Wayne looks at policy for political use of facilities

By LeAnne Rogers Staff Writer

Wayne is developing a policy regarding the use of city facilities for political forums or candidate events.

"I personally, during 20 years in politics, I never used any city facilities. It became an issue during the last election," Wayne Mayor Al Haidous said. "A group used the library the other candidate used it. So I could use it, but that group had a problem with me using it." As a result, Haidous said it's time for city council to set a policy about free use of facilities — there is already an existing policy on the city's rental facilities.

'Some group may need a large facility, a group shouldn't get special treatment," Haidous said. "There will be costs to the city for energy and cleanup. The city can't afford that. Once you open it up for political groups, the sky's the limit."

Any policy should provide equal access opportunities to political or other groups, City Attornev Paul Bohn said, adding there is a difference between education and advocacy.

"Cost can definitely be a consideration, if staff time or resources are involved," Bohn said. Council members

Families get creative with toothpicks and marshmallows

By Sue Mason Staff Writer

Emma O'Connell and Ena Schwartz must have paid attention to all those lessons on angles in geometry. Using 500 toothpicks and not quite a third of a bag of miniature marshmallows, they were able to build a sturdy tower close to a foot tall.

They built it for fun. The Wayne Memorial High School students had volunteered to help with a marshmallow tower building challenge Thursday evening at the Wayne Public Library, but the thrcat of weather kept down attendance so they got to build their own tower.

"We were going to build two buildings w families of the 16th district," Kosowski said. "My goal is to promote the assets of our great state and attract people to Michigan's many great destinations."

Tax help

Wayne Metropolitan Community Action Agency and the Wayne County Asset Building Coalition have once again partnered to provide free tax services to individuals and families throughout Wayne County who earn up to $50,000 a year.

Tax services are available through April 15, at permanent and mobile tax sites throughout the county. Many offer night and weekend hours. Appointments are on a first come-first serve basis, walk-ins are also accepted. For an appointment, call (734) 284-6999. A list of dates, times, locations can be found online at www. waynemetro.org.

Mixed reviews for governor's budget plan

By LeAnne Rogers Staff Writer

Local legislators have a mixed reaction to the Gov. Rick Snyder's budget proposal. They're concerned about tax hikes hitting struggling poor and working families, and pleased with expanding Medicaid to provide coverage to the uninsured.

"His transportation plan to pick up over $1 billion (for roads and bridges) is going to be quite a challenge," said state Sen. Glenn Anderson, D-Westland. "These are the same people who have been hit with a tax on their pensions, the loss of credits on their income tax — the final phase comes this year. Their disposable income is reduced."

The proposal is to increase the tax on fuel to 33 cents per gallon up from 19 cents per gallon for unleaded fuel and 15 cents per gallon for diesel. Vehicle registration fees would see a 60 percent increase for cars and light trucks, a 25 percent hike for big trucks and trails to generate $508 million.

"That registration fee, it's a big hike. Most residents aren't going to like that," said state Rep. Robert Kosowski, D-Westland. "Families are struggling month to month. They say the increases would be $10 a month. We're nickel and diming people."

'A ploy'

Since the fuel tax and registration fee hikes are likely to be controversial, Anderson said he suspects the proposal is a ploy.

"My theory is that they are throwing the bad medicine out there, then will put a 2-cent increase in the sales tax on the ballot," said Anderson. "I don't like doing things like that. I think some of the legislature sees it as a way to take the blame off themselves.'

James Woltkamp provides proof of the need for road repairs with his photograph of a stretch of Hunter between Farmington and Venoy where he lives, which "is becoming impassable due to potholes."

Westland resident has example of road in need of repair

By LeAnne Rogers Staff Writer

Gov. Rick Snyder is talking about the importance of fixing Michigan roads as he presents his new budget. At the same time, Westland resident James Woltkamp is registering his unhappiness with the stretch of Hunter between Farmington and Venoy where he lives.

'Hunter Street from Farmington to Venoy is becoming impassable due to potholes and the city does nothing. Westland infrastructure needs help," Woltkamp wrote in an email.

