between the Friendship Center and the Dyer Center. Several said they prefer services at the Dyer Center.

In response to criticism Monday, Kozorosky-Wiacek said, "When I leave my (Friendship Center) office and sit on this (school) board, my obligation is strictly for the kids."

At one point, she asked an audience member to leave because the woman kept talking aloud, interrupting her. Kozorosky-Wiacek told the crowd that she listened to their statements for three hours, and said she should be given the same courtesy of expressing her opinions.

Kozorosky-Wiacek denied she opposes school funding for the Dyer Center because she wants more senior citizens to turn to the Friendship Center for services. She said she only wants the program to be self-supporting — like some 17 other local senior clubs.

GLANCING AT a list of Dyer Center participants, Kozorosky-Wiacek noted that about two-thirds of the 200 seniors either don't pay school taxes or already belong to the Friendship Center.

In urging the seniors to wean the program from school funding, Kozorosky-Wiacek countered claims by some board members, such as Kathleen Chorbagan, that the Dyer Center would shut down without school district financial support.

Responding to personal attacks from some seniors, Kozorosky-Wiacek defended her extensive background as a senior citizens advocate. She stressed that she started a local seniors organization 21 years ago in her home — and has worked since then to expand services.

This hospital was home to 1,500 employees for many years before the county sold it in 1984.

Warm memories served at hospital staff picnic

By Leonard Poger
staff writer

For most local families, the aqua-blue Wayne County General Hospital on Merriman near Palmer represented memories of emergency room visits and flu shots.

They also remember the long-term care and psychiatric facilities in the adjacent complex known for 150 years as "Eloise."

At its peak, the health care complex had about 8,000 patients, 1,500 employees, fire department, power house, post office and its own ZIP code.

But that part of suburban history was substantially changed in 1984 when Wayne County Executive William Lucas was successful in selling the deficit-plagued facility to four health care corporations.

The new name was Westland Medical Center. Two years ago, the building was bought by Oakwood Health Services Corp. which renamed it Annapolis Hospital/Westland Center. Currently, it is used as a facility for "psychiatric and substance abuse patients as well as a medical clinic."

For many people, the former county hospital was just a memory.

BUT FOR others, it was a career, a job and a "family which felt like it was home" to them.

Those convened Saturday for the first summer picnic reunion of the former county hospital employees.

They talked about the "close knit employees, the camaraderie and the friendliness" of the work force.

They also recalled jogging in the tunnel connecting the hospital with N building, which housed long-term care patients.

One employee, Fran Sanders of Dearborn Heights, was even married in the general hospital's chapel 18 years ago.

Sanders, who worked at the hospital for 20 years before it was sold in 1984, recalled fondly the memories of being the head nurse in the emergency room, which then was the only major trauma center for western Wayne County.

"We had all the stabbings and shootings and provided standby service at Metro Airport when the president and vice president flew in," she recalled.

A specially made T-shirt was created for David Cavell, 42, when he left seven years ago to symbolize her frequent running in the tunnel connecting the hospital with N building.

The T-shirt contained the message: "WCGH Tunnel Runner 1969-84."

Cavell, who worked in the hospital's assistant patients account director, now is the director of patient accounts and data processing at Saline Community Hospital in Washtenaw County.

NANCY ROWLES, a Garden City resident and a member of the committee which planned the picnic, made a career change after working 17 years at the hospital. Rowles, now 50, began at the hospital as secretary to the pediatrics department director and moved to admitting manager when the hospital closed.

"People enjoyed the type of work they were doing in health care and had great participation in hospital outings," recalled Rowles, 50. She is now assistant to the sales and marketing manager for Wavemat Co. of Plymouth, which makes industrial microwave processing equipment.

Rowles said that there was an "deep sadness" by employees when the impending closing was debated publicly for more than a year.

There was a concern not only for their own jobs and futures, but also for the many Medicaid and elderly patients who had never known a care center other than Wayne County General.

At the picnic, Joe Slezak, a former hospital firefighter who was known as the hospital's "unofficial poet," recalled that many patients were transferred to other facilities and would occasionally return to walk around the grounds known as their "home" and visit with firefighters.

Slezak now owns his own company, Genesis, creating glass designs.

Recalling the mental patients, several former workers said that employees affectionally referred to them as "P.O.G.I.E.s", an acronym for "poor old gentlemen in Eloise."

ONE FORMER employee is Chris Kozma, 39, of Westland who worked at hospital for 10 years as a respiratory therapist. His "career" at the hospital began earlier when he was a Wayne Memorial High School student who did volunteer work. Kozma is now a salesman for Fordson Health Care, handling medical equipment such as hospital beds, oxygen supplies, and wheelchairs.

Others, including Denny Abraham,

46, of Redford Township; Simonne Lada, 69, of Wayne, and Calvin Sallor, 53, of Inkster, also commented in separate interviews of the sadness felt by employees when the hospital closed.

The former workers had two winter reunions in recent years but Saturday's gettogether was the first summer picnic.

One even came from Florida to share hospital memories, Rowles said. "The most often heard comment (Saturday) was 'let's do it again!'" she said.

Former employees are already holding meetings in such faraway places as Florida, Arizona and northern Michigan.

The next local reunion will be Dec. 10 at the Old Country Buffet restaurant, Wayne Road at Hunter, Westland.

David Cavell, accompanied by daughter Kara, 10, sported a T-shirt given him by co-workers when Wayne County General Hospital closed seven years ago.

Michigan Avenue drivers knew this building as a long-term facility for medical and psychiatric patients.

Music boosters selling linens, tools

It will sell linens and tools at discounted prices in the school cafeteria on Marquette west of Wayne Road. The sale will be 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. both days.

More than 75 tables of merchandise direct from the mill will be available. Sheets, pillow cases, hand towels, bath towels, washcloths, ironing board covers, blankets and tablecloths are just a few examples of what is to be offered, a group representative said.

Linens will be sold at 25 to 60 percent under retail prices and will feature name brand, fully warranted merchandise, the group said.

COMPLETE BATHROOM, bedroom, dining room and kitchen items will be available, as well as curtain panels and area rugs, the group said. Household tools will also be for sale.

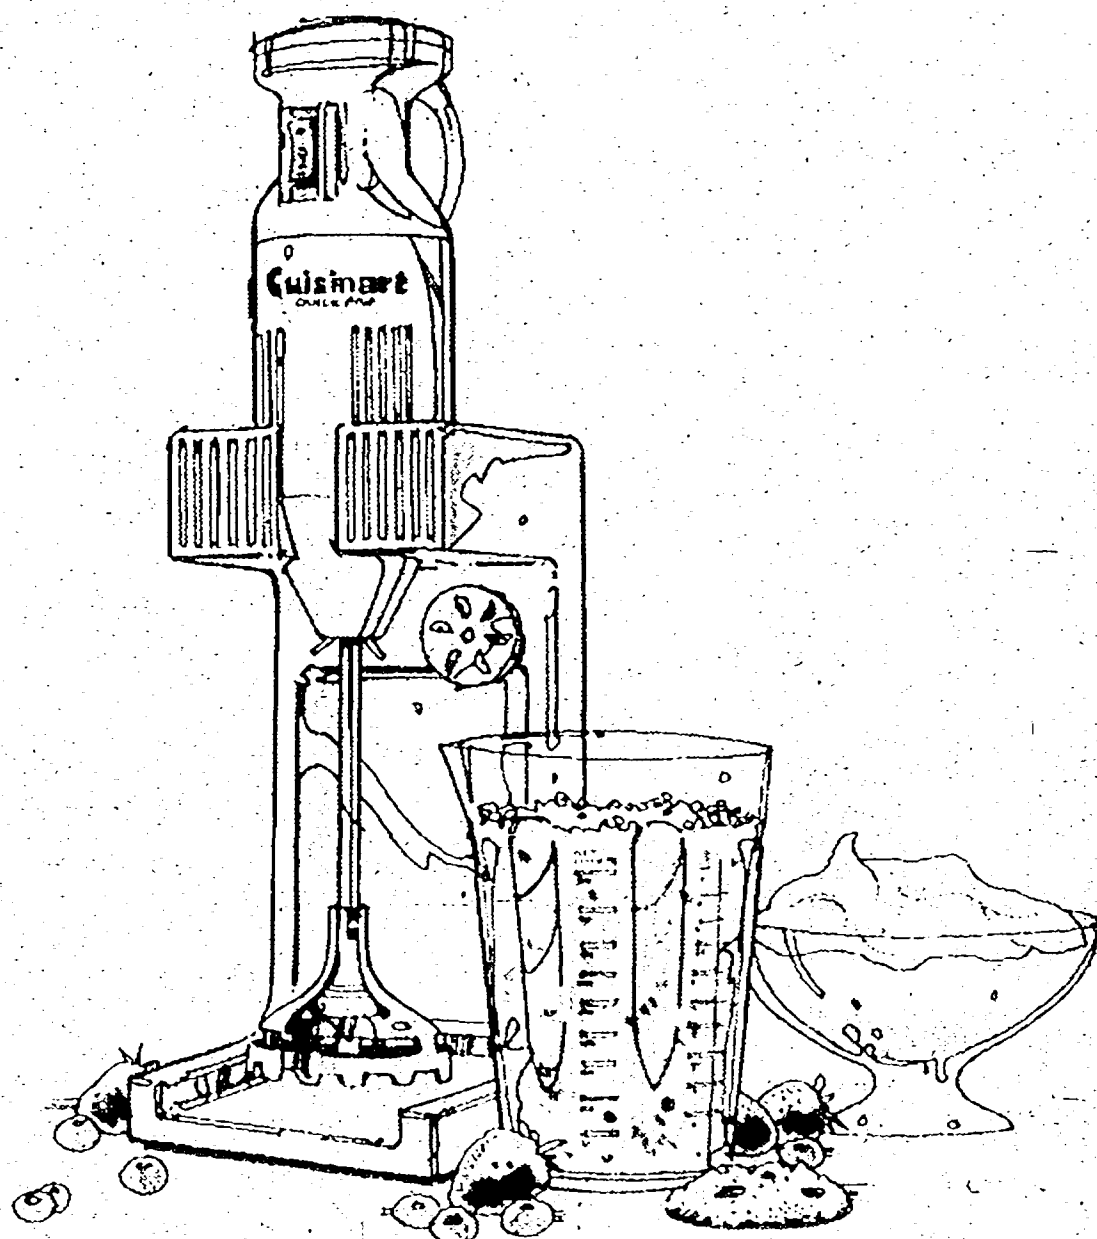

A raffle featuring four prize packages of linens will also take place. The drawing will be at 8 p.m. Friday in the cafeteria.

Those buying raffle tickets will have their choice of the prize package they wish to win. Winners aren't required to be present. All proceeds will go to the school's band and orchestra programs.

THE CLUB is sponsoring the fund-raiser to support the school's music program.

In past years the boosters have provided financing of music and leadership scholarships to the University of Wisconsin, financed band and color guard invitations and hosted an annual halftime review of area high school bands.

Show tunes are planned for free concert

Phil Gram and his "Gramtet" are coming to the Westland Meeting House on Sunday, with a mix of show tunes, old standards and highlights from the Big Band era.

The Gramtet is looking at a variety of music to play at the Sunday concert.

"We'll be paying tribute to Glenn Miller, Dorsey, Kenton — all the Big Band greats — and tell us what Broadway show scores you like and we can probably play a selection," Gram said.

THE FREE concert, part of the Westland Cultural Society's Concerts-in-the-Park Series, is sponsored by ReAmerica — Chuck Pickering, broker.

The Westland Meeting House is on Marquette between Wayne Road and Newburgh. Patrons are asked to bring their own lawn chairs.

The next concert will be Sunday, Aug. 25, at the Westland YMCA, on Wayne Road south of Cherry Hill, when Dean Stacey's popular country/western band, WACO, makes its second appearance in this series season. The concert is sponsored by the Y. Patrons are asked to bring their own lawn chairs.

Concerts begin at 6 p.m. For information, call 522-3918 or contact the Bailey Center.

GRAM, THE band leader and drummer, has a long history of musical accomplishments, beginning with a play date at the renowned Eastwood Gardens, following Tommy Dorsey. They were popular enough to carry the engagement over for another two weeks.

Later, they played a smaller room at the Gardens for three months.

The other members of the sextet (called a "Gramtet," Gram said, because he never knows from one performance to another how many members will be playing) have all made their marks in the music world.

KATHY LOCKE, vocalist, has recorded for the Mercury, Dot and United Artists labels. She has been known to sing like Patsy Cline, as well as the female jazz greats.

Gerry Gravelle, the saxophonist, is also a well-known commercial songwriter — that is, a writer of songs for commercials. He came up with the familiar "Let's Go Krogering" tune in the 1950s. It was Gravelle who was responsible for the pep song, "Go Get 'Em, Tigers."

Bob Lympers, who plays the trumpet and flugelhorn, was formerly with the Stan Kenton Band.

Bob Hawkins, on piano and keyboard, was the long-time house pianist for the Fisher Theatre and is sought after for his stage production work.

"Bob knows more tunes than any piano player in town," Gram said.

Rich Kowaleski, the bass player, plays background for several recording groups and individuals when they record in the area. His repertoire runs the gamut from Dixieland to classics.

Local tap dancer wins 'Little Miss' talent title

Jillian Herrick of Westland is continuing to collect talent awards.

The most recent was the "North America's Little Miss Talent 1991," won at the 17th annual North American Modeling and Talent convention, held in Grenelefe, Fla.

The title was won after she earlier received local, state and national honors.

At the Florida event, Jillian, 9, attended workshops and was judged in the performing arts competition by celebrities and nationally known modeling agencies.

Her solo tap dancing to "Neutron Dance" won her the latest talent title.

Jillian is an honor student at Nankin Mills Elementary School in Westland, the daughter of Don and Peggy Herrick, active in the theater and a student at the Robert Lee School of Dance in Garden City. Her dream is to appear on TV's "Star Search" and meet the "Full House" stars.

She will do numerous appearances and performances with her new national title. The next performance will be in the Michigan State Fair parade on Aug. 23.

Assessor the 2nd city director to get boot

1989, Schmidt had worked as an assistant equalization director for Eaton County for 6½ years.

In deciding to oust Schmidt, Thomas gave reasons virtually identical to those he cited for firing Cullity.

"THIS JUST didn't seem to be working out," the mayor said, referring to Schmidt's job as city assessor. "I was just not happy with some things in the department. If I'm guilty of anything, I'm guilty of requiring an awful lot of my directors."

The mayor has not set a target date for replacing Schmidt. He said only that the transition will occur "between now and the end of the year."

After firing Cullity, Thomas had warned that other department heads would be ousted amid what he called an administrative "housecleaning."

Thomas has not revealed the exact number of department heads he plans to fire.

His choice of Fritz to replace Cullity as building director came as a surprise because the mayor had fired Fritz as part of an earlier administrative shake-up when he assumed the mayoral post in January 1990.

Fund-raiser to aid cancer patient

Need a little shaping up? You can do that and help cancer patient Sandy Rager at aerobic and toning classes offered by the Fitness Factory at five locations in Wayne and Oakland counties next week.

Reach Out to Fight Cancer Committee is attempting to raise $170,000 for a life-saving bone marrow transplant for the 43-year-old Rager.

The Fitness Factory will offer the classes with free babysitting for a $5 minimum donation with all proceeds going to the Reach Out to Fight Cancer Committee.

The classes will be offered at Holy Cross Lutheran Church, Six Mile between Middlebelt and Haggerty, 6-9 p.m. Tuesday and Thursday, Aug. 20 and 22; the Church of Our Savior, Five Mile west of Newburgh Road, 9-11 a.m. Tuesday and Thursday, Aug. 20 and 22; the Piedmontese Building, Nine Mile Road between Halstead and Haggerty, 9-11 a.m. Monday-Friday, Aug. 19-23; Novi Parks and Recreation Building, 10 Mile west of Novi Road, 6-8 p.m. Monday and Wednesday, Aug. 19 and 21; and the Canfield Center, Beech Daly, between Ford and Cherry Hill roads, 6-7:15 p.m. Tuesday and Thursday, Aug. 20 and 22. (Babysitting will not be available at the Canfield Center.)

A resident of Huntington Woods and a member of Holy Cross Lutheran Church in Livonia, Rager was diagnosed as having breast cancer in June 1990. In spite of surgery, chemotherapy and radiation treatment, more aggressive treatment was begun this year when more cancer was found.

Her doctors are urging a bone marrow transplant in which part of her marrow is removed and saved while she is given very high doses of chemotherapy. The bone marrow is then returned to the body to regenerate her body's immune system.

For more information about the classes, call 353-2885.

Local hospice groups seek volunteers

their families. Hospice volunteers provide hands-on care, companionship and emotional support.

Both lay workers and health care professionals are needed by Angela Hospice. The eight-week volunteer training will be noon to 3 p.m. Tuesdays, beginning Sept. 10.

Angela Hospice also needs help with fund-raising activities. For more information, call 591-5157.

Hospice Services of Western Wayne County will offer two training sessions — evenings beginning Sept. 17 and days beginning Sept. 19 — for both lay workers and health care professionals.

For more information, call Hospice Services at 522-4244.

SEMCOC says urban sprawl will diminish quality of life here

By Tim Richard
Staff Writer

Local public officials will get their first look Friday at a regional report blaming "urban sprawl" on racial bias, fragmented local government, federal policies and heavy property taxes.

The Southeast Michigan Council of Governments' executive committee will see the result of a year-long study when it meets at 2 p.m. in the historic Botsford Inn in Farmington Hills.

The staff-written report stops short of making any recommendations — such as regional government — but growing numbers of politicians now view regionalism favorably as a result of a half-dozen meetings over the last year.

THE CULPRIT is "urban sprawl" — the eating up 40 percent more land, including farms and woods, to serve a 6 percent population growth over the next 20 years.

The flip side of that coin is abandonment of older cities, with their underused streets and utilities, and isolation of poorer populations.

The SEMCOG study will be outlined by Marilyn Gosling, an Oakland County commissioner from Bloomfield Hills; E.A. Jackson Morris, supervisor of Pittsfield Township in Washtenaw County; and Ed Hustoles, planning chief of the seven-county agency.

The study says wasteful land use will continue the next 20 years — and everyone's quality of life will deteriorate — unless current policies are changed.

CAUSES OF urban sprawl, the SEMCOG report concludes, are many:

- Racial bias — worst of any region in the U.S. It will block the assimilation of an increasingly diverse population.

- Overbuilt water and sewer lines. They created a need for more development to pay off bond issues.

- The perception of environmental degradation in older areas.

- Low-density housing. "The large lot/large house combination yields higher property taxes" but eats up land faster than the population grows.

- Growth of service and research industries. They prefer "green field sites on the fringe" of the region.

- Public subsidies in suburbia of mortgages, water and sewer lines, and roads, aggravated by tax abatements.

- "Fiscalized" land use decisions. "Land is zoned only for its fiscal potential (profits and property taxes) rather than for its best use."

- Over-reliance on property taxes by local government. Local units make zoning decisions primarily to generate property tax revenue.

- Fragmented local government. More than 200 units make home rule decisions "that are individually in the best interests of local communities even while they often constitute, in the aggregate, a pattern of disjointed development."

REDUCE YOUR CHANCES OF GETTING HEART DISEASE, KIDNEY DISEASE OR GOING BLIND.

Obesity can start a chain reaction to poor health that can be devastating.

To begin with, most physicians and researchers consider obesity to be the major cause of diabetes in adults. Up to 90% of adults diagnosed as having diabetes, in fact, are overweight.

Of course, once you have diabetes your chances of developing heart disease, kidney disease, or going blind increase dramatically.

As a person with diabetes you'll be twice as prone to heart disease. 17 times as prone to kidney disease. And 25 times as prone to blindness, if you are insulin-dependent.

Diabetes, in fact, can shorten your life expectancy by one-third.

Fortunately, diabetes in adults, in most cases, can be prevented with careful weight control, healthy eating habits, and regular exercise.

So if you're overweight, doesn't it make sense to take off the extra weight?

Instead of years off your life?

Dems, GOP concentrating on '92 state races

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

Even if there were no presidential election next year, local Republicans and Democrats would be busy.

In fact, the presidential election may take a backseat to state House races for the faithful in both parties and both Wayne and Oakland counties.

With redistricting on its way, Republicans are scrambling to grab as many House seats as they can. Likewise, Democrats are fighting to hang on to their advantage.

With no gubernatorial or U.S. Senate race on the general election ballot, for the first time since 1980, substantial money could be freed up for House campaigns.

Heading into reapportionment with a Republican state Senate, governor and, potentially, state House — and with the current lack of a magnetic Democratic presidential challenger — area Republicans can't believe their good luck.

"TAKING CONTROL of the state House is definitely a goal," said Jim LaVallee, executive director of the Oakland County Republican Party. "And while we're going to be helping President Bush, it looks like we're going to have a lot of time to put into local elections."

Harry Greenleaf, leader of one of Wayne County's largest GOP groups, agreed that 1992 is looking like a Republican year, particularly if a strong Democratic presidential challenger falls to emerge.

"That would be very, very helpful," Greenleaf said.