Woltkamp followed up with photos of his section of Hunter. Asked for more comments, Woltkamp responded: "No comments are necessary. The street speaks for itself."

To further highlight the poor condition of the street, the section of Hunter immediately to the west - from Farmington Road to Apache --was resurfaced last year. "It's on our radar, it's on the priority list. The other stretch (Farmington Road to Apache) was a worse section," Westland Department of Public Services Director Kevin Buford said. "This section (Farmington Road to Venoy) has been designed and we know what it will cost. We only get a certain amount of dollars."

Along with other reduced revenues, Buford said state Act 51 street funding has also been reduced.

tax on Internet purchases something he said would generate billions of dollars in revenues.

Both Anderson and Kosowski were pleased with Snyder's proposal to expand Medicaid coverage to over 400,000 Michigan residents who are currently uninsured.

"There would be no cost to the budget for three years. The savings we see for those three years, we should bank the money so we have it when the costs do kick in," said Anderson.

Snyder's budget also calls for:

• $8.6 million to create a new agency within the Department of Military and Veterans Affairs to focus on improving services to 700,000 veterans.

• Funding increases of about 2 percent for K-12 schools, community colleges, and universities.

Disappointing

"I'm very disappointed in how much money is dedicated to schools. After two years and about 20 percent loss in revenue, they will now get only a bump to be used for retirement costs," said Anderson. "You're giving them money but telling them how they have to spend it. The elected board and local officials know better what the money should be used for."

The Wayne-Westland Community Schools in particular has been hard with the elimination of funds it had received to cover millage disallowed with the inception of Proposal A.

solution to the funding crisis his

Wayne-Westland Schools Superintendent Greg Baracy said he was disappointed that the proposed budget does not include a per pupil increase for the district. In the past two years, funding to the district has been cut more than $11 million.

"Our hope is as the legislative process continues, the legislature will come to grips with the huge inequity in school funding that now exists across Michigan and recognize that we must invest in our children's education and our future as Michiganders," said Baracy. "Education must be the No. 1 priority if we are going to be competitive in this global market place."

• A deposit of $75 million in the state's Rainy Day Fund, bringing the total to $580 million.

Both Anderson and Kosowski were unhappy that local governments weren't getting an increase in funding except for 4 percent more in the constitutional portion of state shared revenue.

"That will be helpful but it will not make up for all the cuts and there are stills strings attached forcing the locals to consolidate," said Anderson. "That has some positive points, but communities can lose their identities and not deliver the services they once had provided."

program like this for team building at Wayne Memorial with five other people. We had a lot less time to build it, though."

Library aide Dana Szanti estimated the teens' tower was 11 inches tall, but the prize for the tallest went to Cynthia Zink of Westland and Natalya Hrecznyj of Dearborn and their children, whose tower well more than a foot tall and quite possibly just as big at the base.

"This isn't bad, this is really fun," said Zink, who was there with her son Zachary, 4. "We were looking in a magazine for something new to do, something different than Jungle Java," added Hrecznyj, who brought her son Alex, 4, and daughter Anya, 3.

Building up

Zink was carefully connecting toothpicks to marshmallows, adding height to the tower and preparing to add a piece Alex had created. They had worked through one box of toothpicks and were into the second, with most of the bag of marshmallows used.

"Every one with an extra marshmallow are Zachary's," his mother said. "Alex did a good job, he liked it, but Zachary used a lot of marshmallows."

It could have been because of his interpretation of the tower.

"See our volcano," he said. The idea of building marshmallow towers came from Jody Wolak, who had handled youth services at the library. When Wolak left, Szanti took over and bustled around the room, checking on the progress.

"It's really not as easy as it looks," she said. "Some companies use this for team building."

creative. The creative honor went to the playground and house that Dawn Adkins of Romulus, her son Parker. 5, Michael Brown of Wayne and his daughter Addison, 6, built.

"She said to be creative and we said OK," said Brown, who was working on keeping the jungle gym from falling over. "We've used almost 200 toothpicks."