But Greenleaf, leader of the Livonia/Plymouth-based 2nd Congressional district GOP organization, said redistricting, not the presidential race, remained the utmost concern for local party activists.

"That's the biggest thing that's going to be happening to all of us, and there's no telling how it will work out," he said.

Democrats are trying to make the best of what appears a bad situation.

"We're trying to take lemons and make lemonade," said western Wayne County party leader Richard McKnight.

McKnight, leader of the Westland/Garden City-based 15th Congressional District organization, said some bright spots are emerging.

"It does give us the chance to step back and set some goals as a party," he said. "Normally, we've already split up into factions supporting one presidential candidate or another. This could give us the chance to define where we stand as a party."

"What we're doing is trying to rebuild the base of the party," said Darlene Berent, executive director Oakland County Democratic Party. "We came out 21 months in advance last time and didn't do that well. Maybe there's an advantage in waiting until Jan. 1."

Western Wayne seats, McKnight said, appear unlikely to change hands — at least for now.

"I'd say Justine Barnes (D-Westland) is pretty safe unless there's a major redistricting, the same for Lyn Bankes (R-Livonia)," McKnight said. "But William Keith (D-Garden City) could see some changes in his district."

In Oakland County, Democrats are looking at the West Bloomfield-area seat held by first term legislator Barbara Dobb.

"We're seeing a lot more Democratic votes coming out of West Bloomfield and that's an encouraging sign," Berent said.

Then, too, the apparent Republican advantage could be gone by the time November 1992 rolls around.

"There's a lot of issues that could happen to change the political landscape," McKnight said.

Not the least of them is abortion.

Though a pro-choice Republican made a surprisingly strong showing in a western Wayne special House primary this summer, the issue could be even bigger for Oakland Republicans.

"IT'S OUR hot issue, no question," LaVallee said. "We have people representing both views."

There, too, the presidential race could influence local politics. President Bush's apparent strength with votes makes an in-party challenge unlikely, LaVallee said.

"The prospect of a Robertson-style challenge isn't that great this time, President Bush's strength scares off challengers," LaVallee said, referring to the 1998 challenge to the state party hierarchy posed by supporters of televangelist Pat Robertson. "But in 1994, anything could happen."

On that, Democrat Berent agrees. "In 1994 we'll be putting on a charge to retake the state Senate, plus there will be a governor's race," she said. "By then, things could change completely."

Levin: Presidential field will grow

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

Never mind the pundits, Sen. Carl Levin said, when the campaign season starts, there will be plenty of Democratic presidential contenders.

The lack of announced Democratic candidates has caused speculation among political columnists — and worry among many Democrats.

So far only ex-Massachusetts senator Paul Tsongas has announced, with rumored candidates Richard Gephardt and Jay Rockefeller already out of the race and other big names on the fence.

Levin, in town this week for visits with constituents, said he's already talked to several colleagues he believes are on the verge of declaring candidacies.

"Harkin is very likely, Clinton and Bumpers are likely, Gore is 50/50 and as for Cuomo, I haven't talked to him," Levin said, referring to Iowa Sen. Tom Harkin, Arkansas Gov. Bill Clinton and Sen. Dale Bumpers, Tennessee Sen. Albert Gore and New York Gov. Mario Cuomo.

Levin discounted one recent rumor — Democrats would draft a platform first, then hand pick a candidate to carry the message to voters — predicting a typically competitive campaign.

"I THINK we'll beat up on each other in Iowa and New Hampshire," he said, referring to the first state party caucus and primary. "We owe the voters that."

Health care, education, the environment and economic issues should dominate the campaign, Levin said.

"We've got to address what people care about," he said.

The three-term senator said he sees a "growing consensus" for national health care.

"It has to be a system that's efficient and one that contains a significant element of choice, letting people pick their own doctor," Levin said. "Right now, we have the most expensive health care system in the world, but statistics show it's not the best."

Redirecting U.S. trade policy should be another campaign goal, Levin said.

"We have a terribly weak policy on trade," he said. "We've got to start treating other countries like they treat us."

On other issues:

• Levin said he hasn't made up his mind on whether to confirm U.S. Supreme Court nominee Clarence Thomas.

• Now that the Gulf War is over and Warsaw Pact is history, Levin said, the U.S. should begin reducing its number of military personnel.

"We're keeping our numbers artificially high," Levin said. "The first step is to slow down recruiting."

• Levin pledged to "do whatever he could" to keep the Detroit Tigers baseball team in Detroit.

"I give (Edward) McNamara a lot of credit," Levin said, referring to the county executive's plans for a county-financed stadium. "He's taken a tough stand, a very difficult stand."

District to review language arts first

By Leonard Poger
staff writer

Language arts changes will get a top priority in the review of the Wayne-Westland school district's curriculum, the school board was told Aug. 5.

School administrators, in updating the board of education on state-required school improvement plans, said language arts will be examined first in a review of the core curriculum.

The district will look at a state language arts model and later make a recommendation to the faculty this fall, said Mary Ellen Tindall, project consultant in the district's general education department.

Using the same process, the administration will then review and update the math curriculum, she said.

Having a core curriculum is one of four major requirements of Public Act 25, approved by the legislature last year to improve the quality of education throughout the state.

Tindall and Barbara Skone, her co-project consultant, briefed the board on what the administration has done in the past year and its plans for the near future.

Skone said that four districtwide education improvement teams are active in the areas of transition, core curriculum, assessment and development of improvement plans for each school building.

Included in the district is most of Westland and part of Canton Township.

Under building improvement plans, the district intends to develop a three-year plan for each building.

with the focus to be on improved student achievement, Skone said.

ONE ACTIVITY will be staff development, having teachers learn more on learning styles, cooperative learning and instructional strategies.

In the administration building teams, topics to be discussed will be understanding change, "strategic planning, problem solving and group interaction skills."

Under a vision statement adopted last spring by the district's transition team, the district said it is "committed to achieving excellence in teaching and learning while striving to create an educational community of children, parents, citizens and school employees united in support of this goal."

Tindall said a district mission statement, which is more defined than a vision statement, calls for the preparation of local students "to be positive, contributing members in a changing society" and that the district "must generate a climate for change where educators, students, parents and the community work cooperatively in the subsequent restructuring process."

In May, the administration circulated an annual report, also required under the new state law, telling parents what is planned for their schools.

Copies of each school's report are available at the individual buildings and the administrative offices. The reports listed the district's philosophy statement, and information on curriculum, dropout rates and accreditation of the district's two high schools.

Calling back Board recalls 35 more school staffers

staff writer

The Wayne-Westland school board, continuing to recall workers laid off amid an earlier budget crunch, voted Monday to renew contracts for 32 more teachers and three aides.

The board already had called back 142 employees — a majority of them teachers — in an effort to restore school programs that had been slashed or threatened due to a district budget crisis.

The board has steadily recalled workers since school district voters approved a 7.75-mill tax increase in the June 10 election — a move that erased earlier fears of massive program and job cuts.

Monday's action resulted in the school board renewing contracts for 32 teachers and three paraprofessionals who work in such programs as Head Start. With little discussion, the seven-member board approved the positions in a unanimous vote.

Some district employees had been laid off for several years, according to school officials.

The latest move sets the stage for a full instructional program for the 1991-92 school year. Cuts proposed earlier had threatened programs ranging from marching band to elementary arts.

The board also is preparing to restore a six-hour day to the district's junior high schools. Previous cuts last year had reduced the junior high instructional day to five hours.

In other developments, the board postponed a decision on calling back an executive secretary of business services until the board can conduct a study session to discuss the position.

Some board members have said they want to carefully examine the need for some positions before they are filled.

Fire muster, events scheduled

An old-time fire muster will be conducted Saturday by the Westland Firefighters Association public awareness committee and the city's 25th anniversary committee.

Featured will be a firefighters waterball contest, field day and display of antique fire equipment 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. in Central City Park, on the south side of Ford Road.

Waging war Teacher tackles waste issues

By Mary Rodrigue
staff writer

Harold Stokes acquaintance with environmental issues stretches back decades before the rest of the nation caught up.

"It was the early '50s. We were a young struggling couple. I never drank alcohol or smoked, but we lived on canned foods and baked goods," he said. "At 38 years of age, I felt weak. I was concerned about how I would feel at 40."

After reading literature on nutrition and organic gardening, Stokes, a math and chemistry instructor at Henry Ford Community College, prodded his wife into changing the family diet for one month.

With the elimination of salt, sugar and white flour, Stokes saw his family transformed. Perhaps most the most dramatic change was noticed in his preschool age daughter, who went from listless to spunky. Stokes became a convert to a new way of thinking.

"I'm very concerned about the future of our children and the condition we're leaving our planet in," he said.

At 67, Stokes, who lives in Redford Township, is passionately involved with environmental issues. He sits on the Redford Township Solid Waste Disposal Committee and is Michigan liaison (through Clean Water Action) with the National War on Waste.

Locally, War on Waste is a coalition of 40 environmental groups across the state lobbying Congress to amend the national waste law, the Resource Conservation and Recovery Act (RCRA).

What prompted his civic activism was the building of the Detroit Incinerator in 1986. He is committed to making the public more aware of environmental issues.

The Michigan coalition is working with 450 groups nationally to pass legislation promoting reduction of toxic use, overall waste reduction and recycling and imposing a national freeze on the construction of garbage incinerators and hazardous waste landfills and incinerators.

War on Waste is organized in Michigan by Clean Water Action, Ecology Center of Ann Arbor and Greenpeace.

"Michigan is important to the national war on waste because we can show the worst and best in trash policy," Stokes said. "The worst is the Detroit incinerator which will end up costing well over $1 billion to send tons of toxic emissions into the air and into landfills of the U.S. and Canada while wasting valuable materials that should be recovered from trash."

"The best is that Michigan has led the way with the best bottle deposit law in the nation and a growing participation in recycling programs."

RCRA, which is up for reauthorization in Congress this year, has coalition members lobbying politicians. U.S. Rep. John Dingell's, D-Trenton, House Energy and Commerce committee will begin deliberations later this year.

War on Waste believes strong federal policy is needed to force Michigan and other states into a greater commitment to toxic waste reduction.

"RCRA doesn't ensure genuine protection of health in the environment. There's no hazardous waste reduction or elimination of highly toxic chemicals that result in the most dangerous waste," said Stokes.

"The RCRA doesn't reduce garbage by requiring aggressive recycling and composting or by banning unnecessary packaging and other single use materials."

"It has become clear that prevention at the source is the only answer to the contamination caused by all kinds of waste."

"We must put resource conservation into the RCRA to protect health and the environment. The law must be overhauled to emphasize pollution prevention, not pollution management."

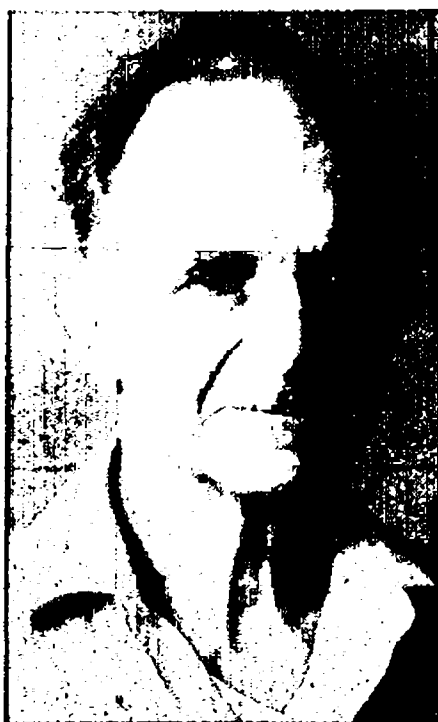

Legislation is already being developed as a result of the coalition. U.S. Rep. Garry Sikorski, D-Minnesota, has sponsored a toxic waste reduction bill, which has 28 co-sponsors.

Michigan's War on Waste has opened a dialogue with Dingell, while targeting other Michigan congressmen for the August recess.

War on Waste was formed last fall because of the RCRA reauthorization and the lack of restraint on polluters.

"We're at a crossroads," added Charles Griffith, of the Ecology Center of Ann Arbor, which is helping coordinate the campaign in Michigan.

"We either continue to force communities to accept landfills and incinerators which poison our citizens or we usher in a new era of toxic use reduction."

Harold Stokes, a Redford resident and Henry Ford Community College instructor, has been active in environmental issues for four decades. He's now involved with a group fighting the creation and disposal of toxic waste.

Michigan currently has 2,800 identified hazardous waste sites. As underground fuel storage tanks are discovered, Stokes expects that number to increase to 6,000.

"By mixing, burying or incinerating trash, we make waste," Stokes said.

"Those are concentrated materials that should be recovered. It's irresponsible not to. When we don't we're robbing future generations of their youth."

For more information on War on Waste, call Harold Stokes at 53-EARTH or Charles Griffith at 663-2400.

Group aims to rid U.S. of toxic waste

War on Waste has developed a platform for a toxic free America. Here are some of the highlights.

- Stop the unsafe disposal of garbage. This would be accomplished through a 10-year moratorium on garbage incinerators, regulating ash from existing incinerators, prohibiting the use of ash in construction, banning the incineration of certain toxins and establishing a moratorium on new medical waste incinerators.

- Reduce the generation of garbage and maximize recycling of municipal solid waste. This would be accomplished by reducing the use of plastics and phasing out Styrofoam, reducing the use of disposable products, achieving 75 percent recycling of municipal waste by the year 2000, reducing packaging and promoting recycling.

- Stop the unsafe disposal of hazardous waste. Again, a 10-year moratorium on new hazardous waste incinerators and land disposal facilities is urged. Also, a stop to "sham recycling" of hazardous waste, and placing a moratorium on new deep well injection of hazardous waste and halting unsafe practices at existing facilities.

- Reduce the use of toxic chemicals. Ban the most hazardous substances. Reduce the use of all toxic chemicals and the generation of associated wastes. Ensure the use of safe alternatives. Increase citizens rights to protect their communities from toxins. Give citizens the right to participate in negotiations between government and industry.

- Ensure a smooth transition to clean technologies and a sustainable economy. Use federal and state gov-

The platform espoused by War on Waste includes stopping the unsafe disposal of garbage and reducing garbage generation, boosting both recycling and local control.

- government purchasing policies to create markets for environmentally sound products. Provide technical and financial assistance to small businesses and troubled industries to help them reduce toxins. Provide financial assistance for community based recycling. Stimulate the development of alternative technologies.

- Require the federal government including the military to comply with all environmental laws.

- Ensure adequate enforcement of environmental laws. Hold company officials accountable for environmental offenses. Prevent large companies from controlling the waste management industry.

- Preserve the rights of state and local governments to protect their communities from toxic pollution. Make sure there is no federal preemption of stronger state and local environmental laws. Ensure the states rights to ban the import of wastes.

- Prevent the export of waste and hazardous industrial practices to other nations.

Childhood diseases get research money

Research into childhood diseases received an $8 million federal boost at Children's Hospital of Michigan.

Heart disorders, epilepsy and schizophrenic disorders are among the child health problems that can be studied with a Positron Emission Tomography scan project. It's the first of its kind dedicated to the specialized needs of infants and young children.

"With this new PET scan technology, medical specialists will be able to explore new frontiers of science and develop new methodologies of treatment as well as diagnose difficult problems in pediatric patients," said U.S. Rep. Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth, a House Appropriations Committee member.

CHILDREN'S Hospital, in the Detroit Medical Center, is the pediatric medical education center for Wayne State University School of Medicine.

Hospital President Thomas M. Rozek said, "Children under 15 years of age represent 25 percent of the country's total population. Yet most of the development and application of new technologies in the field of health care have been incredibly slow and disproportionately small, compared to the attention given adult care."

"For instance," said Pursell, "PET will improve the evaluation of heart disorders in infants and young children, a process which is difficult because the heart is in constant motion and lies between other organs and tissue that block clear images."

Dr. Thomas Slovits, chief of radiology at Children's Hospital, said the most valuable use for PET will be to enable functional study of the biochemistry of the brain.

Children's Hospital is a private 260-bed pediatric health care center, established in 1886.

Expert: Teach students how to learn

By Tim Richard
staff writer

Today's schools teach English, history, math, shop.

Tomorrow's schools should teach adaptability, problem solving and learning how to learn.

"Michigan is on the cusp of some of the most exciting educational developments in the U.S.," a Briton told state Rep. William Keith's blue-ribbon panel on career and technical education.

"We really ought to look more at the process of teaching than at the curriculum," said Tony Gordon, an education inspector in the county of Staffordshire, England, who has just completed a year of work in the United States.

KEITH'S PANEL, meeting in an almost deserted State Capitol Friday, heard a trio of experts say high school graduates — even the college bound — must be prepared for the world of work and lifelong learning.

"Americans will have to compete on the basis of superior skills rather than strong backs," said Wolfgang

Linz, executive director of CDS International, a New York-based exchange group which gives young Americans a chance to work in foreign countries.

Linz advocated German-style cooperative programs where a company pays a student for a 40-hour week while he or she takes an integrated, work-study, four-year program.

"I visited the system in Germany," said Keith, D-Garden City. "Their dropout rate is less than 2 percent. We'd give anything to have a dropout rate of 2 percent."

"I visited Audi (the German automaker)," Keith went on, "where 70 percent of the students stay on (with that company). I couldn't imagine Lee Iacocca paying someone for 40 hours and have them go to work for a competitor."

Linz replied that other companies train workers for Audi, so the trade-off is balanced. And Audi-trained workers sometimes wind up working for firms that supply Audi, he said.

JAN DANFORD, General Motors' director of educational development in Lansing, said academic and vocational education should be linked, and industry needs to be involved. GM trains 25,000 people for everything from management to literacy, job skills to pre-retirement.

"Expand public-private partnerships," she said. "Give tax incentives to business to supply technology to schools."

Danford blistered the collegiate orientation of most educators. But she praised Oakland University for putting counselors through a one-week exposure to industry.

"Those who come out of colleges of engineering cannot apply what they learn," Danford said. "All students graduating from high school should be work-force ready."

Keith asked: "You see the vocational education system in our state as kind of a dumping ground — is that right?"

"That's right," Danford said, adding that colleges and parents see vocational as low caste.

Keith added: "Mention tracking, and parents say 'You mean my son or daughter can't go to college?' That's not what we're saying. It's the world of work. It's not that you're pushing little Johnny into auto mechanics."

KEITH IS chairing the panel appointed by House Speaker Lewis D. Dak, D-Birch Run.

Members include eight other lawmakers — among them James Kosteva, D-Canton, who didn't attend the session. Many businesspeople are members, including Phil Power, chairman of Suburban Communications Corp. and a veteran of state and federal job training groups.

Keith set another work session for Sept. 13. He predicted some legislation will be ready by December.

Keith is sponsor of House Bill 4165 to create a 28-member Career-Technical Advisory Council in the Department of Education.

Meanwhile, the State Board of Education last week finished appointing an advisory group on "employability assessment" — a process that will determine whether a high school graduate has the academic, personal and teamwork skills to be certified as job ready.

Central Wayne names board

Garden City Mayor James Plakas has been elected vice chairman of the Central Wayne Sanitation Authority for fiscal 1991-92. He has been a board member since 1988.

Inkster Councilman James Coleran was elected chairman.

Richard Dittmar, Westland public service director, was elected board secretary. Arthur Witala, Westland water and sewer superintendent, was elected treasurer.

Robert McLachlan, Dearborn Heights city clerk, and Ralph Magid, Wayne public service director, were elected to the authority operating committee.

The sanitation authority handles waste disposal in all five communities.

For Closer Family Ties, Do What The Keatons Do.

FAMILY

Many families are fit to be tied looking for an outing that everyone will enjoy. But not the Keatons of Lincoln Park.

Since they got a family membership pass to Henry Ford Museum & Greenfield Village, there's never an argument about how to have some fun.

Oh, the boys don't always see eye to eye on what's most awesome. "Edison's Lab. The glassblower is not. Is, too. Is not..." But then again, they're not the same height

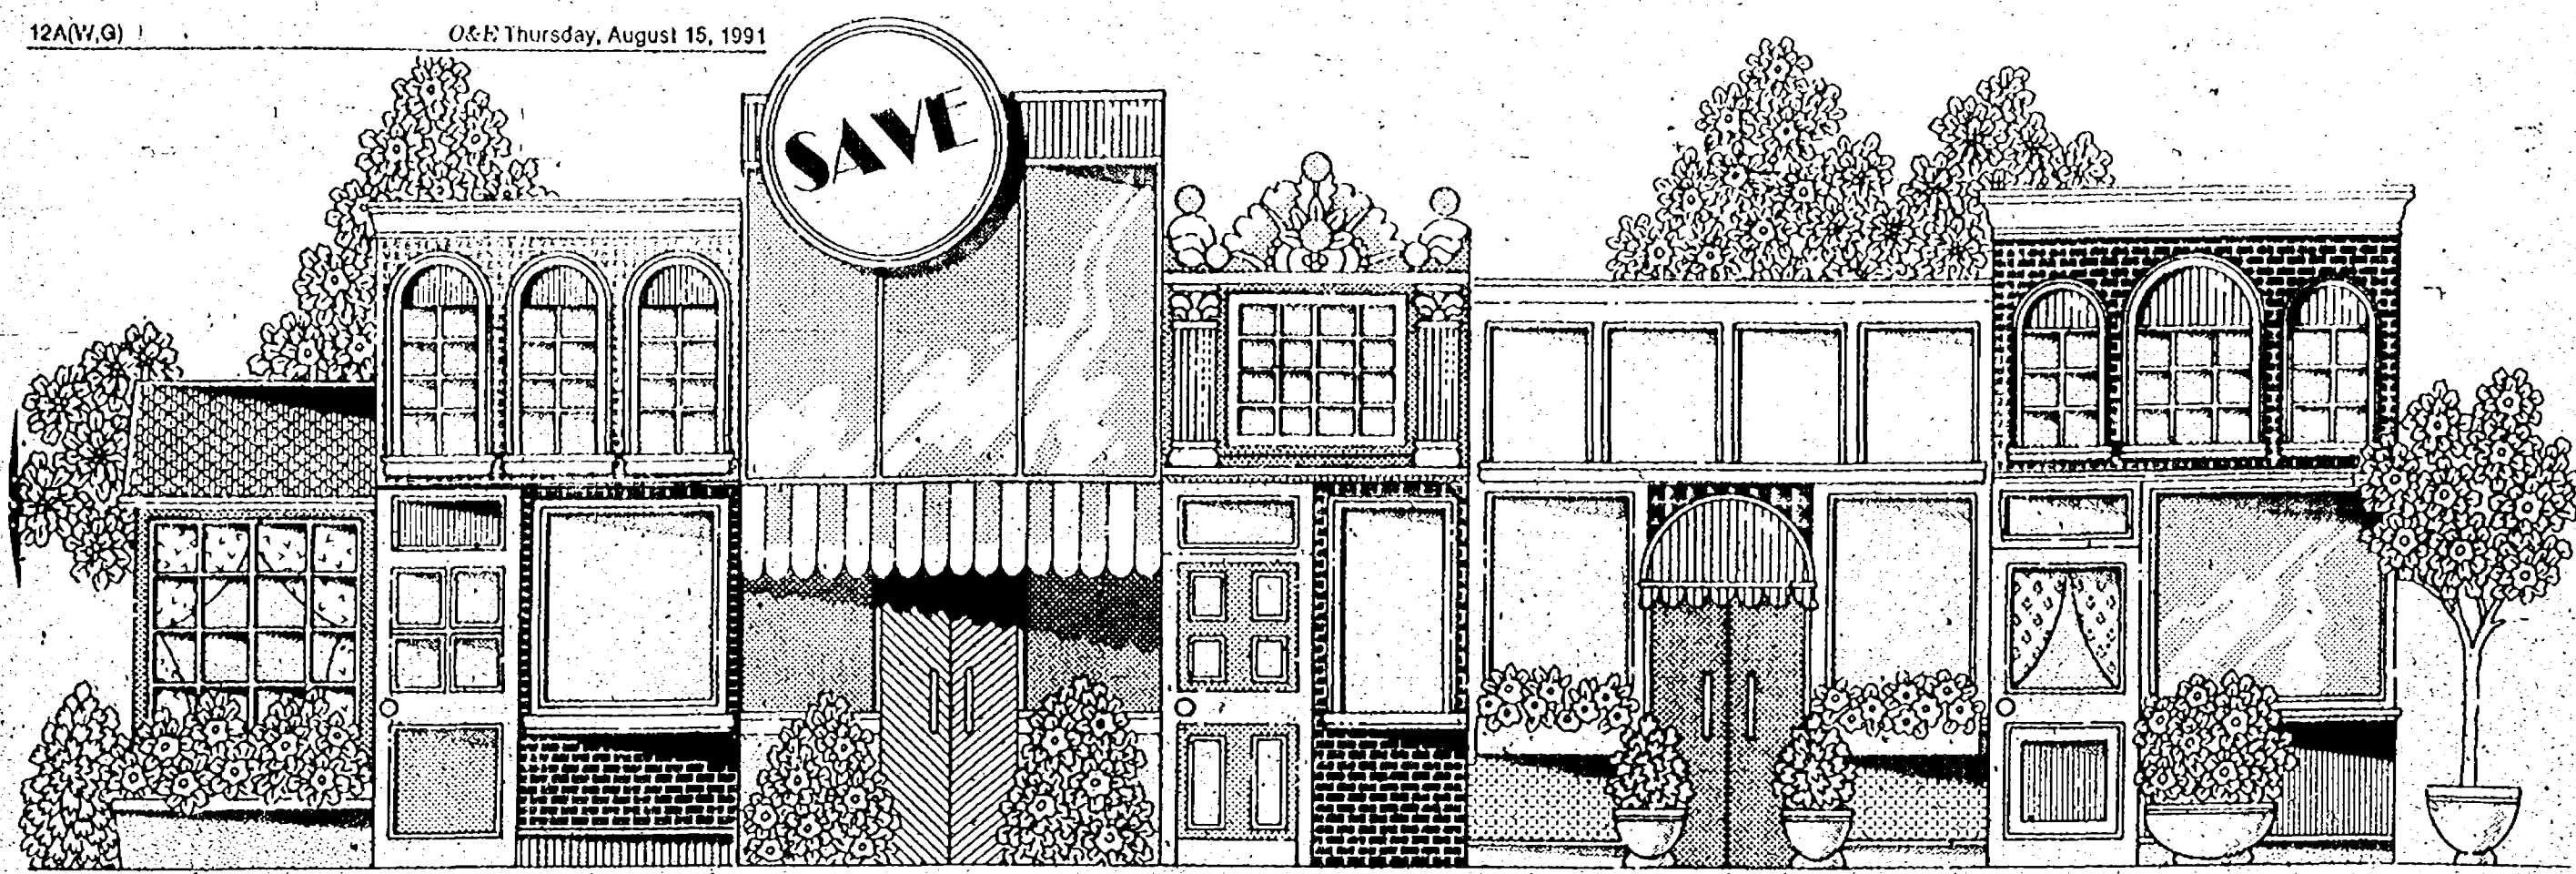

Even Mr. and Mrs. Keaton don't always agree. "Suwanee Park. The Wright Brothers' Home. Says who? Says me. Who are you?" But then again, they're married. However, the Keatons always agree at the end of the day that they had a good time together. If you've come to the end of your rope thinking of something fun for everybody in your family, you should do what the Keatons do — visit Henry Ford Museum & Greenfield Village and get a family membership pass. Or call (313) 271-1620.

Dump recall School campaign off target

A GROUP of Wayne-Westland school district residents has been working for most of this year to recall three board of education members. The group suffered a small setback last week, being told to rewrite petition language before it resubmits its proposals to the Wayne County elections board.

On paper, the recall targets are board members Kathleen Chorbajian, Leonard Posey and Andrew Spisak.

Most people would have no quarrel with the recall committee if its only target is the three school board members.

But now, the committee has said in published reports in the past month that it also wants to dump Superintendent Dennis O'Neill, Deputy Superintendent Thomas Svitekovich and the Plante and Moran auditing firm, which handles the school district's books.

If the committee is serious about its latest targets, that gives more credence to the argument that the group really wants revenge and another pint of political blood.

Appointment of the superintendent and auditing firm is solely a board of education appointment and not subject to the whim of voters.

FRANKLY, THE recall drive should be dropped. If the group decides to continue its efforts and is successful in having its proposal on an upcoming ballot, the community should then reject the recall move.

There are several reasons for voters to either refuse to sign recall petitions or reject the proposal if it reaches the ballot.

One reason is that recalls should be used only for obvious cases of malfeasance and illegal activities as a board member.

It shouldn't be used to get revenge against board members because a group of voters disagrees with several policy actions.

From a political viewpoint, the recall campaign which began earlier this year doesn't make sense.

With voters upset at the size of pay raises for local teachers and repeated tax rate elections, the community dumped three incumbents at the

A campaign to recall three school board members is a waste of time.

June 10 election. Two of the election winners were vocal opponents of the tax rate hike on the same ballot and the teachers' salary raises.

ALONG WITH new board president Sylvia Kozorsky-Wiacek, who isn't a target of the recall committee, the purpose of the recallers has in effect been accomplished.

If it wants to replace Chorbajian, all it has to do is wait another 10 months and support an opposing candidate — if Chorbajian even decides to run for a new term.

The terms of Spisak and Posey expire on June 30, 1993, and 1994, respectively.

On the basic argument about teachers' union pay raises, the Observer agreed earlier this year that the pay hikes are more than what the public would accept and would create political problems for the three board members seeking new terms two months ago.

But that's history.

THE CONTRACTS are signed and sealed and the teachers will be paid under the new salary schedule when school starts later this month.

There is also no substance for trying to recall board members for holding several tax rate increase elections.

Voters rejected the tax proposal three times before narrowly approving it on June 10.

But that's also history.

The most effective way to change the direction of the school board was done two months ago when three incumbents were replaced.

That election and the related tax rate campaign created a lot of bad blood in the community.

Hopefully, the political atmosphere was to have been soothed and order restored.

But the recall efforts since then can best be described as nonsense. Voters have better things to worry about.

In suburbia Tax plan may cost Engler in '92

JOHN ENGLER is in danger of being a one-term governor. He could lose it in 1992 over the issue of tax base sharing.

Engler stirred up a ruckus over eliminating general assistance welfare payments to childless, able-bodied adults. But his position didn't cost him any votes, because the welfare lobby never supported him in the first place.

And Engler wisely tempered his position on eliminating arts money under pressure from the silk-stocking lobby that funded his campaign as well as the arts. He opted last week for a three-year phaseout instead of an immediate end to operating money, offering other kinds of help meanwhile.

BUT ON THE ISSUE of property tax base sharing, the governor is turning his back on many rank-and-file suburbanites who helped give him a razor-thin 30,000-vote margin in 1990.

The plan, which probably will be adopted by the Legislature, calls for the poorer districts of the state to gang up on those with growing business tax bases and steal half the latter's growth in commercial and industrial base.

Big losers would be the high-tech belt — the school districts along the freeways of Oakland, Wayne and Washtenaw counties. In the near future, western Oakland and Livingston also would be losers. One legislator tells us 40 percent of the "sharing" would be done by Oakland County alone.

Republican Engler should know better than to turn his back on that potent contingent. His predecessor, Democrat James Blanchard, concentrated a lot of attention on this area with his campaign swings and his attention to such issues as college tuitions and drunk driving.

IT WOULD BE ironic if Engler, who wants to be known as a property tax cutter, were to sign a bill taking property taxes away from this vote-rich area. We wouldn't be able to spend the taxes we generate, and we might have to raise millage rates because of suburbia's propensity to indulge its schools.

The cunning legislators behind tax base sharing — Sen. Dan DeGrow of Port Huron, and Reps. James O'Neill of Saginaw — are sweating mightily to disguise their deed. Their final version probably will seek to soften the stab wound by restoring some of the $72 million in "categorical" aid for special education they took away last year.

Some deal. In 1990 they steal categorical money from our right pocket, and in 1991 they propose using it to pay for the business taxes they want to steal from our left pocket.

Engler, unfortunately, is endorsing this plot. Moreover, he is playing to the irresponsible galleries by not supporting efforts to consolidate many rinky-dink districts into economically viable units.

Engler can still redeem himself by reversing his leftward course and vetoing the tax base stealing bill. He would be politically obtuse to maltreat the friends most capable of cutting short his career in 1994.

Amendments protect against abuses of jury trial system

SUPPOSE YOU'RE hauled into court on a questionable charge.

You remove your hat when you enter the room. The judge orders the bailiff to place it back on your head, then declares you in contempt for wearing it. When the jury finds you not guilty, the judge orders them locked up without food or water until they change their minds.

They refuse, but the judge jails you anyway on the contempt charge and imposes a fine that you cannot pay.

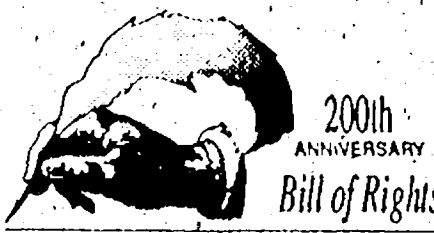

Sound unreasonable? It was, but that's exactly what happened to William Penn back in 1670, and it's one of the reasons the Framers of the Bill of Rights wrote the Sixth, Seventh and Eighth Amendments.

Those Amendments guarantee you the right to a speedy and public trial with an impartial jury, allow you to confront your accusers, to be represented by an attorney and forbid the court to impose excessive bail or cruel and unusual punishments.

The authors of those amendments may not have been able to help William Penn, but they tried their best to keep the rest of us from being subjected to such judicial injustice.

This is another in a continuing series of articles marking the anniversary of the Bill of Rights.

Mourning Moslems

Some say that Plymouth art festival officials response to this painting of Kuwaiti women depicting the anguish of war was a clear form of censorship. For his opinion on the issue, see Steve Barnaby's column below.

Censorship can't mask real tragedies of war

LIVONIA ARTIST Judy Gibbs recently found that censorship comes in many hues.

We Americans pride ourselves on our freedoms. But those of us involved in transmitting messages are finding increased resistance. Opposition comes from the growing number of people who believe they have a constitutional right not to be offended, the truth be damned.

In a controversial painting, Gibbs' interprets the pain and suffering of war. The scene makes you grimace, for sure. You feel the pain, share the mental anguish.

Entitled "Mourning Moslems," the painting was inspired by a photograph taken during the U.S. military incursion into Iraq and Kuwait.

No yellow ribbons in this painting, no smiling soldiers with happy little kids. Some would say this painting depicts war's devastation, which was masked during the frenzied jingoism this country experienced at the war's conclusion.

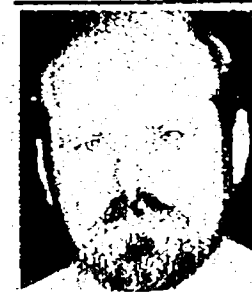

During the recent Plymouth Art in the Park festival, Gibbs' painting drew complaints. Some viewers expressed discomfort at being made to feel sad on a beautiful day. Festival officials "suggested" Gibbs remove it from the front of the booth and make it less conspicuous.

Festival official Jim Miller was even more blatant.

"My concern is to have every artist sell," he recently said.

In short, he was concerned that

Steve Barnaby

Gibbs' display of "Mourning Moslems" would hurt the good old American bottom line.

HOW SAD, how utterly pitiful. It's frightening to think our values of freedom have become so distorted. Read the Constitution, folks. Nowhere does it prescribe the bottom line as a basic right. Nowhere does it say the profit motive outweighs freedom of expression.

As a matter of fact, profit is never mentioned in the U.S. Constitution. Neither is defense against being offended.

That's why those of us who were offended by the U.S. military adventure in Iraq were willing to put up with yellow ribbons, the symbol of a war which had nothing to do with protecting anybody's freedom.

At every turn we were faced with yellow ribbons. A company, of which I sit on the board of directors, actually had yellow ribbons painted on their vehicles. Because of a deep belief in speech freedoms I felt obliged to grit my teeth, mumble under my breath and let it pass.

For weeks this newspaper's headquarters were festooned with yellow ribbons. I said little, believing that others' freedom to express their feelings about the war outweighed my distaste.

My personal abhorrence of war comes from the experience of having killed others during combat and living with the lifelong pain it inflicted on the survivors. I've never been particularly good at expressing those feelings.

Judy Gibbs' painting goes a long way in doing just that for me and a whole lot of others. We would appreciate it if those who are offended would simply go off and tie another yellow ribbon and leave reality alone.

complaints are filed. Bungling disregard and negligence should not be condoned or tolerated.

Karen Hill,
Westland

To the editor:

The recent rapes at Hampton Court Apartments put the city of Westland in a poor light due to the actions of the police department, the apartment manager and the Westland Observer.

The repeated, successful rapes within one apartment complex graphically illustrated the damage that can be done to uninformed citizens. The Observer, as usual, "observed" long after the fact. This newspaper, which often seems to focus more on petty political squabbles, failed to put the public on notice that a serious criminal was at large.

The police department's policy of "keeping it quiet" was unsuccessful in either deterring or catching the rapist, but instead showed the community that it was willing to compromise public safety and trust.

And in the center ring of this nightmarish policy of silence is the apartment management. They, too, choose the path of silence, not bothering to warn residents to take precautions or even to install new working locks.

I extend my sympathies to all the victims. What happened to them was monstrous, and has been compounded by an incredible lack of support and protection from those in a position to help. I hope criminal and civil

Alano Club is praised

To the editor:

I would like to commend the Observer and Sue Mason for the excellent article in the July 25 issue on the Northwest Alano Club, located in the (former) Perrinville School in Westland.

Too many people are unaware of this excellent program and facility. Others have a negative opinion of the people who use such a facility. Your article clearly provides realistic insights into what a great community resource this program is.

Many people come initially because of a court order, but the nearly 700 members elect to participate because it provides them with a way of life.

Some of the Alano members may come a long distance, but the majority are from Livonia, Westland, Wayne, Canton, Plymouth, Garden City. These members are our husbands, wives, sons, daughters, neighbors, employers, employees, and our friends.

I urge all to support this program, its fund-raisers and its place in our community. We all need the Alano Club to flourish and grow.

Gail McKnight,
Westland District Judge

Schools are appreciated

To the editor:

For five weeks in July and early August, 60 young people participated in a special program for middle school students. The program was called SWAP and was held this year at John Glenn High School. Many of the student participants and staff members were from the Wayne-Westland school district.

I am writing to compliment the courtesy, competence and professionalism of all the employees of the district. The building was spotless, the grounds well kept and the attitude of the John Glenn staff was always positive and helpful.

At a time when it is unfortunately fashionable to be critical of our schools, be aware that over 100 kids and parents quietly benefitted from the skill and dedication of the educators of the Wayne-Westland schools. I wanted them to know that their efforts did not go unnoticed or unappreciated.

Guv 'whups' arts lobby despite compromise

"COMPROMISE," my eye. Gov. John Engler won the battle of the "arts summit," and he won it handily.

Engler and the big money-raisers for the arts, like the Leon Cohans and A. Alfred Taubmans, publicly agreed that operating grants for arts groups would have to be phased out. Engler says three years. Cohans says some may need to take longer.

Keep in mind that Engler, not Cohans, appoints the budget director and signs the budget bills.

LIKE A DIPLOMAT, Engler didn't annihilate the opposition. He tossed a few crumbs to help them save face.

One crumb is that the state will provide some capital grants. Only a handful of arts groups own buildings.

Another crumb was to sign a flimsy statement recognizing the importance of a state role in the arts, a good deal of coze about how the arts enrich our souls and ennoble our spirits. That gush-and-80 cents will buy you a cup of coffee.

A third crumb is that the reconstituted Michigan Council for the Arts and Cultural Affairs will continue. But its chief function is changed to helping arts groups raise their own private money rather than dishing out state grants.

But those are crumbs. The arts operating grants are going, the gov says.

ENGLE WAS blunt about what has been going on in the existing MCA. "In recent years, it has become a random, politically driven, pork barrel process," he said.

At almost the same moment, a conservative think tank called the Mackinac Center released a finding about where state arts money has gone. Oakland and Washtenaw, the two most affluent counties in the state, were running 1-2 in the grant-grabbing sweepstakes. Of the 25 most down-trodden counties, 24 got zero grants.

The inescapable conclusion: Arts grants are welfare for the middle and upper classes at the expense of the poor.

ENGLE RUBBED the arts people's noses in another reeking fact of life.

Without naming names, he noted many artists and arts groups seem to have set up shop just because state money was available. "We don't do anybody any favors" with endless subsidies, Engler said.

If Cohans and his gang disagreed, they didn't say so out loud.

In past columns, I've raised the same objection. One can argue that the state should take pride in the Detroit Institute of Arts (which actually has an outreach program to help other areas of the state), and one can argue that outstate benefits when the Detroit Symphony sets up shop for a night in Iron Mountain.

But what state purpose is served by subsidizing the teaching of the Suzuki violin method to 4-year-olds in Keewenaw County? What state purpose is served by subsidizing a Mexican dance troupe in Saginaw?

And if we're really subsidizing artistic merit, then why the statutory hurdle that 16 percent of the money must go to minorities? That's no artistic specification. That's raw politics.

One senses, with Engler, that a racket has been going on.

THE POLITICAL nature of the state arts funding program was further underlined with the agreement that line-item grants to various groups like the Chinese Cultural Center, Motown Museum and Lake St. Clair Symphony are out.

Hereafter, they will have to apply to the MCA like everyone else. The Legislature won't guarantee politically favored groups.

Under the "arts summit" agreement, only four agencies will get line item money: Detroit Institute of Arts and Symphony, Grand Rapids Museum and Symphony.

That's four too many. But as I said, Engler just whupped 'em. He didn't annihilate 'em.

Tim Richard reports regularly on the local implications of state and regional events.

Uproar is likely in name change

I PREDICT an uproar.

Tom Wilson, a longtime member of the Bloomfield Hills school board, is suggesting a name change for the prestigious Bloomfield Hills School District to Bloomfield Community Schools.

His idea makes sense.

The district was born at Vaughn School in the city of Bloomfield Hills. But Vaughn is long-gone, and none of the district's six elementary, three middle schools and two high schools now lie within the city.