Staying put

Addison built the two-story house that connected to the play area with a toothpick path. There was a jungle gym, swings and monkey bars and toothpick people made by Parker.

"It was fun to build, but we're not taking it home," Adkins said, pushing marshmallows on to toothpicks to add to support structures.

"We've done a lot of stuff at the library. I like to hang out here with the family," Brown said.

Dezzerra Bosewell of Westland was looking for something to do with her daughter Zion, 3.

"I wanted to do something different and do something with her," she said. "It's been fun, it hasn't been too challenging. I'd like to get it taller, but I think it's going to fall over."

Gennifer Williams of Romulus was working on a tower with her daughter Priya, 6. Unlike Bosewell, she found it challenging. She had built a top and a base and was trying to figure out how to put the two together.

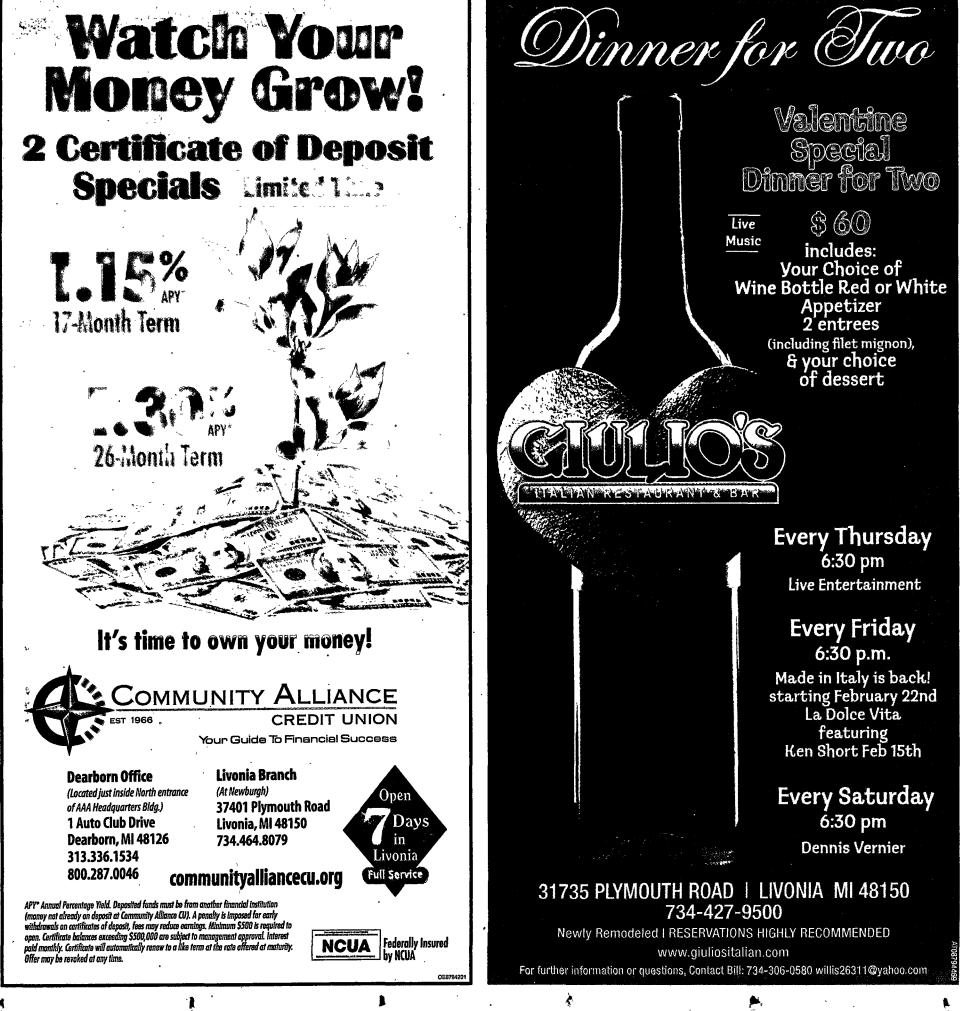

"It's harder than it looks," she said.

And while the families were permitted to take their towers home, Williams opted to dispose of hers.

"Mom threw it away because it kept falling and falling and she didn't want marshmallows all over her car," Priya said.

Even though the numbers were down, Szanti declared the challenge a success. "I think everyone had a good time," she said.

Girls night out: Annual dance draws a crowd

Wayne resident Rori Beaubien and his daughter Abigail dance at the Wayne-Westland Community Center.

By LeAnne Rogers Staff Writer

A capacity crowd turned out for the annual Daddy-Daughter Dance at the Wayne-Westland Community Center.

"Generally we get 4-8-year-old girls but we might get some older girls coming with a father or grandfather," said Wayne-Westland Parks and Recreation Director Nathan Adams. "My daughter is 10 and she didn't want to go this year. She's too cool."

William Kuras and daughter Heather take a break and watch the other dancers.

The event, held for about 20 years, starts with the daughters and daddies getting their photos taken. Then it's time for cookies, a beverage, some quality time together and square dancing with a caller. "The girls dress up. Once girl had gone to get her hair done. Some of the guys came in tuxedoes," said Adams. "Some other dads came in jeans — it ranges." The dance is traditionally held the first Wednesday in February, just ahead of Valentine's Day.

A Hoedown, which

The Land Fitness Jam will be held 6-7 p.m. Tuesday, March 12, at the Wayne Community Center. It will be an hour packed with Jazzercise, Zumba, Core Training and more. This program is free to the first 300 registered participants.

Register by e-mail at recreation@ci.wayne.us or by calling (734) 721-7400. The center is at Howe and Annapolis in Wayne.

The Wayne and Westland Parks and Recreation departments combined July 1 when the Bailey Recreation Center closed. This followed a year of an agreement under which people living in both cities were treated as residents in recreation programs.

"I see that we are up to 1,700 memberships at the recreation center. It's not a record, but it's close," said Wayne Councilman James Henley.

•The increased membership at the recreation center is due to the efforts of the Wayne-Westland Parks and Recreation Director Nathan Adams, said Henley.

"He's really been busting his butt. He's the only full-time person we have at the recreation center," he added.

For more on recreation and fitness programs, visit www.ci.wayne.mi.us. • The recreation center will be closed for maintenance the week of Feb. 17 although the aquatic center will remain open. The aquatic center will close the following week for maintenance as the recreation center reopens.

The Garden City Founders Day celebration showed that the school district has a firm support system in place.

Teachers, administrators, parents, grandparents and community members showed their support for the annual event which was held at Roma Banquets.

"We greatly appreciate all that you do and how you touch the lives of our children," said Garden City Schools Superintendent Michelle Cline.

Cline organized the event differently using a PTA Idol approach for recognition. Stan Bialach, a teacher at Burger Center for Students with Autism, who performed in a band of teachers and administrators for the dinner, was selected the PTA Idol by secret judge and school board member Darlene Jablanowski.

The Silent Auction raised $1,119 that will be used for scholarships for students who are seniors.

Deborah Gabrion, a teacher at the Memorial 1/2 Campus, received the "bribes" bucket of $30.

The highlight of the evening was the announcement of Educator of the Year, an honor that went to Cheryl Park, a firstgrade teacher at the Memorial 1/2 Campus.

Schoolcraft holds Kids on Campus open house

Schoolcraft College's Kids on Campus program will continue to delight kids with unique camp offerings in the arts, acting, culture, computers, culinary, writing, math, science, as well as careeroriented learning opportunities, and traditional academic skills workshops.

Going into its 34th year, this year's Kids on Campus program has many stimulating camps and workshops for children who will be entering first12th-grade this fall. Campers and their parents can attend a free open house 6-7:30 p.m. Wednesday, Feb. 13, to learn more about the upcoming summer camps, meet instructors, ask questions, visit the campus, see demonstrations and register onsite for the more than 60 different-week-long programs, which run July 8-Aug. 2.