The schools are where most of the students live — Bloomfield and West Bloomfield townships.

In fact, the only schools in Bloomfield Hills are either private or parochial — Cranbrook Schools, St. Hugo of the Hills, Academy of the Sacred Heart and one of the two campuses of Roper.

The school board certainly has no current attachment to the city fathers which would woo them to retain the Bloomfield Hills name.

In fact in an unusual action for a community, city government came out against the schools' ballot request for money. In turn, the district's teachers union for the first time endorsed council candidates who would be more favorable — or at least not against — the schools.

PERHAPS WE'RE just trying to become more accurate around our suburbs — letting go of the illusory and grabbing on to the reality.

As of July 1, residents of Bloomfield Township got a mailing address of their own after years of being listed as either part of Birmingham or Bloomfield Hills.

The same thing happened to Beverly Hills and Bingham Farms; formerly disguised by a Birmingham mailing address.

And, people with the mailing address of the imaginary municipality of Union Lake became full-fledged members of their real communities by post office standards — West

Judith Doner Berne

Bloomfield, Commerce, White Lake or Waterford townships.

All of that did not come about without a lot of kicking and screaming — about history, about property values. Some people didn't really care where they lived — only that their mailing address should continue to say "Birmingham" or "Union Lake."

Bowing to political pressure, the post office agreed that those people who still want to cling to their old mailing address on their actual mail can do so, so long as they use the correct street address and ZIP code.

But the telephone book now tells it like it is.

THE NEW ZIPS also discourage schools outside Bloomfield Hills proper from using the city name in addresses.

Plus Mature Minglers, which serves seniors in Bloomfield Township, Bloomfield Hills and greater West Bloomfield, earlier this year decided to define itself more accurately.

No action 'till September, but some of the suggestions are: "Greater Bloomfield Seniors," "Bloomfield Seniors," "Bloomfield Community Seniors" and "Seniors of Bloomfield."

Yes, a name change for the Bloomfield Hills School District makes sense. But I predict an uproar.

Judith Doner Berne is assistant managing editor for the Oakland County editions of the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers.

Schools should benefit from pros

When I was a young violinist in the great Taras Hubicki's classical Detroit Fiddlers' Band, no one paid me or my other young colleagues to perform, and we were very good.

During those same years, no one paid me to box, play football, baseball or basketball. I still did all of these things, often in church gyms, on school playgrounds, vacant lots, streets and alleys for the love of sport and spontaneous competition.

When I outran Olympic champions a few years later, no one paid me for that, either, even though I was representing the United States on the national team and dashing quarter-miles in a time no human had ever clocked before.

THESE NOSTALGIC reminiscences of generous, joyous amateurism bring forth from my pen a modest proposal: I suggest that professional entertainers and athletes whose annual salaries exceed $1 million donate 80 percent of those earnings to bail out financially strapped school districts throughout the country and revert to performing and competing more for the sheer love of it.

So you think maybe they'd be less than eager to make such a sacrifice for the benefit of our country's school children? Well, we could ask them to donate only half of their earnings, or a quarter or even a tenth.

What, they won't?

OK, then, perhaps all of America's schoolteachers, administrators, crossing guards, custodians, secretaries, counselors, social workers, speech pathologists, cafeteria workers and teachers' aides could contribute their munificent salaries and hourly wages to this worthy cause. And the nation's university professors could descend into the public schools and help teach some courses gratis.

We could then have a 100 percent volunteer work force in America's public schools. Just think how the world would applaud our educators' altruism!

SAY WHAT? Then all those people wouldn't be able to feed, house and clothe their families. But we could set up cots in the schools for them, and hold bake sales for their other needs. Or possibly we could just ask parents to keep their kids home and teach them themselves.

OK, that's illegal — so here's another idea: Let's get state legislatures across the land to eschew the property tax as a means of financing schools and substitute a graduated (percentage-based) income tax, with each taxpayer paying according to ability.

The budget-cutting now occur-ing in thousands of school districts is precisely what this country's children don't need. The number of impoverished American children increased by 10 percent in the final six months of 1990.

Something's on backwards when a team like the New York Mets pays its pitchers $5 million a year while there are kids in that city who wake up every morning too hungry to concentrate on anything but the hollow aches in their stomachs in the richest country in the world.

In the days of Babe Ruth, Lou Gehrig and Hank Greenberg, though, schools wouldn't have needed to ask major league athletes to contribute to their support, because then New York's and Detroit's public schools were sleek and confident models for the rest of the nation as the linchpin of democracy at work.

Now all of America's public schools are in trouble, and it's high time this country set its priorities straight again.

Lally seeks Norris' title

Fight is slated for HBO

By C.J. Risak
staff writer

Everything Brett Lally — the self-proclaimed "Irish Hawk" — has worked and sweated for during endless training sessions over the past 4½ years will culminate in 36 minutes of ruthless action Saturday night.

Lally hopes it won't take that long. Naturally. He's a big-time underdog, a puncher challenging World Boxing Council junior middleweight champion Terry Norris in a 12-round match for the WBC title. The fight will be televised on cable TV by HBO.

Norris has defeated Sugar Ray Leonard. He's knocked out Donald Curry. And he has a 28-3 record.

Lally, a Westland native and 1981 John Glenn HS graduate with a 29-5 pro record, was knocked out by Curry in the second round of their December 26, 1989 meeting.

THAT'S ONE reason Norris is such a heavy favorite. Another is his smooth boxing style. Boxer versus puncher, like Sugar Ray Robinson against Jake LaMotta. The boxer usually prevails.

Also, the fight will be in Norris' home town, at the San Diego Sports Arena.

Bradd Lally, who manages his brother's career, is aware of all this, of course. And like any good manager, Bradd has found ways to turn negatives into positives.

"Because (Norris) beat Leonard and knocked out Curry, who knocked out Brett, it's made out that he should be the heavy favorite," said Bradd, noting the 8-to-1 odds against his brother. "They're making Brett the big underdog, but I think they're making a big mistake."

Bradd was doing the talking for Brett because Brett was out bowling. They had returned a few days earlier from California's Big Bear Mountain, where Brett trained for four weeks at an elevation of 7,000 feet.

THE INTENSE workouts — "He's never trained for a fight like he has for this one" — will help even the odds, said Bradd. And he isn't so certain the hometown crowd will be a Norris advantage.

"Norris is fighting in front of his hometown people," Bradd said. "We know how that can be. Brett fought in Livonia in June, and he went out and tried to knock the guy (Anthony Ivory) out."

That fight proved a disappointment for Brett. He won the 10-round bout on a unanimous decision, but wasn't sharp. "He didn't train properly for that fight," said Bradd. "Plus, there was more pressure because he had just found out he was getting this fight, and he didn't want anything to happen that might jeopardize it."

Bradd is hoping Norris will react similarly in front of his hometown fans. If he does, if Norris abandons his normal defensive, counterpunching style and tries to slug it out, Brett could pull off the upset.

"There's a lot less pressure on Brett," said Bradd. "Norris is a real good fighter, with quick hands and quick feet. But we think Brett has a real good chance."

BRETT HAS been concentrating on body punching after watching

The "Irish Hawk" — Brett Lally — will have his hands full when he takes on WBC junior middleweight champion Terry Norris Saturday.

films of Norris. "He's a counter-puncher, a slicker and a mover," said Bradd of Norris. "But we found out he doesn't like getting hit in the body."

However the fight goes, the Lally strategy is to force Norris to earn it. "We want to make Terry work for 180 seconds a round for 12 rounds, or as long as the fight lasts," said Bradd.

A shorter fight would favor Brett, considering the possibilities of hometown favoritism by the judges (even though Michigan Boxing Council commissioner Stuart Kirschenbaum is one of the three judges). And only 13 of Norris' victories have been by KO.

It's not going to be easy, not by any stretch of the imagination. Still, "Brett feels very confident he can do the job," said Bradd.

And if he does? "If he wins, he goes to the moon," said Bradd. "He goes to the top. All the doors are open."

Caesars gains 2nd tourney win

basketball

A grand slam home run by Mike Giacomantonio highlighted a 10-run, third-inning by Livonia Little Caesars Tuesday, propelling it to an 11-6 win over Schenectady, N.Y., at the All-American Amateur Baseball Association Tournament in Johnstown, Pa.

The victory left Little Caesars, winners of the Livonia Collegiate Baseball League playoffs, in an unfamiliar and, to many, unexpected position — unbeaten after two games.

"There were a lot of people who didn't have much faith in us, but I did," said Caesars' assistant coach Ken Wandzel.

Giacomantonio's homer was the key blow in the game for Caesars. Jeff Bates added three RBI in the third, two on a single and another on a sacrifice fly. Kevin Crociata and Earl Johnson added run-scoring singles and Mike Heard walked with the bases loaded for Caesars' other runs in the third.

HEARD PUT the final run on the board for the Livonia team with a solo homer in the eighth.

Caesars got strong pitching from starter Tom Kutcher, who surrendered just one hit in five scoreless innings. Kutcher walked two and struck out five before being lifted in the sixth to be saved for another tournament game.

Pulling Kutcher early was nearly costly. Bill Bannon relieved and allowed two runs in his one inning. Sean Henkel followed and was tagged for four runs in the seventh, trimming the Caesars lead to 10-6, before he was relieved by Lou McKaig with two out. McKaig got out of trouble and did not give up a run in the final 2½ innings.

Crociata's three hits led Caesars' 11-hit attack. Johnson and Eric Slanczak contributed two hits each.

CAESARS NEEDED to rally to win its first game, 14-5, over Cleveland on Monday. Caesars trailed, 5-4, after five innings but scored five in the sixth inning and five more in the eighth to make starting pitcher Tim Bruce, a pick-up from LCBL rival Delwal, a winning.

Despite a sluggish start, Bruce went the distance and struck out the side in the ninth to finish with 10 strikeouts. He allowed six hits.

Giacomantonio's two-run single with two outs and two strikes in the count gave Caesars the lead for good, 6-5, in the sixth. Sikora, Brent Hayward and Heard (Wayne Memorial) also delivered key hits during the rally.

Caesars' 13-hit attack was led by designated Brent Hayward, who was 2-for-2 with four RBI, including a 400-foot homer in the eighth that scored Slanczak and Giacomantonio.

"It might have ended up in Livonia," Wandzel joked of Hayward's home run. Jeff Miller was 2-3, including a three-run homer, and leadoff man Johnson impressed all the scouts with his speed. Johnson was 2-4 with a pair of stolen bases.

"He hit a two-hopper to second base one time, the kid came up with the ball, threw it and Earl beat it out at first," Wandzel said. "The scouts all looked at their watches and probably all thought the clock was wrong. They were in awe of his speed."

Lang gets Churchill post

By Steve Kowalski
staff writer

Those hoping to make the Livonia Churchill boys varsity basketball team this year can finally refer to Tom Lang as "coach."

Churchill athletic director Don Albertson made it official Monday, naming Lang to replace Fred Price, who resigned in June as coach of both the boys basketball and track teams. The announcement ended some anxiety for Lang, who volunteered to take the Churchill varsity boys basketball team to "Team Camp" at Albion College last month without officially being named coach.

Lang coached Churchill's freshman boys team the last three years and this fall will be his second season as the school's junior varsity girls basketball coach. Lang, who also took the JV girls to "Team Camp" this summer, found out about his new position Monday morning, after returning with his wife, Sharon, from a three-week trip overseas.

baseball

"I'M ELATED," Lang said of his appointment. "It's something I've wanted to try for a long time. It's going to be a good challenge."

Lang was one of the area's most successful girls basketball coaches in the late 1970s and early '80s at Livonia Bentley before the school closed in 1985. He guided Bentley to six district and three regional crowns in eight years, and his best teams were led by Kim Archer, who later starred in basketball and softball at Michigan State University.

Churchill's boys varsity last year won its first district title since 1977 and finished with a 15-9 overall record.

Approaching those standards right away will be hard, considering their leading scorer and rebounder, Randy Calcaterra, is now playing at Wayne State, and sharpshooting guard Mike Thomas also graduated.

Lang, 49, said his boys teams will play "man-to-man defense most of the time."

Offensively, he might have to endorse a style made popular by Loyola-Marymount and closer to home by Livonia Stevenson coach Jim McIntyre. The leading returnees are point guard Marcus Sarnovsky and forward Brian Johnson, both entering their senior seasons. Unless there's a sudden growth spurt in the next few months no one

Offense gives Grand Valley the edge

By C.J. Risak
staff writer

Defense is what matters, football coaches insist.

Now explain why those in the Midwest Intercollegiate Football Conference cast their first-place votes for a team that is loaded offensively, but has more than a few question marks defensively — Grand Valley State.

Of course, it must be noted that the Lakers went 10-2 last year and won the inaugural MIFC championship with a 9-1 record. They lost two offensive starters, but got one they missed most of last season back — tight end Bob Mitchell, a 1990 preseason All-America candidate.

Still, eight seniors have graduated from the defense, including all three starting linebackers, which will put pressure to produce on those with experience who return.

Like Eric Thornton, a 6-foot-2, 220-pound junior defensive end from Westland John Glenn HS who recorded four quarterback sacks in part-time duty last year. The defensive line is solid, with senior defensive tackle Jim Cramer, an All-American candidate, returning.

Two reasons Grand Valley was selected to win its second-straight MIFC title: defensive end Eric Thornton (93) and offensive guard Doug Strehl (62), both John Glenn grads.

BUT WITH a new corps of linebackers, the defense may be vulnerable. Brian Kelly, Grand Valley's 29-year-old first-year coach, knows it.

"I don't think there's an offensive coordinator around who wants to be in a position where they have to outscore the other team," said Kelly, who served as the Lakers' defensive coordinator last year. He succeeds Tom Beck, who left to join the Notre Dame coaching staff.

Still, if it comes to that, he has the offensive tools to do it — starting with senior quarterback Jack Hull (2,152 yards passing, 19 touchdowns and just five interceptions) and senior running back Eric Lynch (977 yards rushing, 20 TDs).

Walter's 2nd in NABF Series

baseball

Walter's Appliance coach Mike Keller, although pleased with finishing second at last weekend's National Amateur Baseball Federation World Series in Dayton, Ohio, had to wonder what might have been.

If his consistent third baseman Jeff Pendell and hot-hitting Jeff Kugelmann weren't forced to leave the tournament early with injuries.

Kugelmann, a playoff acquisition from Livonia Collegiate Baseball League rival Hines-Park Lincoln Mercury, hit a three-run home run and led off a five-run ninth-inning rally with a double in an opening-round, 13-12 win Thursday over Lieb's of Buffalo, N.Y.

Unfortunately, Kugelmann (Plymouth Canton) severely sprained his ankle rounding second base on the double, making him miss the rest of the World Series.

Walter's luck didn't get any better on Saturday when Pendell (Livonia Churchill and Madonna University) suffered a knee injury sliding into third base in a 12-9 win, again, over Lieb's.

Pendell was hitting .529 prior to the injury, Keller said. Walter's also played the entire tournament without Craig Overalls (Livonia Franklin and Henry Ford Community College) and David Houghtby (Stevenson), because of job commitments, according to Keller.

"You take good hitters out of your lineup, that always hurts you," said Keller, who guided his team to a 25-11-1 record, including a regular-season LCBL championship. "We had a good summer overall. All I can say is thanks to our sponsor and John Mistak, the backbone of the sponsorship. I have nothing but high praise for him from me and the players' parents."

Walter's won four of its six games and met eventual champion McDonald's (Kansas City) Sunday in the final round. Walter's was 3-1 after Saturday's action and had to beat McDonald's twice on Sunday to go away champions of the double-elimination tournament.

Walter's passed the first test, rallying to win Sunday's first game, 10-8. Trailing 8-7 in the bottom of the seventh inning, LCBL Most Valuable Player Jerry Koester (Westland John Glenn and Henry Ford) and Ron Hollis scored on a two-run double by Jason Gabel (Livonia Churchill) to give Walter's the lead for good.

Koester had reached base on an error and Hollis walked to set the stage for Gabel. In the eighth, Walter's added an insurance run when Joe Brusseau (Redford Bishop Burgess and Madonna) walked, stole second and came home on Koester's single.

Hollis, the starter, earned the win, but Mike Sulak's (Plymouth Canton) three innings of scoreless relief was just as important to Walter's cause. The long ball helped Walter's early in the game as Paul Pirronello (Redford Catholic Central and Henry Ford) clubbed a three-run home run in the second and Mark Hribar hit a two-run homer.

McDonald's capitalized later Sunday on poor Walter's fielding in the clinching game, scoring three unearned runs in the eighth for a 5-3 comeback win. Walter's, which committed five errors during the nine-inning game, had three in the eighth when McDonald's chased starting pitcher Mike Coleman (Madonna).

Walter's had taken a 2-0 lead on a two-run double by Hollis in the third. McDonald's scored a run in the fourth but Walter's made it 3-1 in the fifth when Koester tripled to score Brusseau from first base.

McDonald's battled back with a run in the seventh and three more in the forgettable eighth to send Walter's home in second place. Keller credited Coleman for going 7½ innings on only one day's rest after pitching a complete game Friday.

"Mike did a real nice job for us," Keller said. "When you go to a tournament and play day-in and day-out, all teams are going to have a staff that goes through hell."

Following is a look at other games played Saturday and Friday:

WALTER'S 12, LIEB'S 9: Chris White (North Farmington) pitched 5½ innings in relief of Chad Wrona, who allowed seven runs in the first 3½ innings. White kept Walter's in contention by allowing only two runs, four hits, two walks to go with three strikeouts.

The win gave Walter's a 3-1 record and a berth in Sunday's finals.

"He just shut the door down and I couldn't ask for anyone to do more," Keller said of White. "I know after losing one game everything is mental and getting it back together is a tough way to go."

MCDONALD'S 6, WALTER'S 3: Bob Bullach suffered the loss for Walter's in six innings of pitching. Walter's scored two runs in the third on RBI singles by Pendell and Gabel. In the sixth, Walter's scored on a walk to Stover, a single by Pirronello and Brusseau's sacrifice fly.

Creek project a-bridged

AFTER NEARLY 15 years of planning and paperwork the bottom draw on Paint Creek at Lake Orion is in place and in working order. Unfortunately, it's not working quite yet.

The project was completed earlier this summer, but because of construction of a new bridge where the creek passes under Broadway Street, 100 yards downstream from the headwaters, the bottom draw has not yet been put into operation.

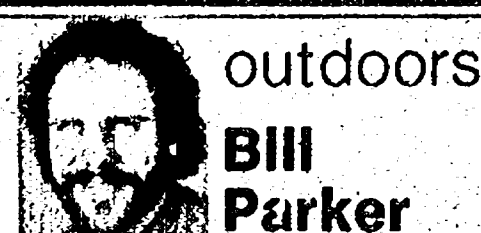

"It's very disappointing," said DNR Fisheries biologist Ron Spittler, who has overseen the development of the project from its inception in the mid '70s. "We made some brief tests just after the pipe was installed and found a 10-degree drop in the water temperature just downstream from the dam. But, because of the construction, we just haven't been able to work with it to see what adjustments we need to make. The bridge was supposed to have been completed by now, but we're still waiting."

THE BOTTOM DRAW pipe — actually a large plastic tube — extends into Lake Orion 740 feet out from the control structure located north of the dam. The tube is submerged in 62-feet of water. When operating, the tube will suck cold, oxygenated water from the bottom of the lake. It will not interfere with the level of Lake Orion since the bottom draw will only operate when there is water spilling over the top of the dam.

The water from the bottom of the lake picks up more oxygen as it flows down a rock filled gully and into the creek at the base of the dam.

SPITTLER FEELS the bottom draw will cool the creek water to 70 degrees or below so trout can survive in the upper stretches of Paint Creek.

"We made some brief tests and found the water in the tube was 55 degrees," Spittler said. "The oxygen was near zero at the bottom of the lake, but up to nine ppb by the time it passed over the rocks.

"Ideally, we'd like to keep the water temperature in the mid-60s throughout the summer. If we can keep it below 70-degrees during the hot, dry days in the middle of the summer we should be OK. Trout can survive in water temperatures in the middle to upper 70s for a short period of time."

Currently, warm water temperatures in the upper four miles of the creek are lethal to trout.

If the water cools as expected the DNR will begin stocking the upper stretches of the creek with 1,000 to 1,500 brown trout next spring, according to Spittler.

THE BOTTOM DRAW is part of an overall improvement package on Paint Creek, which begins at Lake Orion and flows southeasterly into Rochester where it empties into the Clinton River.

Through the cooperation of local chapters of Trout Unlimited, the Paint Creek Trailways Commission, the DNR, the Michigan Wildlife Habitat Foundation and other agencies, many improvements have already been completed on the 14-mile creek.

Log jams and debris that once cluttered the creek bed and restricted the flow of water have been removed. Erosion control devices such as rock riprapping and log shoreline have been constructed. Stairways have been built at several locations providing easy access for anglers and hikers from the abandoned railroad grade which runs the length of the creek.

MORE IMPROVEMENTS are planned for the future.

The Trailways Commission recently received $1,200 in state-matching Inland Fisheries Cooperative grants to continue the improvements.