In addition, attendees will have the opportunity to participate in the Michigan Child Identification Program. This program provides parents and guardians with a complete Child ID Package that contains all the vital information necessary to expedite law enforcement efforts to locate a missing child. The program also helps to educate families about abduction prevention and safety.

The Michigan Child Identification Program isa lodge-based community action initiative sponsored and organized by the Michigan Masons.

MAT2 offers high school seniors work-study program

High school seniors in southeast Michigan can gain advanced manufacturing work skills while earning a paycheck through a pilot program offered by the Michigan Economic Development Corporation and participating employers.

The Michigan Advanced Technician Training (MAT2) program combines classroom instruction with paid work experience in a three-year, no-cost program in the field of mechatronics, a combination of mechanical engineering, electronics, computer technology and information technology.

"Michigan's business future and our state's economic vitality will depend on a workforce with the necessary talents and training for the jobs of tomorrow," said Gov. Rick Snyder. "The MAT2 program is a first step toward meeting critical employer needs and will equip students with experience and skills they need to succeed in today's high-tech world.'

Accepted MAT2 students will earn an associate's degree at one of two community colleges - Henry Ford Community College or Oakland Community College - while they earn a paycheck and gain on the job experience with a participating company. Tuition is paid by the employer and in exchange, the student commits to remaining on the job for at least two years after successful completion of the program.

"The MAT2 initiative is focused on meeting employers' needs and providing graduates with a direct pathway to employment and career success," said MEDC President and CEO Michael A. Finney. "This is a great opportunity for students to earn an associate's degree at no cost, get paid, gain critical work skills, and end up with guaranteed employment in an in-demand field."

The MAT2 participating employers include:

 Benteler Automotive Corporation – Develops and produces innovative products for the automotive industry.

• Brose – Delivers mechatronic systems and electric drives to automotive manufacturers and suppliers.

• Detroit Diesel - Manufactures a complete line of heavy-duty diesel engines, axles and transmissions for the on-highway and vocational market.

• KOSTAL – Develops

and manufactures technologically advanced electronic, electromechanical and mechatronic products. ZF – International supplier of automotive driveline and chassis technology. "The MAT2 program is based on the strong employer demand for such occupations in Michigan's growing automotive sector," said Dr. Walter Maisel, president and CEO of KOSTAL North America. "MAT2 is a comprehensive, enriching - and well-timed industrial training initiative for students seeking a challenging and rewarding career."

The deadline to apply for the MAT2 program is Feb. 15. To learn more about the program and the application process, go online to www.mitalent.org/mat2/.

Schoolcraft College hosts 'Idlewild' traveling exhibit

Schoolcraft College is hosting a special traveling exhibit, "Idlewild: The Black Eden of Michigan," now through Friday, Feb. 15.

(WGc)

The exhibit, on loan from Michigan State University, features photographs and historical information about this unique resort community that welcomed African-Americans from the 1920s through the 1960s. Located in rural northwestern Michigan, Idlewild was one of only a few resorts in the United States where African-Americans could vacation and purchase property during a segregated time in the nation's history.

Idlewild was an active year-round community and was visited by wellknown entertainers and professionals. In fact, at its peak it was the most popular resort in the Midwest with as many as 25,000 people visiting at the height of summer.

When the 1964 Civil Rights Act opened up other resorts to African-Americans, Idlewild's boomtown period subsided, but the community continues to be an important place for vacationers, retirees and a special place for younger generations of African-Americans seeking to learn about their heritage.

The exhibit is open 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday-Friday. in the Lower Waterman area of the VisTaTech Center on the college's main campus on Haggerty south of Seven Mile in Livonia. It traces Idlewild's history from its inception in the early 20th century to present day. Flower power: Boland ready for those special occasions

By Sue Buck Staff Writer

Florist Bruce Boland has heard a lot of love stories in his career. He's also ordered flowers from around the world to customize clients" requests.

One lesson that he learned early on in his career is that there doesn't have to be a special occasion to order flowers. In fact, the most heartfelt memories are made during times when the flowers arrive unexpectedly for no reason at all.

Boland and his brother, Greg, operate the floral shop on Ford, just west of Middlebelt. It is family-owned for more than 50 years.

"We have established a reputation among our friends," he said. "We are working with second and third generations now. Our customers reach much farther than the boundaries of Garden City.

Boland taught floral design at Schoolcraft Community College for more than 30 years. He helped his father, Bernard, at the original shop located on Ford at Shotka when he was 7 years old. Bernard Boland liked Garden City because there was a hospital and a funeral home.

Celebrity orders

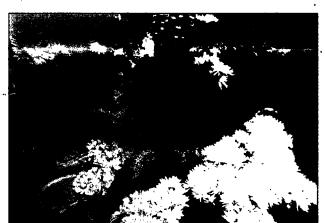

It's not unusual for celebrities to order flowers from Boland. He is the largest florist in Garden City.

"We have done work for Michael Bolton, Jon Bon Jovi and Patrick Neal Harris," Boland said. "I have no idea how they found us. I've talked to people in Germany, Italy, England, and Israel. With the aid of technology, we have captured customers from all over the world."

There can be long days for the Boland brothers. Bruce Boland is often in his shop working at midnight to get orders out for weddings, and other special occasions.

The key is to contact Boland with enough time for him to do some planning and design work. "The fun thing about working with flowers and being a designer, is that there is an opportunity to be creative with them," Boland said.

Customers bring in their ideas, too, and Boland interprets the style that they desire. He captures their ideas to make an impression on the recipient.

"I take the liberty of making suggestions,"

Boland said.

With enough time, he has honored special requests. He has searched for larkspur, for example through suppliers in California, South America and Israel.

Some flowers like snapdragons are available at any time. He gets his from Canada and they are greenhouse grown. Boland has a variety of unusual flowers including oriental lilies. Supply and demand and growers determine price.

Different flowers

Boland has pages of different types of flowers which can be purchased from suppliers.

At a brides's request, for example, he purchase anthuriums, a flower brought in from Holland, Denmark, in 24 hours.

"It was sent FedEx from Denmark," Boland said.

A large arrangement isn't always the way to make a statement. Women often appreciate a single flower when there is no special occasion.

"They appreciate that thought," Boland said. One man had flowers delivered to his wife, not on their wedding anniversary, but on the date that he met her.

"She was surprised and didn't know what it was for," Boland said. "The card stated that every day since the day he met her was a wonderful day."

Once delivered, Boland advises people how to care for the flowers. He prefers using a sharp knife to trim the ends of flowers rather than using scissors in order to not pinch the capillaries.

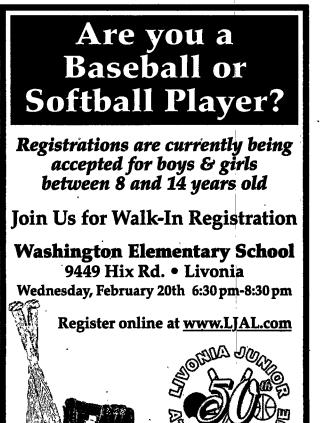

Boland also designs arrangements on short notice to facilitate requests. He has roses that last seven to 14 days.

"A good quality product always has more value on them," he said. "A good quality flower will last longer and be appreciated more."

The unusual is often expected. He was expecting lavender-colored roses Feb. 8.

"I'm constantly trying to learn something new and trying to find ways to show off the flowers," Boland said. "It's always a challenge to do something new."

Michigan's Lousma hopes to inspire children to explore science

By Sue Mason Staff Writer

(WGc)

Jack Lousma studied engineering at the University of Michigan and did his postgraduate work through the U.S. Navy. A Marine fighter pilot, the next logical step was to become an astronaut. But the Michigan native didn't realize he could apply to be one, he was waiting to be "called."

That was until he was handed a newsletter that said NASA was looking for Marine pilots.