"Basically, we'll be doing more of the same things we've already done," said Peg Johnson, secretary of the Trailways Commission. "We'll be riprapping the bank to help control the erosion and we'll be building more stairways which also help control erosion."

While the work continues, Paint Creek creeps closer and closer to becoming southeastern Michigan's premiere trout stream.

DIETRICH WINS QUALIFIER

Livonia's Ed Dietrich took first place in an Operation Bass Red Man Michigan Division qualifier, July 21, on Lake St. Clair.

Fishing Tennessee/shad Bomber Model A lures in the main river, Dietrich boated a five-bass limit that weighed 13 pounds, 1-ounce. His largest fish, and the largest of the tournament, weighed 4 pounds, 8-ounces.

Terry Sanders, of Southfield, placed second in the tournament with a five-bass limit that tipped the scale at 11-pounds, 13-ounces. Sanders fished silver and red fluke grubs in weed beds in Anchor Bay.

Rochester's George Hoffman tied for eighth place with Joe Kozlowski of North-Branch. Each angler caught five bass that weighed 10-pounds, 9-ounces.

MSHL champs down Demons

The Wolverines of the Metro Summer Hockey League swept a two-game series from their Chicago hosts last weekend.

The Wolverines, who won the MSHL championship earlier in the week, defeated the Demons of the Windy City Summer League in a pair of high-scoring contests in Glen Ellyn, Ill.

The MSHL representative rallied from a 7-5 deficit in the third period Saturday to win 10-8. The Wolverines won the rematch Sunday 16-10.

Tim Osborn had three goals and one assist in the first game, Frank Mariani one goal and three assists, Mark Isel two goals and two assists and Joe Burton two goals.

THE WOLVERINES scored three unanswered goals to lead 8-7 before the Demons tied it. Mike Krygler scored the game-winner at 1:57, and Osborn added an empty-net goal — his second of the third period.

Chicago's squad got a boost Sunday when several players who didn't play Saturday appeared for the second game. But they weren't enough to keep the MSHL from winning by an even larger margin.

Burton, the MSHL scoring champion, scored four goals Sunday. Osborn had three goals and five assists, Isel one goal and six assists. The Wolverines attempted 52 shots on goal, the Demons 44.

The Wolverines, who took two goalies and 13 skaters, added Chuck Carvey, Bob Somers and Krygler from the MSHL runner-up Lakers and Mariani from the Wildcats for the series, which annually pits the champions of the two leagues and has taken place eight of the last nine years.

A.J. Baker, founder and commissioner of the MSHL, announced that gate proceeds from the league season totaling about $500, will be donated to the Neil Carnes Scholarship Fund.

Hillsdale, Saginaw Valley in title hunt

Controlling the line will be an experienced group, said Kelly. "We return a lot of veterans on a very talented offensive line," he noted. Included is starting senior guard Doug Strehl (6-2, 250), from John Glenn. Mitchell's return (48 catches in '89) strengthens the receiving. Top pass-catcher Michael Short is gone, but seniors Ted Monken and John Sanders are back. So is junior Todd Gesund (6-0, 185), from North Farmington. Gesund caught 13 passes for 249 yards and one TD last season.

IT MAY BE tough to repeat, however. Ashland College was picked to finish second, with Hillsdale College third and Saginaw Valley State fourth. Ferris State and Northern Michigan tied for fifth in the poll, any of them could challenge for the championship.

At Hillsdale, a strong offensive line and tough defense could propel the Chargers (7-4 overall, 7-3 in the MIFC last season) into contention. The offensive line is anchored by senior center Kurt Urban (6-2, 240), from Plymouth Salem. Urban started every game last season.

"Our offensive line is going to be as strong as it's ever been," said coach Dick Lowry as he prepared for his 35th season. "The question mark will be at quarterback."

Lowry hasn't found a suitable replacement for graduated Craig Como at quarterback, and hinted a freshman may even fill the position. Another notable loss to graduation was tailback Jeff Cameron, who led the team in rushing and receiving.

JUNIOR SPLIT end Joe Ransley

punter last year; and Alan Pitts (right), also from Stevenson, will be a defensive force for Saginaw Valley State.

(5-11, 175), from Livonia Franklin, should help offset the losses; he had nine catches for 193 yards and two TDs in '90.

Of course, should the offense falter, it will be nice having all-MIFC punter Mark Wolter, a senior from Livonia Stevenson, to boot the Chargers out of trouble. Wolter averaged nearly 41 yards a kick last year.

And on defense, there's an abundance of talent. "Our defense is as good as it's ever been," said Lowry. "We have a lot of speed on defense."

Two-year starting defensive tackle Joe Jouppl (6-2, 230), from Plymouth Salem, is a key component on an able defense. Jouppl had 49 tackles, including three quarterback sacks, last year. "Joe should be an awfully good defensive lineman," said Lowry.

Hillsdale should be an awfully good team, if capable replacements at key spots are found.

At least one opposing coach tabbed Saginaw Valley State as the team to watch this season, with good reason. The Cardinals won the last five games of their 1990 campaign after losing five of their first six (one on a forfeit for using an ineligible player). They finished 6-5, 5-5 in the MIFC.

THE DEFENSE is experienced, with 14 of 18 players who started during the season returning. One is junior defensive lineman Alan Pitts (6-3, 255), from Stevenson. Pitts numbered two sacks and three tackles for loss in '90.

Also returning is senior cornerback Brian Tiller (5-8, 170), from Plymouth Salem. Tiller sat out last season after starting as a sophomore. "We're feeling pretty good. Brian Tiller is back after a year away," said Cardinal coach George

Ihler. "We're glad to have him back."

Ihler's also happy to have an extremely productive ground attack back. Sophomores Brett Mullins (1,178 yards rushing) and Brett Burris (860 yards) will be joined in the backfield by senior Kevin Mitchell, who rushed for over 1,000 yards for three consecutive seasons before sitting out last year.

Other teams can contend, but have bigger questions to answer. Ferris State, 5-4-1 in the MIFC last season, needs junior quarterback Doug Arnold to return to the form of his freshman year. Pat Pettit (6-0, 168), a junior flanker from John Glenn, was one of Arnold's favorite targets last season with 28 catches for a team-best 497 yards and two TDs.

Northern Michigan (5-4-1 in '90) has a new coach in Mark Marana and a strong offensive line, which includes senior guard Andy Avery (6-3,

OBSERVER-AREA MIFC PLAYERS

253), from North Farmington. But the Wildcats have lost quarterback Jason Cornell and linebacker Mark Maddox to graduation. Neither will be easily replaced.

FOR WAYNE State, this could be a turn-the-corner season. The Tartars were just 3-7 last season; coach Joe B. Horn is expecting much better this season.

"Our offense should be strong," said Horn. "On defense, we have a lot of guys who have played but not a lot of standouts. We're going to win some games."

His defense has eight players with starting experience returning, including sophomore defensive end Eric Ruth (6-3, 245), from Stevenson, the team's most valuable defensive lineman and honorable mention all-MIFC in '90. Ruth had 50 tackles last year, including five sacks and 11 tackles for loss.

Also back is sophomore safety Eddie Herbert (5-11, 185), from Redford Bishop Borgess, who also gained honorable mention all-MIFC honors and was named WSU's MVP in the secondary. Herbert had 49 tackles and two interceptions in '90. Expect sophomore strong safety Brian Piergentili (5-11, 180), from Stevenson, a part-time starter last season, to see plenty of action, too.

One major question at WSU is the kicking game. Horn hopes redshirt freshman Erik Burton, from Redford Catholic Central, can provide the answer. "Erik Burton is the best technical punter I've worked with, but he is a freshman," said Horn, noting Burton's occasional mis-kicks.

Still, with the right breaks and some contributions from a few newcomers, the Tartars could finish in the upper echelon of the MIFC.

Yankees come up short

Coach Al Fernandez and his Westland Federation Yankees came home late Sunday night from the All-American Baseball Congress World Series, held earlier this month in Spring, Texas.

"Some teams came home before we did," Fernandez said.

Translated, that means Westland Federation was able to win one of its three games and finish fifth among nine teams at the double-elimination tournament. Fernandez was pleased with the showing, considering the Yankees had to play without starting third baseman/pitcher Luke Bonner (Taylor), who was suffering from a knee injury, and starting first baseman Jason Overton (Westland), out with tonsillitis.

The Yankees, who won the regional in Westland, finished the season at 39-5 overall.

"I really felt bad for the two that didn't get to play because it's a once in a lifetime opportunity," Fernandez said.

The Yankees made the most of their first opportunity Thursday in the tournament, whipping New Jersey, 10-2, in a five-inning mercy. Brian Cabana, of Windsor, was the winning pitcher, striking out five, walking two and scattering five New Jersey hits.

EJ Roman's three-run home run in the third scored Aaron Shrewsbury (Dearborn) and Cabana to give Westland a 3-0 lead and the Yankees added four runs in the fourth inning and five in the fifth for the mercy.

Mike Cervenak (Huron) had two hits and two RBI to lead Westland's seven-hit attack.

"THE FIRST game we played very well, like they did in the regional," Fernandez said. "We played good defense, hit the ball well. Everything went according to the book. The nightmare was in the second game."

He was referring to the Yankees' first loss Friday, when Colorado rallied for two unearned runs in the sixth for a 5-3 win. Playing without Bonner and Overton on the corners apparently had an effect on the Yankees, since they allowed Colorado to execute a pair of consecutive suicide squeeze bunts in the sixth to score the go-ahead runs.

"When you lose that way, you look for a rope," joked Fernandez. "Everybody knew the squeezes were coming, we just didn't do it well and that's what happens when you miss your regulars."

Rick Miller (Detroit) was on the mound for the Yankees when the go-ahead runs scored, but the loss went to Chris DeShelter (Allen Park), who allowed two of the four batters he faced in the sixth to reach base on hits.

The starting pitcher was John Scotta (Taylor), who allowed two runs, two hits and struck out six in the first 3 1/3 innings. Chris Kileczinski (Westland) was impressive for 2 1/3 innings, allowing only one run and a hit, before having to leave in the before having to leave because of an elbow injury.

THE YANKEES took the game's first lead, scoring two runs on four straight hits by DeShelter, Tom Hartley (Highland), Scotta and Roman. The RBI in the inning belonged to Scotta and Roman.

In the fifth, Scotta gave Westland Federation its third run when he walked, went reached third on consecutive passed balls, and scored on a wild pitch.

The tournament ended Friday for the Yankees on a down note as they were no-hit in a 6-0 loss to Tennessee. Miller was impressive in defeat, allowing only seven Tennessee hits.

Fernandez was assisted in the coaching department by Franco Gonzalez. The rest of the team included: Scott Felker (Livonia), Scott Dersa (Dearborn), Brandon Mach (Taylor), Michael Phillips (Taylor), Delano Voletti (Westland) and Terry Bigham (Birmingham).

Lang to coach

taller, than 6-3 will be on the roster, Lang said.

LANG SAID HIS freshmen teams finished well-above .500, so at least there's a foundation of winning to build upon.

"To win 15 like the varsity did last year we'd have to be a very good defensive team and a very good offensive team because of our size," Lang said. "We might have to run a Livonia Stevenson type offense. We're not going to be a patsy team, that's for sure, because we've got some kids that can play the game. All the boys in the whole program who are sophomores and up, except for one, played for me at one time or another."

After his stint as girls basketball coach at Bentley, Lang spent three years as the JV boys basketball coach at Churchill. Albertson coached the varsity boys at the time, so the two got to know each other's coaching methods well.

They also were rivals in the late '70s and early '80s when Lang was at Bentley and Albertson coached the Churchill girls varsity basketball team.

"He had very powerful state-ranked teams so those games weren't nice to remember," Albertson said. "We've had good times working together as coaches and he's very knowledgeable. He's worked very hard this summer and has proven to be a 'Charger' at heart. He'll be a good basketball coach at the school."

Drains Run Slow?

You'll never have a slow running, or clogged drain again! The secret? Clean drains don't run slow.

The "slows", or periodic clogs, are SIGNALS that a thick layer of GOOK is choking your pipes. Grease, hair, and other waste stick to your pipes, with every use. This gook deposits along the entire length of the pipe. It chokes your pipes gradually, as it gets thicker and thicker.

Conventional drain openers can't fix slow drains. They react chemically on the surface of the gook. To be effective, they must remain in contact with the waste. Even a small tunnel through the gook lets them flow out to the sewer, leaving the gook behind. In the past, the only way to remove this build-up was to rooter your pipes. An expensive, temporary measure.

Now, with just a few minutes each month, you can easily clean out your pipes... and KEEP them clean with Plumb Clean. It clings, and penetrates deep into the gook. No other product has the Plumb Clean formula. That is what allows it to liquefy even years of build-up. Plumb Clean will clean the entire length of your pipes. It will make your drains run like new, when used as directed. This penetrating action is so revolutionary, we stand behind Plumb Clean with a money-back guarantee! Don't be confused. Plumb Clean is the brand with the money-back guarantee right on the label.

Saves Money. A 1 lb. jar of Plumb Clean holds up to 41 drain treatments. Even if drain openers could fix slow drains, it would take over 10 quart bottles to get the same number of treatments. Plumb Clean costs about 35¢ per treatment. We don't know of anything that cleans drains for less.

Independent laboratory studies show Plumb Clean more effectively breaks down organic waste than all other products tested. So, if your drains have the "slows", act now. Get safe, guaranteed Plumb Clean today! Available only at:

WE'RE ON A BIG ROLL

To be part of the solution, not part of the problem.

Times change. There was once a time when we thought that providing the very best community news coverage was enough.

Today it's not. Today we have a responsibility not only to our readers and advertisers, but also to our environment.

That's why 30% of the newsprint we put on our press has been recycled. This will increase when our other suppliers bring recycled newsprint on line later this year.

Our communities and the entire State of Michigan face a solid waste crisis.

There used to be 624 Type II landfills in Michigan*. The trash from your home, your neighbor's homes and the businesses in your town goes into a Type II landfill. As you read this, there are only 71 of them still open and licensed to do business. That's 71 in all of Michigan's 83 counties. Estimates say one-third of these will be out of business in less than five years.

So what can a business like ours do to be part of the solution and not part of the problem?

We're buying and printing your newspaper on recycled newsprint. We're looking for other recycled products to use in our business. We're recycling all of our newsprint and office paper. We're working to increase public awareness and participation. We're encouraging our readers to recycle.

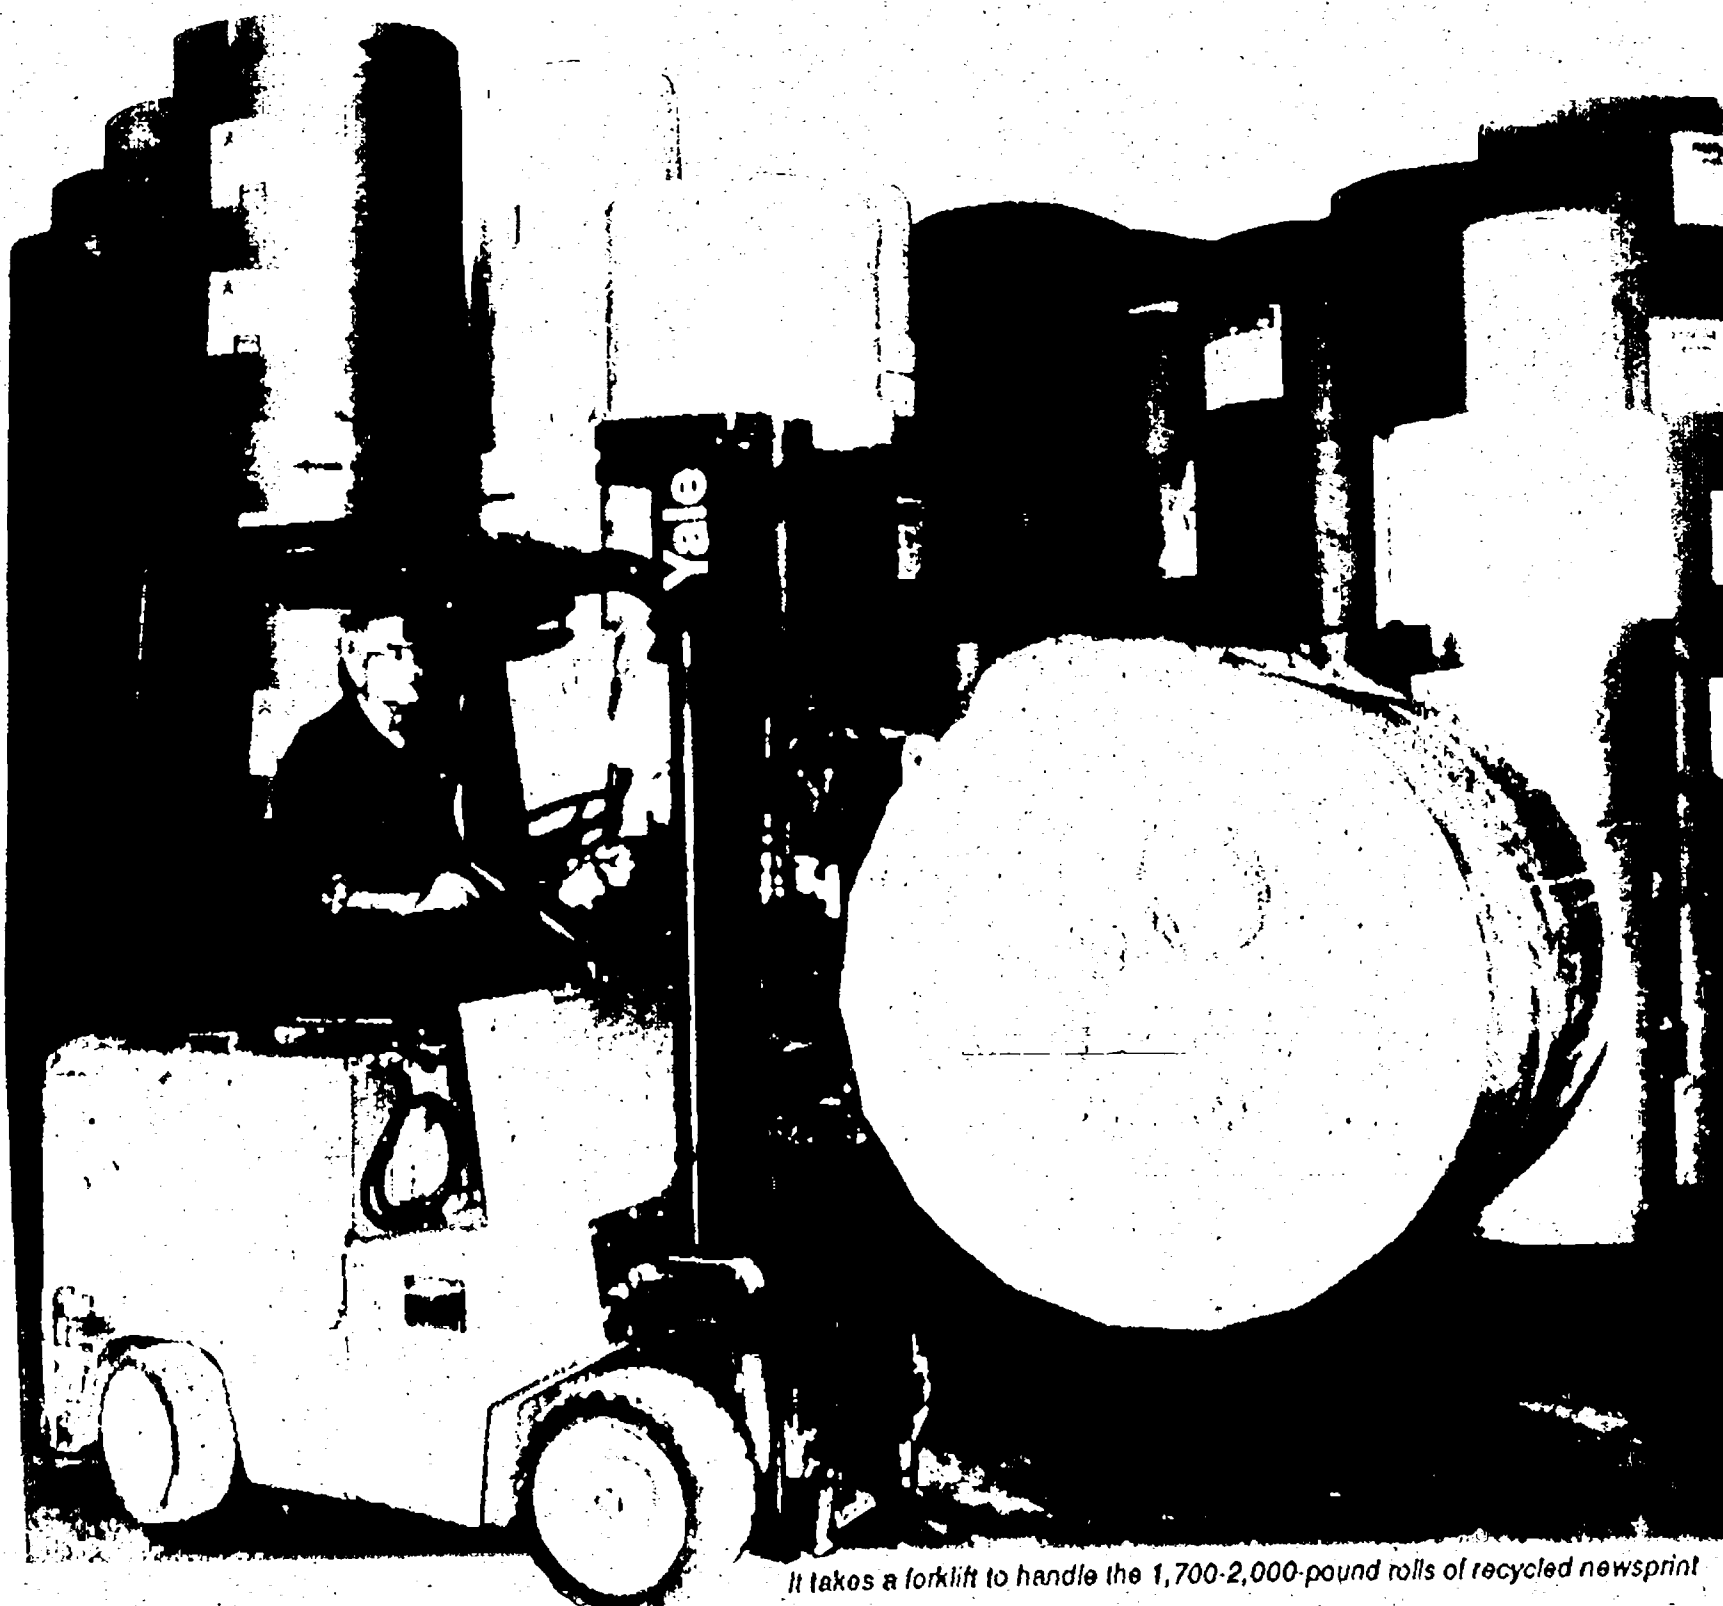

How can you help? Why not begin with this newspaper; recycle it along with others you may have collected. Then start buying recycled products. Spread the word about those landfills and recycle this page by sharing it with a friend.