"I had the requirements and the chance to apply," said Lousma "I knew I wouldn't make it, if I didn't apply. Nineteen were selected for astronauts in 1966. Two were Marines and I was one of them."

Lousma was at Willow Run Airport Thursday to meet with volunteers and officials of the Yankee Air Museum in preparation for a NASA Fly Me to the Moon Exhibit that opens Tuesday, Feb. 12. The Ann Arbor resident was the guest of honor at the free "launch" party Saturday evening where he will spoke about his experiences as an astronaut.

While he planned to talk about things like his twomonth stay on Sky Lab-3, which included two space walks, and his test flight of the Space Shuttle Columbia, Lousma also hoped to inspire youngsters about the opportunities available through science.

FLY ME TO THE MOON

What: NASA Fly Me to the Moon exhibit Where: Yankee Air Museum at Willow Run Airport, 47884 D St., Belleville

Time/Date: 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Tuesday-Saturday, beginning Feb. 12 . Exhibit closes Friday, May 10.

Details: Exhibit is included as part of museum admission — $5 for adults, $3 for senior citizens and $8 for families (two adults and two children).

Information: Call the museum at (734) 483-4030.

before, STEM --- science, technology, engineering and mathematics — is what has taken us from the early days of space flight to now." he said. "STEM is interesting, exciting and on the cutting edge of what's going on. All the discoveries and exploration is why we know so much about things like medicine. It begins with science and discovering how the world works and then taking that knowledge and putting it to work inventing things.

He points to the space program an example. In the early days, when they were flying, they were still using slide rules. The computer used to fly astronauts to the moon and back has less power than today's cell phone.

"If you can inspire kids with the changes that happen, then there's no end to at's what education is about," he said. "And then there's no end to it." Lousma's interest in airplanes was picked by a cousin, a fighter pilot who flew his World War II fighter so low "it almost tore the shingles off a harn" in Zeeland As a barn" in Zeeland. As a kid, he built model airplanes and then went on to study aeronautical engineering and a career in the military. He was part of the Apollo program. He was a member of the astronaut support crews for the Apollo 9, 10 and 13 and was training for one of the last three flights to the moon when the program was cancelled. He moved on to the next program — long durations in space with Sky Lab. He got his ride into space in 1973 and spent two months on Sky

Lab, where he did two space walks.

"It was more than I imagined, it was an unique experience," Lousma said of the launch. "I got to see the earth like I'd never seen it before. I realized how small we are in the realm of things. It reinforced my faith in creation."

Space experiments

Sixty scientific experiments were done while Lousma was aboard Sky Lab. The aim was to find out the of long-term effects of weightlessness on humans. Lousma said it became instinctive to float around Sky Lab, but when he returned to earth, he found it took longer to acclimated to gravity.

"The doctors had said I was OK in six days, but it took me three weeks to run two miles at the same speed as when I left," he said. "The longer you're in weightlessness, the longer it takes to readapt."

It's been 40 years since he was on Sky Lab and every year Lousma has a physical to monitor any changes related to his stay in space. It's been found astronauts have a higher incidence of cataracts and lose 1-2 percent of bone mass for every month of weightlessness. Those who stay in space four, five, six months have problems with their vision due to intercranial pressure on the optic nerve, he said.

"I think they're finding that astronauts get back some of the bone mass, but it's not as good as what they loss," he said. "With science, they're finding ways to mitigate these problems. They're looking at a one-person centrifuge to put weight on the bones."

Lousma admits is was a 'big disappointment'' not to have made it to the moon, but the trip to Sky Lab — "There weren't many rides into space at the time, and anyone was a good one" — was a memorable one. He rates the launch and the re-entry as No. 1 and 2, but the thing he will remember most is his space walks. He spent 11 hours outside Sky Lab during his stay.

Now he is focused on sharing his love of space with younger children.

"I'd like to inspire the kids like I was inspired, that's what will take us into the future," he said.

Snow storms: Now they have names now may be your least favorite part of winter, or if you are a skier, maybe it is your favorite. Snow forms in the atmosphere when water vapor condenses into droplets. As more water condenses, the raindrops grow larger and larger. Because the atmosphere is cold, the moisture freezes into snowflakes, which then fall to the ground.