And if you are already recycling—thank you.

Sometimes, you've got to know when to fold 'em

There are no push-button phones in Meldrum Bay, Ontario, and Lloyd Webster, who retired from professional motorcycle racing to run the general store, sell fishing licenses and operate the local Coast Guard search and rescue boat, has to make a hundred-mile round trip to buy bread for the store.

This tends to make for the kind of vacation where you come back and get surprised by news, which for me included reading about the death of Solchiro Honda, and the demise of the Sterling and Peugeot cars in the U.S. market.

At the age of 84, Mr. Honda was a walking affront to the granola and low-stress lifestyle. Hard-working and hard-living, he once hit the head of Honda Research and Development over the head with a bolt he was displeased with.

HIS NAME was, on the company that typified the post-World War II rise of the Japanese auto industry, but it's not clear today whether Honda's present success was the result of his leadership or the fact that he stepped down long before the company began to gain any respect in the U.S. marketplace.

No matter. Mr. Honda was the kind of belligerent outsider most Americans could identify with, and somehow he managed to maintain the image of an underdog car company even when Honda began to out-sell General Motors.

It was Honda also that led the way in elbowing aside the old-line European manufacturers in the U.S. market. Honda has doggedly pursued the likes of Volkswagen for decades, but the huge surplus of models currently on sale in the United States squeezed the British, French and Italian industries even harder.

Dan McCosh

SO IT WAS no great surprise when Sterling Motors threw in the towel. As a surviving fragment of the British industry that once produced the likes of Triumphs and Jaguars, Sterling was selling a UK-assembled version of the Acura Legend, which put them in the unenviable position of trying to sell a car with Japanese looks and British assembly quality, sort of like trying to make a movie idol out of Woody Allen's body and Stallone's brains.

Most missed will be the class the British brought to the auto show circuits, where they served tea and their models wore hats.

Even more missed (by me, anyway) will be Peugeot, which was the last genuine oddball import on sale in the United States. A vestige of the 1960s, when every import was weird by definition, Peugeot began in the United States by selling diesel-powered French taxicabs with huge, white steering wheels, so bizarre that they made a three-cylinder two-stroke Saab look as stodgy as a funeral limo.

LATER, THE long-winded effort to sell Peugeots as ersatz luxury cars in the face of a beleaguered U.S. industry, the anxious Germans and the aggressive Japanese proved too much, and they folded their U.S. operation after 35 years on these shores.

It's clear that what's happening is the salad days are about over for using the United States as an endless source of wealth for anybody with something on four wheels and an urge to get into the auto business. Peugeot is withdrawing to Europe, which promises both growth that will outstrip the United States in the coming decades, and relentless competition from the Japanese if the new European economic order ever lets them in. I predict that, like Fiat, they will prosper on their home turf.

IN ANY case, I figure Lloyd saw the handwriting on the wall earlier than most of us.

Lloyd moved to Meldrum Bay after selling off a collection of 38 motorcycles, a legacy of 20 years selling Triumphs and other brands, mainly British, in his store near Toronto, before he hung it up and headed north. That also ended 17 years of professional racing with the Triumph motocross team, in Europe and North America, in the years when British bikes still dominated the sport.

"A buddy of mine is still in the business, but he only sold about 50 bikes last year, and he used to sell 500," he told me as we drove through the woods in his pickup to get the bread, 50 miles away.

Defer taxes to accelerate growth

By Dan Boyce and Alan Ferrara
special writers

Local financial planning experts reviewed the data of the family profiled here and made general recommendations based on the participants' resources and goals. The information is for educational purposes only; references are not intended as discrimination or endorsements by Observer & Eccentric Newspapers or the advisers.

Names of participants are withheld upon request, and submitted financial data is confidential.

Sometimes a successful savings plan depends more on how you save than on how much you save.

This lesson can be demonstrated by Fran Bigelow, who lives in her own condo in Birmingham. Bigelow, 47 and single, is employed in staff training and development at a local hospital. She earns $40,000 per year.

Her situation contains a number of financial strengths and weaknesses. She is conservative in her spending habits and has no consumer debt. She is solidly employed in a position that provides good benefits. Her life, auto and homeowners insurance coverage is adequate. Although she saves through a tax-sheltered annuity at work, there appears to be an increased need in the rate of retirement savings to meet her goals for retirement at age 65.

Currently she has inadequate emergency reserves. As of yet, she has not made out a will.

BIGELOW'S SHORT-TERM goals include buying a new car next year, installing air conditioning in her condo at a cost of $3,000, and a major trip to the Far East later this year at a cost of $3,000. She would like to retire in 18 years, so a major long-term financial goal is saving for retirement. After retirement she wants to maintain her current standard of living, which she estimates would cost about $3,000 per month in today's dollars.

Her major strength is her regular savings habit of $500 per month, which she divides equally between tax-sheltered annuity savings and mutual fund investments. She is able to save this much because she has accumulated little debt. Her only debts are an assumed mortgage of $12,000 and a personal loan from her parents of $50,000, which was used to purchase the condo.

Bigelow's pension from the hospital is projected to be only $500 per month, and Social Security is projected to pay approximately $750 per month. Both figures are adjusted for inflation. If her goal is income of $3,000 per month, almost two-thirds of her monthly retirement needs must come through her own savings and investments.

In analyzing her current savings picture, it appears she will fall short of what is required. She is not significantly under-saving, but it appears that to meet her goals she will need to increase her savings from $500 per month to $600-$700 per month.

She asks, "How can my savings be put to better use?"

We would suggest that she increase her savings within her tax-sheltered annuity. Currently, she is saving only about 7 percent of her income in the TSA. She should consider doubling that to 15 percent to about $750 per month. Pre-tax contributions to the annuity aren't taxed until withdrawn so that the $250 increase in contribution reduces her take-home pay by only $150. By reducing the mutual fund savings from $250 to $150 per month, she can save more dollars without significantly reducing her other discretionary expenditures.

This strategy of shifting after-tax investments to tax deductible investments is a good way to "leverage" her savings rate without significantly affecting her standard of living.

BIGELOW HAS done a good job of diversifying her investment portfolio, which contains a general balance between growth-oriented investments and fixed interest assets. She should continue to monitor this mix of investments to get both appreciation of assets and a secure income stream.

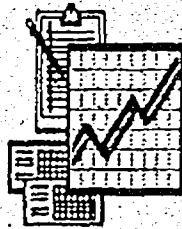

She has suggested a desire to spend a significant amount on short-term goals. Because she only maintains $2,000 in her savings account, she is concerned that she will end up in debt given these short-term expenditures.

"Can I accomplish all I want to do and not hurt my long-term plans?"

To keep costs down, we suggest that instead of buying a new car she consider purchasing a later model used car. Even then she may need to aggressively accumulate savings to afford these items next year, borrow to make these purchases or liquidate some of her growth mutual fund investment.

Our last choice would be to liquidate an investment. If she is forced to sell her growth mutual fund investment, she may be required to do this at an inopportune time and will

U-M graduate student shares award for new business plan

By Doug Funke
staff writer

Some students look upon a class project as a bothersome chore.

Thomas McLean, a Plymouth resident, and a classmate refined an assignment from an entrepreneurship strategy class at the University of Michigan into the winner of the sixth annual Millard Pryor Award.

The award went to the U-M student or team who submitted the most thorough and realistic plan for a new or reconstructed business. McLean and his partner, Peter B. Ramsden, shared a $3,500 cash prize.

Their idea was a weekly news digest summarizing key developments by business category for CEOs and other top executives.

"We saw managers and people in business facing information overload," McLean said. "Time is getting to be a bigger and bigger scarce resource. They have trade periodicals coming across their desks they don't have time to read."

"Our idea was to take all sources (of information) and condense it down to one page. Each page would be one topic. We'd come out with the top 10 stories of the previous week. We'd reference each summary and supply a full text at an additional charge."

"We'd use a combination of scanners and employees to log articles in a data base and screen the top 10 articles," McLean said.

THE INFORMATION would be sent by facsimile machine to top executives around the country in the wee hours of the morning Mondays to be available when they hit their desks to begin another week.

Why fax rather than direct computer access?

"It was our idea higher-level managers have more need for the product, and from our experience, there's still a phobia of personal computers out there," McLean said.

Executives could choose three summaries from categories like tax, real estate, accounting and business law for an annual fee of $200-$250. Additional digests and full-text articles would be available at additional cost.

The big drawback to the plan,

McLean admitted, is that large existing data base companies like Source and CompuServe could easily respond and snuff out smaller upstarts like him.

"COMPETITORS COULD react very easily, hire additional folks for summary sheets and copy what we're doing," he said.

McLean, who recently received a master's degree in business administration, will begin a training program to become a commercial loan officer at National Bank of Detroit.

He has no immediate plans to launch the prize-winning digest but does admit to having an entrepreneurial spirit. The thought of some day starting a business has crossed his mind.

"I look to the bank to provide good experience and exposure to a number of industries," he said.

McLean's impressions of starting a business from scratch as a result of the academic exercise?

"It's a lot of hard work. I knew that going in, but maybe it's more than I expected. There's a lot of risks, too, to take the plunge to quit what you're doing, mortgage the house."

"Having business people and venture capitalists critique the project surprised me how much thought has to go into a lot of details — funding, contingency plans, competitor analysis," he said.

McLean, 28, had previously earned a bachelor's degree in economics from Kalamazoo College and worked five years in financial analysis and investment portfolio management before pursuing an MBA.

Camera sales, use decline

By R.J. King
special writer

With the vacation season in full swing, area camera shops are eyeing a rare downturn in the industry as last year Americans took fewer snapshots and bought fewer cameras than the year before — the first annual decline ever.

"With 35-millimeter cameras in the $300 to $400 range, it's gotten to the point where people are thinking twice about buying a new camera," said Jim Crosby, owner of The Camera Connection in Redford.

"They either put off the purchase or borrow a camera from friends or neighbors. At the same time, everywhere you go today, it seems there's a video camera cradled on someone's shoulder, and that has taken a large chunk out of the 35-millimeter market."

According to the Wolfman Report, an annual survey of the photography industry, there were 15.7 billion snapshots taken last year, down from 16.1 billion the year before. At the same time, new camera sales dropped to 18.7 million from 20 million.

But there is disagreement on whether camcorder sales have hurt the still photography industry. Surveys by the Eastman Kodak Co. suggest within 18 months of buying a camcorder, its customers resume taking almost as many still photos as they did previously.

"Certainly the video camera has become very popular in the last few years, but I see it as a different product with different uses," said Wayne Loder, president of F-Stop, a camera shop in Farmington Hills.

"Both have their place. The still camera is great for shots of the Grand Canyon or family albums, and the video camera is all about action — a day at the park, hot-air balloon rides. They just have different uses."

STILL, PART of the decline in still photography and camera sales may reflect the growing popularity of video cameras, as sales of camcorders rose 29 percent to almost three million units last year. Because camcorders play back through videocassette recorders, and therefore don't require film processing, photo shop owners believe they are losing business to live-action models.

At the same time, like most other businesses, the snapshot industry was hurt by both the economic recession and war jitters after Iraq invaded Kuwait last August. The dual punch of these events sharply reduced vacation travel.

"Our business is up between 20 and 30 percent from earlier in the year," said William Day, manager of the Birmingham Camera Shop in downtown Birmingham. "I could tell vacation travel was down in January and February, because our passport and visa business was down 20 percent."

Some camera shops say they have put off placing camcorders alongside their selection of still cameras simply because camcorders take up so much room. Other shops have tried to offer both models, but with mixed results. Still, many expect the general photography business to pick up again as the economy improves, although at moderate rates.

SALES ARE said to be strong for small 35-millimeter "point and shoot" cameras with automatic focus. Other strong sellers include cameras with features such as built-in zoom lenses and improved flashes, though the big question is whether amateur photographers will embrace the latest offering — digital cameras that store photos on small disks for display on television.

"People have been taking slides for years and flashing them on screens at home, so the digital model picks up on that," said Day. "But the price for digital is high, and the quality isn't as good as 35-millimeter cameras."

Additional software may also be required to manipulate and transmit the pictures on TV screens. Despite these drawbacks, companies such as Ameritech Publishing Inc. in Troy have found the new cameras to be an excellent sales tool. Ameritech, which publishes more than 450 white and yellow page directories, is beginning to equip field personnel with the new technology to encourage small business owners to include personal photographs with their advertisements.

"By equipping our sales people with digital cameras and Sony Watchmans (small televisions), we can offer potential advertisers one-button technology," said Gary Drock, president and CEO of Ameritech.

'Welcome to Julianne's neighborhood'

She helps those in need of home

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

In Julianne Meyer-Sorek's neighborhood, there is poverty, hunger and people who are homeless. All of which is probably news to those who live nearby the Livonia resident.

But it's all a matter of perception. While most would suppose their community begins and ends at the end of the block, Meyer-Sorek's world encompasses a good deal more than even the city limits. In her opinion, the suffering of those less fortunate is not an occurrence in some nether region of the globe. She witnesses it virtually in her own back yard, only a 20-minute drive away.

"I believe if you see something, you react to it," said Meyer-Sorek, who grew up in Garden City and is a 1978 graduate of Farmington Hills Mercy High School.

In what Meyer-Sorek calls a part of her "neighborhood," is the Women & Children's Sanctuary on Ohio Street, off of Tireman in Detroit. She volunteers twice a week at the facility in St. Luke's Catholic Church, which offers support services to women and children who are homeless.

The program is something of an alternative to a life of soup kitchens and homeless shelters for poverty-stricken families.

THOSE PLACES only serve as stop-gap measures, providing only a temporary place to sleep and eat. Often, it's a cold and impersonal setting where poor people are merely processed through an overburdened system only to be pushed out the other end.

The Women & Children's Sanctuary helps families with basic needs such as finding safe and affordable housing along with food and clothing. More important, though, people who come there have a name, a warm hello and a smile to greet them.

Volunteers, such as Meyer-Sorek, try to help women regain a bit of self-respect and esteem damaged by enduring constant hardships.

"To give a woman a home and some social services and not address the root of the problem... she's not going to make it," said Sister Connie Supan, who was program director until July 31.

"One of the women has a saying, 'You have to eat an elephant one bite at a time.' Life makes them feel like they have to eat the elephant all at once."

For 2½ hours twice a week, clients learn such things as life management skills, positive parenting and running a household. They're given weekly and long-term goals.

They might be something as seemingly simple as calling an ad in a newspaper for a place to live or being assertive but courteous in dealing with a landlord.

WOMEN AND their children will endure 1½-hour bus rides across the city, tugging along infants and preschoolers for the experience.

As 11 a.m. approaches, a mother and her two children parade through the door as one of the first arrivals. Meyer-Sorek addresses everyone by name, bending over to say a special hello to one little guy who turns away shyly and breaks into a big grin.

Kids head for the basement play room. Their mothers will remain upstairs to work on such things as computer training, GED preparation and art therapy in order to explore their feelings.

On this day, Meyer-Sorek takes charge of the group of well-behaved children. She immediately gets them started on an art project using various scraps of paper.

Activities usually center around an educational theme. For instance, one week the playroom was turned into a restaurant where kids learned how to cook.

"Is that a new hairdo?," inquires one of the children to Meyer-Sorek. She tells the kid yes and he returns to his project.

"She can command their attention," Sister Connie Supan said. "They're happy to be here."

"OUR CHILDREN have had a lot of trauma — being uprooted, having people disappear out of their life. Some of them come from homes where the fathers were abusive. The routine of someone there to greet them and who's glad to see them builds up this feeling that they are safe."

Meyer-Sorek doesn't have a degree in child psychology or social work. She majored in economics at the University of Michigan, working seven years in a publisher's office and doing marketing for a job bank. Instead, she relies on her experience as a mother, raising her own two children, John and Caitlin. When a babysitter can't be found, she brings the kids with her to the sanctuary.

"They like it," she said. Meyer-Sorek became involved in the Women & Children's Sanctuary through Active Friends of the Homeless. She read a story that AFOTH was in need of volunteers.

The Livonia-based group initially started working on the idea of devel-

They serve up dinner with dash of mystery

By Loraine McClish
staff writer

A murder mystery gets solved every Thursday night in Bobby's Country House, in Livonia.

It's something new for Alexandra and Bob Sakellaris, Farmington Hills residents who operate the facility at 35780 Five Mile Road.

It's a labor of love for Steve Katz, a Livonia resident who quit his job as a sales representative to turn full-time actor, producer, and writer for the fledgling company, 'Entertaining People.'

Of the company, owned by Katz and his co-producer Kathleen Lietz of Redford, the former says, "So far so good."

"Kathy and I are both board members for the Plymouth Theatre Guild, so we know a lot of actors and see a lot of them audition," he said. "We've hand-picked the actors and actresses we use in our scripts and have excellent casts that all work well together."

But the key to the murder mystery dinner theater is interaction with the audience, which "is an intrinsic part of all of our scripts."

"The actor or actress must be able to respond or ad lib under any conceivable set of circumstances because so many times those circumstances change with a different audience," Katz said.

ENTERTAINING people has produced five scripts for a large variety of audiences. Four have been produced for dinner audiences. The other, called "Stanley and Sara,"

Before I begin the analysis I would like to say that my analysis is always done on the handwriting and not on the contents of the letter.

Our writer today is a social young woman who wants to live her life to the fullest. Seemingly there is a strong need to experience change and a variety of activities in her daily routine.

A restless nature is searching for something. When things become too routine, boredom sets in. She needs to guard against becoming overly involved at times.

On the day she wrote this letter, she was feeling irrepressible optimism. However, her moods can go from the peaks to the pits, sometimes without too much provocation. EVIDENCE OF a sharp mind can be seen in this handwriting. She takes a direct approach as she faces the challenges of life. Time is used effectively. Interest is in the large issues as opposed to all the little details.

In the area of personal goals, she is strongly determined and expects positive results. Still fulfillment appears to be eluding her.

Our writer has matured and become independent in many areas. And yet some emotional hangnails from her early life still remain.

THERE IS self-consciousness here. She is uncomfortable about some aspects of her appearance. This may be the cause of her sensitivity to criticism.

Highly impressionable and emotional, she cannot hide her feelings. Whatever she is experiencing, be it happiness, anxiety, elation, sadness, etc., her body language gives her away.

She is individualistic and observant. Often she relies on her instincts and intuition for answers. Decisions, however, are not always easy for her to make. Some indecisiveness is suggested in this handwriting.

IN RELATIONSHIPS, she prefers peace and harmony. She is often open to the thoughts and feelings of others, but is prepared to stand alone if this becomes necessary. In addition, she has a little tendency to look at others with a critical eye.

She is glib and verbally versatile in communication skills. A tad of humor sparks her conversations. She may also have creative writing ability and good imaginative potential.

oping a resource center for women and children on the street.

Today, what was once the dream of a group of people sitting in a basement is reality. The Women & Children's Sanctuary is entering its second year of operation as a separate non-profit organization. The volunteer-operated facility depends solely on financial contributions from the private sector.

ACCORDING TO Supan, Meyer-Sorek has been committed from the onset. She serves on the board of directors for the sanctuary. She writes proposals for grants and is involved in fund-raising projects, such as selling Entertainment Passbooks.

Then there are the little things. Meyer-Sorek arrives an hour before the families in order to help prepare lunches. She organizes the playroom, getting donations for cribs and toys from places like the Learning Tree in Livonia. Sometimes, she'll transport clients to and from the sanctuary.

But there is a price. Some families have been coming to the sanctuary for a year. Others have gone, their whereabouts unknown.

"There are some people you can't help but become personally involved," she said. "I go to their home and pick them up. After seeing people twice a week over a period of time, it naturally progresses into a friendship."

Meyer-Sorek doesn't impose her values on the mothers or tell them how to run their lives. She said that can be destructive.

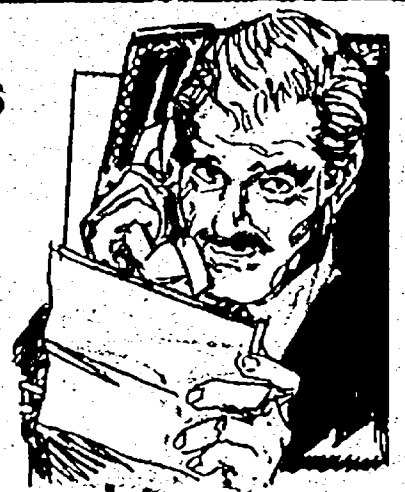

Rather she relates as a parent, perhaps a person, to offer an ear to someone who is just more than a little low on cash.

"I have a couple of children; I can't imagine sitting on the curb with no place to stay," she said. "I often said that if I had half the problems of these people, I don't know if I could wake up in the morning."

was written to entertain buses full of tourists on long trips.

Stanley and Sara are newlyweds whose car breaks down on the road. They hail down the bus and ask for help. The minute the couple are aboard the bus, the show begins.

"It sometimes takes a while for the riders to catch on to what is going on, but when they do, they keep interacting with us all the way," Katz said.

The dinner theater format begins with the actors and actresses greeting the guests as they arrive for the show. They introduce themselves personally and chat, then mingle or table hop to say hello to other guests.

When dinner is ready to be served, the cast is seated at a prominent table. The cast talks among themselves and to those around them. Sometimes one or two of the cast will have a conversation all can hear on the way to the bar, for example, or use whatever ruse possible to give out clues. The murder may have already taken place, or may take place during dinner.

Many times, during the early part of the evening, a guest will be asked if he or she will cooperate by pretending to be a given character.

"It's easy; it's fun. Nobody is put on the spot. Nobody is ever intimidated. We keep it light and funny and entertaining," Katz said.

BOTH ALEXANDRA and Bobby Sakellaris come from families that have a long history in the restaurant business. They have been operating Bobby's Country House for about seven years, and closed down the restaurant when the banquet part of the business began taking up the bulk of their time.

"We're always filled up Friday, Saturday and Sunday nights, so the Murder Mystery Dinner Theatres had to be on Thursdays," she said. "We've enjoyed the Thursday nights so much I am doing what I can to get some of the people who have booked our rooms interested in hiring Entertaining People for their entertainment."

"I have a feeling this is going to be some kind of a trend. I think this is going to be the new thing for private parties."

"We tailor our scripts to any kind of special-interest group audience, from a Sweet 16 Party to a 50th Anniversary," Katz said. "We are continually working on new scripts and coming up with new ideas."

KATZ JOKES that he thinks he must have hit his mid-life crisis when he gave up his job to give Entertaining People all of his time and energies.

"Murder mystery companies have come and gone, many of them were evening jobs and the people running them just ran out of steam," he said. "For myself, the time came when I just had to make a decision. I believe in this, so I had to try — to give it my all."

Katz and Lietz have both worked as actors on and off since high school days.

Katz graduated with a degree in philosophy from the University of Toledo. Knowing about Socrates didn't help him much in the way of marketing Entertaining People, so, he says, "the way has sometimes been rocky, but I always liked people. I was always a ham. It all fell together. I like what I'm doing."

The murder mystery changes every month in Bobby's Country House. For reservations, call 464-5555.

Sonlight Club provides Christian fellowship and fun

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

WHERE THERE isn't beer, there's root beer. Where there isn't smoke, there is spirituality.

And Sonlight Club in Ypsilanti is not a place where a guy asks a woman if she is a Virgo or a Cancer. The cross is the only sign patrons have, in common at this nightclub catering to Christians.

Strobe lights flash off the dance floor as young people throw down to the latest in Christian music by such non-Top 40 contemporaries as Michael W. Smith, Halo and Petra.

"I think it's a big improvement over nightclubs," said David Kraemer, 25, of Westland, drinking an A&W root beer and watching the action on the dance floor with a friend, Rebecca Moore of Redford.

You can't have strong fellowship when you're only around non-Christians.

RULES ARE rather simple at Sonlight, which is only open Saturdays at Radisson on the Lake off I-94 on the Huron Street exit.

No suggestive dancing is allowed. A dress code calls for "proper and modest" clothes to be worn. Of course, alcohol and smoking are forbidden.

Otherwise, organizer Tony Weatherly just wants everyone to have fun.

Weatherly started Sonlight Ministries two years ago as an alternative to the smoky secular bar scene. He had put on similar Christian clubs in Louisiana and Tennessee before moving to Michigan a few years ago.

"We're not against bars," Weatherly said. "We preach a positive message, 'You don't have to drink to have a good time.'"

TURNOUT HAS been on the upswing. After 18 months of being "in the hole," Weatherly said the club is at a break-even point. Cover at the door is $4; a can of pop goes for $1 and pizza slices are sold for the same price.

But people come from as far away as Wyandotte to savor the Christian-styled life.

Most are in their teens and early 20s, representing a cross-section of denominations such as Baptists, Assemblies of God and Methodists.

Weatherly advertises Sonlight Club on Christian radio stations such as WCM-AM in Ypsilanti and in entertainment-oriented newspapers such as Metro Times. Word of mouth brings most patrons out.

PEOPLE LIKE Julie Schonfeld, 18, of Livonia, who's visiting for the first time with regular Greg Gordish of Redford. Both attend Livonia Assemblies of God.

"It's very tough to find places like this," said Gordish, who is a Wayne County sheriff's deputy. "It's a great alternative to the bar scene. It can be a supplement to church activity."

Lesley Carmichael of Plymouth agrees. She's a senior at Michigan State University, majoring in journalism.

For Carmichael and other Christians, a college campus doesn't offer much in the way of night life without the unsavory aspects.

"There's no place I can go to dance without there being drinking, smoking and people hitting on you," said Carmichael, who attends Open Door Christian Church in

Some of those seated throw up a clenched fist and begin whooping and hollering at the slightest inspiration. A group of dancers performs a set of choreographed moves, looking a bit like Up With People in Studio 54.

Others such as Joel Thomas of Canton prefer to observe and enjoy the rapture of music with a messed pace. "I'm really into Christian music. That's why I'm here," said Thomas, who is a computer programmer and attends First Baptist Church in Canton. "I've never been a club-oriented person."

ON THIS night, those in attendance are treated to a special appearance by a heavy metal outfit, Detonator. A few people stick tissue in their ears when the long-haired band members launch into a 20-minute set of spiritual guitar grunge.

Detonator recently became a converted lot, said Linda Weatherly, Tony's wife.

"These guys really mean business," she said.

On stage, the four-piece metal group is joined by another Christian singer, Adam Plom. Band members and guest singer alike share their testimony with an attentive audience.

"There's a few people here who know the Lord and we're glad you're here," Plom said. "There's a few people here who don't know the Lord. We're even happier you're here."

Jeff Kassuba of Ypsilanti and Libbie Rinaldi of Wyandotte "step out" on a Saturday night at the club.

Diners climb aboard for unforgettable train fare

The Michigan Star Clipper departs 7 p.m. Thursday to Saturday, 5 p.m. Sundays, from Walled Lake. Reservations are required. Prices are $44.20 for dinner, $65.20 for dinner and entertainment. (Price includes tax and gratuity.) For more information, call 960-9440.

THE SLEEK silver dining cars of the Michigan Star Clipper can't help but draw attention. Shirtless children stop their play, and drivers blocked at railroad crossings roll down their windows to wave at the bit of railroad history passing by.

On board, nattily dressed diners pause briefly between the first and second installments of their five-course meal. Shielded from the heat and bugs of a steamy summer night, they take in the panorama of wetlands, forests, and ever-encroaching subdivisions that is north Oakland County.

The glamour of dining on the rails comes alive each weekend aboard the Michigan Star Clipper Dinner Train. The three-hour trip embarks Thursday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday from an historic train depot in Walled Lake.

There are only eight dinner trains in the entire country. Trains Unlimited Inc. of Iowa owns three of them, with versions in Rhode Island and Iowa, as well as the Michigan Star Clipper.

THE CARS, built for the Pennsylvania Railroad in 1956, are known as Keystone Cars. Their original use was short-lived because their signature low windows were constantly being covered by high station platforms. Now refurbished with carpeting and long rows of mirrors where baggage racks used to be, they glide at an almost bumpless 8-10 miles per hour as the Michigan Star Clipper.

Since 1989, the Michigan train has run in Paw Paw, until contract agreements with the owners of the track there derailed this spring. Larry Coe, who runs his own sightseeing cars on 8.9 miles of well-tended Oakland County track, offered a solution.

The dinner train now embarks from his circa 1800s red and white train depot near the corner of Maple and Pontiac Trail roads. This easier accessibility for metro Detroiters has made the train a success.

The first half of the journey, four miles into Wixom and then back again, glided past fields of wildflowers, rows of identical yellow school buses, and the back yards of both grand and modest houses.

Past the depot again, the second leg remains the most enchanting, as trees, bushes, and vines along the track formed a green tunnel through wetlands and bird sanctuaries. The pastoral image was only obscured by the new homes, which find their way deeper and deeper into the wilderness each year.

BY THE TIME the main course arrived, we were parked along the quiet shores of Woodpecker Lake.

And what a dinner this was! A steaming blend of broccoli and shrimp soup began the five-course meal, which includes salad and a choice of three entrees (selected when you make reservations). Two of these change monthly, with this trip offering sole Meunier stuffed with crabmeat and herbs or almond chicken streusel. I chose the popular standard, a thick cut of Iowa prime rib, cooked just the way I ordered it.

spilling over with white chocolate mousse — the train was on its way home. At dusk, lights atop the train illuminate trees along the tracks in dreamy shadows.

There are two separate dining cars available, decorated identically except for color, one with dining only and the other offering entertainment.

ON THURSDAY nights, a murder mystery train finds actors scattered among the diners. The mayhem occurs early, then diners are given clues to figure out who done it.

Fridays and Saturdays offer a cabaret show that changes every two months or so. The current fare finds a young couple, accompanied by pianist Yvonne Lowry, performing movie tunes from "The Jazz Singer" to "Dirty Dancing."

They fared best during the early numbers, with fresh-faced renditions of "Cheek to Cheek" and "Good Morning," then grew tiresome as the decades rolled by. "Mrs. Robinson" and a Beatles medley led to, predictably enough, "Fame" and "Evergreen."

For a majority of passengers, this was exactly the type of wholesome entertainment they ordered. Some mouthed along with the familiar lyrics.

Diners in the other train car were serenaded by classical or elevator music depending on who selected the tape.

A Michigan Star Clipper excursion is pricey, but unforgettable. From the first nostalgic cry of "All aboard!" to the last bit of chocolate ambrosia, you'll find it money well spent.

photos by SHARON LeMIEUX/staff photographer

One of a kind

Redford artist fashions wearable paintings

By Linda Ann Chomin
special writer

LIONS, WIZARDS, tigers and precious pups enliven the fabric of T-shirts, sweat shirts, jean jackets and coats, jumpsuits and jeans — handpainted or airbrushed by Redford Township artist Darren Robinson.

Saturday, Aug. 17, Robinson will create his one-of-a-kind painted clothing, airbrushing before the customer's eyes between noon and 6 p.m. at T's-N-Things, inside Wonderland Mall, Plymouth Road at Middlebelt, Livonia.

From painted realism to abstract geometric shapes, the wearable art features scenes from everyday life, as well as fantasy.

Animals, clowns, flowers, flamingo and dragons keep Robinson painting into the early morning hours on many a night.

"It started out as a hobby for relaxation. Painting helps me relax from a very stressful job as chief engineer for a hotel in Novi," Robinson said in a July interview at the Farmington/Farmington Hills Founders Festival.

ROBINSON CREATES the wearable art using three different painting methods.

One time-consuming method is airbrushing through a stencil. Robinson airbrushes the image onto fabric after cutting out separate stencils for eyes, nose, lips, hands, fingernails and clothing.

"Something that I want good and sharp like the clown; first, I'll hand-cut the stencils, then spray through them to give me clean lines."

A second method of painting is

"I can't say exactly how I know but when I look at a color, I know what colors it takes to make it."

demonstrated in a head pose of an American Indian child with a great white wolf above him. It was done free-hand with an airbrush, creating a dream-like scene.

"That method gives me a real loose effect, a spirit type of effect."

COMPRISING A large part of Robinson's business, his pet portrait T-shirts call for the third method of painting.

Robinson handpaints the portrait, from a favorite photograph of your dog or cat. On a beige sweat shirt, a brown Sheltie with white chest lifts his head, seeking the viewer's attention.

"I've done at least 100 pet portrait shirts. They're handpainted with an acrylic-based paint."

ROBINSON USES acrylics and permanent fabric dyes to create the wearable art. The vibrant colors are heat-sealed after painting is completed, ensuring the garment's washability.

"I go to a couple of fashion shows a year. The bright colors are in now."

Darren Robinson handpainted this sensitive portrayal of a Sheltie for the proud owner. Pet portrait T-shirts are $45 for a head pose, $55 for a full pose and $60 for two head poses on the same shirt.

A festival of family fun will feature paintings, wood, handwoven rugs, fine jewelry, soft-sculpture bunnies and Native American mandalas and dream catchers by more than 70 artists.

The second annual Arts on the Square will be Saturday-Sunday, Aug. 17-18, at Sheridan Square, Garden City.

"We're getting bigger and better. The quality of our exhibitors is excellent. Last year we had 50; this year we could have as many as 72," said Del Broquet, who chairs the Sheridan Square Promotion Committee and owns Your Travel Planner.

Two days of art, entertainment, food and fun have been planned by participating Sheridan Square merchants and Garden City Fine Arts Association members to promote quality arts and crafts.

"We want to give the impression that Arts on the Square is quality. We've screened the exhibitors and there's a good variety," said Norma McQueen, Garden City Fine Arts Association president and The Art Gallery manager.

DOTTY RICHMOND and Diana Tibbits of Westland will display floppy, pink-eared bunnies in Sunday dresses, Amish dolls, clowns, saucers, and quilt racks for the second year.

"I sew in my spare time. I sew the bunnies and Diana stuffs them. If you enjoy it the time just goes by."

Michelle Gant of Garden City displays a handmade Native American mandala suitable for hanging. She also markets dream catchers to keep good dreams in and bad dreams out.

Richmond said.

Richmond's husband, Richard, makes the wood items. Daughter Donna Miller of Westland will be in the show for the first time this year with refrigerator magnets, one of which is an artist's easel.

Museum serves up treats from Canton's earlier times

FOR A flavorful slice of community history, try a visit to the Canton Historical Society Museum.

The little red-brick building is the former one-room Canton Center School, built in 1884 by Hargreave Stillington. It was the last actively used schoolhouse for all eight grades in Wayne County. The township now owns the building, home to the museum since 1982.

In addition to periodic special exhibits, like the current Great Lakes Indian artifacts, the museum boasts three permanent exhibits, which spotlight the history of the township's farms, villages and schools.

A display of baking utensils includes a square chain cloth once used to scrub pots. "It looks like a piece of armor," said Marta

McCabe, society secretary and museum volunteer. This display also features canning jars, a butter crock and a hand-cranked butter churn.

The quilt and needlework display includes an 1861 woven coverlet. A display of personal accessories includes hats, shoes, gloves, purses, jewelry and shavers.

THERE'S ALSO a display of 20-century military uniforms. A weapons exhibit features swords and an 1858 Spencer rifle.

Old class photos, inkwell desks, a quill pen, an antique globe, the 1889 Harper's Fifth Reader and the 1912 Practical Geography for Common Schools adorn the school display.

Other notable items include an 1879 buggy, slipper chairs, a century-old cradle and doll, a chamber pot, a Potawatami Indian diorama, and square nails from West's General Store, at Cherry Hill. Old-time wash items include a wringer, a washboard and irons.

Many of the artifacts go back to the 19th century. "Almost everything we have has been donated," McCabe said. "That has been very nice."

Operating money is derived from memberships, contributions and fund-raisers. There is no admission charge to the museum.

"A visit to the museum is a way of exploring your community," McCabe said. "It gives people a connection to their past and brings them closer to their community roots. It lets them find out things haven't necessarily changed that much."

STAFFED BY volunteers, the museum is on Canton Center Road, south of Cherry Hill. Hours are 1-3 p.m. Tuesdays and 1-4 p.m. Saturdays. A limited-edition, pen-and-ink print of Canton Center School, framed with wood from a 150-year-old Canton barn, is available to buy for $75.

The adjacent open-air Bart Berg Memorial Building displays large historical artifacts such as cemetery stones, cornerstones and farm implements.

Meanwhile, members Joan Palmer and Ruth Wiles continue to do research in anticipation of the Canton Historical Society commissioning an author to chronicle the history of one-room schoolhouses in the township. Five of the nine still exist: Hough, Canton Center, Cherry Hill, Hanford and Sheldon.

The researchers are looking for pictures, report cards, certificates and other memorabilia that predate school consolidation in the mid-1950s. Call Palmer at 453-5231.

The two previously collaborated in researching two other society books: "Cornerstones: A History of Canton Township Families," written by Belleville author Diane Wilson in 1988, and "Canton Cemetery Records," published in 1990.

Wiles' husband, John, can trace his family roots in Canton back to the 1830s. They live in his grandparents' 150-year-old house.

A volunteer docent, Wiles especially likes it when kids visit the museum. As she put it: "I try to share with them my excitement for local history here in our museum of living history."

been watching me, now she's got the bug. Eventually, it will be a family affair," Richmond said.

The soft-sculpture bunnies are $15. Amish dolls can be bought as a couple. The boy and girl together are $25, or $15 if sold separately.

JIM HICKS of Garden City hand-weaves rugs on a loom the size of a small room. For eight years, he and wife Vera have worked as a team to create washable, wearable rugs, placemats, pot holders and table runners.

"It takes me 30 minutes to weave one once it's all looped up. My wife does the looping and I weave. Start to finish, it takes three hours," Hicks said.

The rugs come in sizes from 18-by-30 inches to 9-by-12 feet. They can be ordered in custom sizes and colors and are machine washable.

"They're reversible. You can get both sides dirty before you wash them," Hicks joked. "You can't wear them out; they last forever."

Hicks will have a miniature loom on display at the show for those who'd like to see how he weaves the rugs. Prices are $12 for rugs 2-by-3 feet, $15 for 2-by-4 feet, and $3 a square foot for sizes larger than that.

MICHELLE GANTT of Garden

City will exhibit Native American wallhangings she has been making for the last year.

"They're called Indian mandallas. Originally, when men of the tribe did a good deed, they would display a single eagle feather on it so that people coming into the tent would know that this was a good warrior," Gantt said.

Cranberries, blueberries, beets and marigolds were used to color the symbols of good luck and good health.

"We try to keep it as authentic as possible. I did a lot of research on the colors. The stronger the colors, the more power they had," Gantt said. "Another Native American artifact were Dream Catchers. They would be placed over tent openings to keep good dreams in and keep bad dreams out."

Prices for the wallhangings range from $10 to $200 and can be special ordered. "These are from my soul. No two are exactly alike."

was there last year," Gosney said. "It's fun. I really enjoy it."

NORMA McQUEEN will demonstrate acrylic painting on glass Christmas ornaments. Gray and white cats, Northern Orioles and country farm scenes decorate the bulbs that are $7 each, $10 if done from a photo of your dog or cat.

McQueen also will have hand-sketched greeting cards of fancy ladies in fancy hats for $1 each. Also, cards with dogs, graphic black cats and delicately drawn kittens.

"I encourage people to come. I think they'll be pleasantly surprised. They don't have to go miles for quality. It's right here by local artists," McQueen said.

His creativity yields wearable art

SINCE HE has no formal training, Robinson believes that, for him, art is instinctive.

"I can't say exactly how I know but when I look at a color, I know what colors it takes to make it."

"I (gradually) build up my colors. I know what colors to put on it to build up that color."

Robinson points to a scene with a dragon on the back of a jean jacket, the first in a series of fantasy jackets.

Castle towers and a wizard with a crystal ball decorate the front of the jacket.

"First I'll put yellow, over that orange, red, brown, black, back over with yellow, and last, I put highlights in with white."

P.D.Q. UNIQUE is the name of the wearable art business run by Robinson and wife Pat. Teamwork is essential to building and maintaining stock, then selling the creations at art fairs.

"She helps tremendously," Robinson said. "I couldn't do it without her."

Pat designs and decorates Victorian-style shirts with ivory lace, ribbons and roses for women and girls. She also paints the leaves around Darren's flowers and baskets for his puppets.

"My whole mind is clothes, what can I put on them," Pat said.

BETWEEN THEM, they decorate three dozen shirts a week. During summer and fall, they exhibit at art fairs and festivals about every other weekend.

Prices for P.D.Q.'s wearable art range from $25 for a T-shirt to $900 for a full-length jean coat. The average price for a custom-painted jean jacket is between $200 and $500.

For information, call P.D.Q. Unique at 533-6233.

Take a long piece of string. Wrap it around a small stack of newspapers. Then take it to a recycling center or leave it out for collection on recycling day.

You'll be helping U.S. newspapers in their drive to encourage recycling. More than a third of our country's newspaper print was recycled last year. But without your help, we won't have the material to make recycling work.

Fast films help build in more shooting options

Fast film enabled Monte Nagler to use a small aperture with increased depth-of-field for this shot taken on Manitoulin Island in Ontario.

Party-goers, drive-in theaters and vampires all come alive as darkness approaches. After dark is one of the times that the new super fast films come alive, too.

Never before have so many high-speed emulsions been available. They've practically introduced a new dimension to photography. You can now shoot in dimmer light than ever before, use faster shutter speeds and gain increased depth-of-field.

Fast films mean natural, indoor portraits even under candlelight, illuminated night scenes and good shots at the concert and circus where flash just won't do.

photography

smaller apertures to gain depth-of-field.

All of these advantages are available in color negative films such as Kodak Gold 1600, Fuji Super 1600, Kodak 3200 and Ektachrome 800/1600, and black and white films can use Fuji Neopan 1600 and the remarkable Kodak T-Max 3200.

REMEMBER THAT film speeds are directly related to shutter speeds and apertures. Say, for example, that a 100 film gives you a meter reading in a low light situation of F-4 at 1/8 second — too slow to hand hold.

Changing to a 1600 speed film will enable you to gain 4 F-stops (100 to 200 is one, 200 to 400 is two, 400 to 800 is three, and 800 to 1600 is four) and you can now hand hold easily at 1/125 second at the same aperture.

Conversely, remaining at the 1/8 second shutter speed with 1600 speed film will allow you to close the aperture down to F-16 for a tremendous increase in depth-of-field.

BE SURE not to use fast films for all your photo taking. When the light is bright, stick to slower emulsion films. Your pictures will be less grainy and will have more saturated colors.

But, as you can see, faster films certainly have their place. So speed on down to your film supplier for a few rolls... just don't drive too fast.

Monte Nagler is a professional photographer based in Farmington Hills.

What's in a name? Plenty, builders say

By Gerald Frawley
Staff writer

The diversity of residential development names is amazing.

This Pointes, That Something, Animal Run, Wood Acres, Blank Ridge, Such and Such Estates, So and So Farms, Whatever Lakes, Someplace Pines, There Meadows, Here Rock, and Three Ridge Pine Wood Lake Meadows Estates — names aren't selected by accident.

Gary Shapiro, president of the Ivanhoe Building Co. in West Bloomfield, said development names can be critical to a project's success.

Ivanhoe's most recent developments include Mission Springs, Pointe on Pleasant Lake, and Woodland Ridge — the last in association with Biltmore Properties — all in West Bloomfield.

"Names give a community a sense of identity," Shapiro said. "A big part of what the developer does is to set the tone for a community."

Setting the tone for a community includes a name, logos, entrance signs, architectural and landscape styles — all of which creates a distinct feeling and attracts a certain type of person, Shapiro said.

But it all begins with a name, he said.

Shapiro said the process of naming the development begins the moment he acquires a parcel of land.

Generally, he said he starts by identifying geographical features and then proceeds by taking into account the community and the market he is targeting for the development.

OTHER DEVELOPERS might start with different criteria. But Shapiro said he begins with a geographic theme because he takes great pride in the lengths Ivanhoe goes to retain the natural elements of development sites.

After he determines the dominant geographic elements, Shapiro said he begins the long process of brainstorming, late evening doodling and soul searching.

"I may pick 50 names before settling on four or five that I really like, and then I play with these for a while," he said. "There's no magic to it, but there's got to be some thought behind it."

After settling on the best options, Shapiro said he reviews his favorites for weeks (sometimes months) until finally one stands above the rest.

A good name, he said, shouldn't be trendy, because it has to stand the test of time.

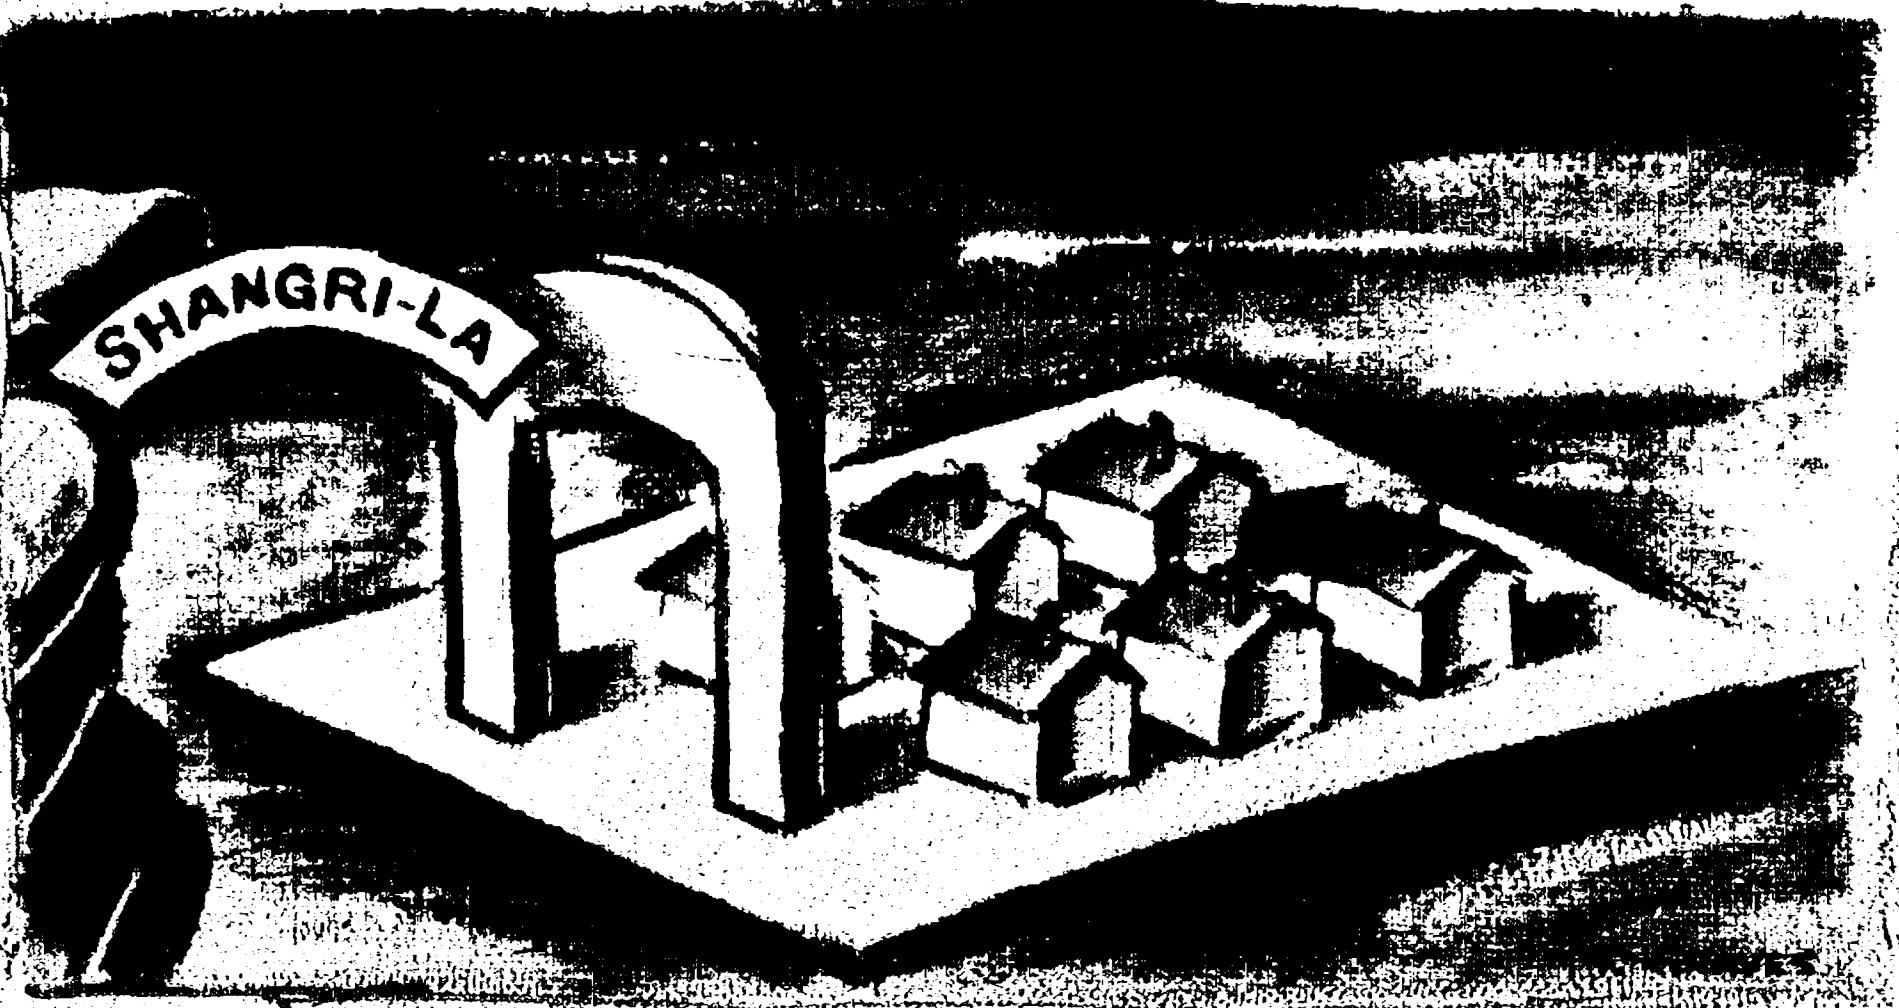

"When I finally pick the name, I really like it and feel comfortable with it."

Once named, a development retains that name as long as it exists, Shapiro said. "People who live there live with it from the beginning to the end — they want something that makes them feel comfortable."

BERNARD GLIEBERMAN, president of Crosswinds Community in West Bloomfield, said naming a development harkens back to the age old idea of the community or village, he continued.

It makes a development distinctive, it turns a somewhere into a destination, he said.

Glieberman said he likes to choose a name after researching a site or community's history. In the case of Millpointe, Glieberman chose that name for his Westland development of single-family homes because the project was developed near Nankin Mill.

Developing Millpointe around the Nankin Mills theme was actually one of his easier choices because it was such an obvious selection, he said. "That was the one obvious thing about that area and its history — everyone knows about the mill."

After being built sometime between 1835 and 1842, the first Nankin Mill served as the focal point of what was then Nankin Township, operating as a grist mill to grind grain of nearby farms.

The mill's significance to the surrounding area continued into this century. The existing mill building was constructed during the 1860s and was purchased by Henry Ford in 1918 for use as a small auto parts manufacturing facility.

Henry Ford, in response to the urbanization of the automotive industry, sought to mix elements of the city and countryside by developing Nankin Mill and similar buildings into small factories.

Nankin Mill and the area's history figure prominently in the development's marketing, Glieberman said. The sales office displays old photographs and histories about the area.

"I don't think you have to be a history buff to appreciate it."

Tying a development into a local history gives it a sense of belonging, he said. "It makes people feel there's a reason for that community being there."

Developments aren't always named after historical figures and events, Glieberman said. Naming developments after previous owners of the property — a farmer whose family owned the land for generations — is also quite common.

DEVELOPMENTS NEED not be named after geographic features or historical anecdotes. Some developments are named after significant nearby objects.

Mark Erickson, legal counsel and spokesman for Frankel Associates in Troy, said Somerset North — the developers new residential project — was very deliberately named after the Somerset Mall.

Now called the Somerset Collection, Frankel Associates developed the mall in Troy more than two decades ago. Sometimes, names take on a life of their own, he said.

"Somerset has come to mean a certain location," he said. The Somerset name has come to represent more than just the mall, but a part of Troy (and even Royal Oak).

Erickson said it isn't uncommon for people to give directions to the area by saying it's "by Somerset."

Developers and businesses have appropriated the name over the years for use on office buildings, medical supply companies, cab companies, cleaners construction, health, hotels, limousine companies and even apartments.

Frankel Associates couldn't prevent others from using the word "Somerset," Erickson said, but fortunately that extensive use hasn't diminished the image.

It's not surprising, then, that Frankel Associates — the company that started it all — would use the name for its own luxury, single-family home development Somerset North.

"Somerset has come to mean value and quality," Erickson said.

Marketing for the development relies heavily on the Somerset name and the development's proximity to the Somerset Collection, he said.

Somerset, Erickson admits, does carry a connotation of upscale, but even more important is that the words have become synonymous with value and quality.

Demand still lagging area office availability

By Mary Rodrique
staff writer

The next 12 to 18 months may be the optimal time for corporate tenants to lease office space long-term before rates return to 1980s levels.

That advice comes from Cushman & Wakefield, the commercial real estate development firm with offices in Southfield, which has been collecting and disseminating office and industrial real estate data quarterly for 24 years.

The company's mid-year office market analysis shows new construction down, a trend likely to continue throughout 1991.

"The next year to 18 months still provide a window of opportunity for tenants. Significant concessions can be negotiated in contracts," said Keith Sant, branch manager. Cushman & Wakefield has 50 offices across the country and is headquartered in New York.

"The market will catch up with space available. There is a light at the end of the tunnel."

"Detroit is traditionally a conservative town. New construction starts are way down. That's going to be better for us in the long run. When the economy recovers, we'll see a tightening up of the marketplace."

THE SECOND quarter of 1991 witnessed an increase over the first quarter's new construction completions in the suburban office market totaling 274,281 square feet.

Raleigh Center II, a 160,000-square-foot Sosnick/REDICO project in Southfield and Victor Corporate Park V, a 114,281-square-foot office complex in Livonia, owned by Hillman Properties of Pittsburgh, were each completed in May.

Even with the completion of two major office developments, the vacancy rate in the suburban office market has remained relatively stable from the first quarter's rate of 19.8 percent to 20 percent this quarter.

— Keith Sant

The Detroit central business district didn't fare as well from the first quarter rate of 13.1 percent to this quarter's rate of 14.2 percent. In comparison to the second quarter of 1990, the vacancy rates in both the downtown core and suburban office markets have declined.

Leasing activity has remained stable in the suburban office market, from 984,042 square feet leased the first quarter of 1991 to this quarter's activity of 906,438 square feet. But Detroit's activity declined drastically from 245,500 square feet in the first quarter of 1991 to 88,361 square feet this quarter.

ALTHOUGH AT a slow pace, local real estate market indicators continue to improve. Here's a closer look at suburban activity:

• Auburn Hills/Rochester Hills — The market still reflects the highest vacancy rate of the suburban office markets at 26.9 percent, up slightly from 1990's second quarter rate of 26.8 percent.

One reason for the high vacancy rate is high quality office space available at attractive rates in adjacent Troy. With only one fully occupied new construction completion in sight, the vacancy rate will be marginally affected and will continue to experience high vacancies throughout 1991.

Construction of the 346,000-square-foot headquarters for Volkswagen of North America, Inc., will be completed in September. Volkswagen will occupy the entire building.

The average rental rate continues to decline from $17.39 per square foot last year to $16.45 per square foot this year.

• Birmingham/Bloomfield Hills — The vacancy rate remained relatively stable from mid-1990 to this quarter. But vacancies increased slightly in the third and fourth quarters of 1990.

Most of last year's negative absorption was due to lack of pre-leasing in the Bloomfield Centre South office building, a Jona Companies property. The building is now more than 95 percent leased.

The average rental rate stands at $18.78 per square foot, down from last year's rate of $19.62.

• Farmington/Farmington Hills — This market has been erratic, evidenced by fluctuating vacancy rates. Leasing activity has increased slightly over last year. Most of the transactions were small leases, except Market Opinion Research, which took 47,000 square feet this quarter in Brookfield Office Park III.

Farmington/Farmington Hills has the most planned square footage in the Detroit suburban office markets, though with the current market many of these projects will be shelved until economic conditions improve. The average rental rate has been stable, moving from $16.49 a square foot last year to $16.43 this quarter.

Livonia/Novi — Of all the suburban office markets, Livonia/Novi has witnessed the most significant decline in vacancy from last year's rate of 23.3 percent to this quarter's rate of 17.5 percent.

Some major leases consummated this year that helped reduce the vacancy rate were Manufacturers National Bank, which leased more than 25,000 square feet in Crystal Glen Office Centre; US Sprint, which leased 18,900 square feet in the Seven Mile Crossing II and McDonnell Douglas with more than 13,000 square feet in Seven Mile Crossing II.

Livonia/Novi follows closely behind Southfield and Troy in terms of net absorption. Victor Corporate Park V, a 114,281-square-foot office complex was completed with no prior leasing. It caused a short term in vacancy and rent rates. The average rental rate has declined from last year's second quarter rate of $18.93 per square foot to this quarter's rate of $16.87.

• Southfield — Southfield continues to be the most dominant suburban office market in the metro area. Southfield totalled 683,407 square feet of leasing activity by mid year 1991, comparable to mid-year 1990's figure of 628,510 square feet.

While leasing activity remained strong, net absorption increased significantly from 5,604 square feet mid-1990 to 283,659 square feet this year. Southfield's vacancy rate currently stands at 23.1 percent, a slight increase over last year's second quarter rate of 22.8 percent. The vacancy rate should continue to hold in the 23 percent to 25 percent range. The average rental rate stands at $15.82 per square foot, a decline of .94 over last year's second quarter rate.

• Troy — The Troy office market is one of the most dominant in the suburbs, second only to Southfield. Net absorption has increased by 400 percent from last year's mid-year total. Some major leasing transactions in 1991 were: Kidder Peabody with 25,000 square feet in the Standard Federal Financial Center; General Dynamics in the Robbins Executive Park with more than 25,000 square feet; and Lawyers Title in the Wilshire Plaza West taking over 30,000 square feet.

While absorption increased, leasing activity remained constant. Vacancy shows a noticeable decline from last year's second quarter rate of 19.8 percent to this quarter's rate of 18.1 percent.

• West Bloomfield — The smallest office market in metro Detroit also witnessed the least amount of activity in leasing. Leasing activity totalled 10,968 square feet by mid year 1991 compared to last year's figure of 16,691 square feet, a marginal decline. With no new construction completions in sight, this market should continue to witness repeatedly low levels of absorption and leasing activity. The average rental rate stands at $15.77 per square foot, a decline of .68 from a year ago.

Townhouses get national play

It isn't every day that local building projects turn up in national building publications.

Despite the fact that the Midwest has become one of the country's major markets with fairly steady sales as compared to the east and west coast during the recent recession, this area remains everyone's favorite second cousin — no one has anything bad to say, but we rarely get invited to the good parties.

Which makes the appearance of Merrill Park Townhomes in Birmingham on the cover of the August 1991 issue of Builder Magazine all the more surprising.

Developed by Merrill Park Properties in Birmingham, it was built by M. George Construction Co. Inc. in Farmington Hills; architect/landscape planner/interior designer work by Victor Saroki & Associates Architects in Birmingham; and landscape architect Michael J. Dul & Associates in Birmingham. It includes seven 3,600-square-foot attached homes with price tags ranging from

The cover makes reference to an article titled "Singles and Couples" which reviews the growing trend in singles and childless couples who buy homes. This includes young, professional singles and mature empty nesters.

According to the article, 42 percent of all detached homes sold in 1990 were bought by single and childless couples; 71 percent of all attached units were bought by single and childless couples.

To fight crime in Philly, people plant posies.

"The bad part of town." Abandoned cars. Sidewalks scattered with crack vials. Bombed-out buildings. A neighborhood whose spirit is as broken as the bits of glass that dot the street. There are only two things to do if your neighborhood becomes a war zone: give up or take action.

The Philadelphia Story
One day, in the "bad part" of Philadelphia, a neighbor complained to a neighbor. And then to another. And then to more. People didn't like their homes being "taken over." Feelings of helplessness and resentment turned to action. They went to the police for help.

Soon a substation was established where folks could readily report crime. Weekly meetings began. Community watches started. Things started getting fixed up.

Vacant lots were cleaned up and fenced. Abandoned cars were towed away. Painting and repairing programs began. The neighborhood was cleaning itself up. The local 4-H Club even helped set up garden clubs where kids, teens and adults could work together on plants and flowers while talking over ways to raise awareness.

When people care and get involved, neighborhoods change. When a block doesn't look like a haven for crime and drugs, it won't be. And in this part of Philly, where once only apathy grew, seven gardens now bloom.

This is only one success story of many. To find out what can be done in your neighborhood, write The McGuffey Files, 1 Prevention Way, Washington, D.C. 20539-0001. And help...