Blizzards are severe snowstorms with high winds and bitterly cold temperatures. The Weather Channel has recently taken to naming winter storms, much like the National Weather Service names hurricanes. Many of the names for 2012-2013 have Greek or Latin origins. They include Athena, Brutus, Gandolf, Draco, Plato and Jove. The next storms to form will be Nemo and Orko.

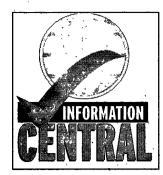

The United States has been hit by some fierce snowstorms over the years. One of the worst was the Blizzard of 1888, or the Great White Hurricane. This blizzard pounded the East Coast and dumped 40-50 inches of snow on New Jersey, New York and Massachusetts. Another terrible storm, The Great Lakes Blizzard, hit Michigan in 1913, bringing with it 2 feet of snow and hurricane-force winds.

OTHER OPINIONS

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Public needs to know

In 2012, Rich Robinson, executive director of the Michigan Campaign Finance Network (MCFN), researched 2012 Supreme Court television advertising and found that "Of the $15 million of documentable spending, just over 25 percent can be attributed to identifiable donors; 75 percent cannot." There are no spending records for the many millions more that were spent on direct mailings.

Now that the 2012 election is over, it is a relief not to have all those TV and radio ads and printed campaign literature besieging us. But if we forget what happened last year, we risk even more problems in the next election. We don't know who paid for those ads and mailings. Current laws allow the majority of campaign donations to occur in secret. That's not right. Michigan voters need the facts. The money behind campaigns must become public knowledge.

Retired Supreme Court Justice Marilyn Kelly and Federal Judge James Ryan co-led the bipartisan Michigan Judicial Selection Task Force (JSTF) which recommended improvements to the way that Michigan selects judges. One of the most important recommendations from the task force was that "all money spent to characterize candidates for the Michigan Supreme Court should be reported and ascribed to its sources, not just the committee whose name appears on the disclaimer of an advertisement."

People in Michigan deserve to know who is paying to influence their votes. Knowing where a candidate gets his or her contributions is helpful for voters to make an informed decision. As Justice Kelly and Judge Ryan have pointed out: "Michigan has gained a reputation for Supreme Court election campaigns that are among the most expensive, least transparent and most partisan in the country."

The League of Women Voters of Michigan (LWV-MI) has organized public forums, entitled Dark Money in Judicjal Selection: A Threat to Impartial Justice? The first four forums will be 7 p.m. Feb. 11, in Ann Arbor at the UM Law School, Room 250 of Hutchins Hall; 7 p.m. Feb. 12, at Schoolcraft College's VisTaTech Center in Livonia; 7 p.m. March 11 at Oakland University, and 7 p.m. March 12, at the Thomas M. Cooley Law School in Lansing.

Justice Kelly and Rich Robinson will present recommendations from the JSTF report. Newly elected Supreme Court Justice Bridget McCormack will join the panel at the Ann Arbor forum.

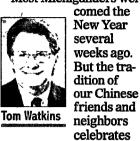

These events give Michigan citizens an opportunity to learn more about the problems with our current system for selecting judges and begin thinking about what solutions might be most effective. You can obtain more information, including the full report of the JSTF, at the League website: www.lwvmi.org and by attending one of the forums.

U.S. is built on cultural strengths, differences of many

By Tom Watkins Guest Columnist

t's the Year of the Snake — Happy New Year! No, the "year of the snake" is not a reference to politics. Most Michiganders wel-celebrates the new year beginning on Sunday, Feb. 10.

Michigan, two beautiful peninsulas surrounded by 20 percent of the world's fresh water, does not make us an island. As a bellwether state, leading the way on social and political issues of the day, we have historically embraced new cultures and traditions of people who make Michigan their home. I am proud to say that

Gov. Rick Snyder grasps the importance of being open to the peoples of the world and has dubbed himself, "the most immigrant-friendly governor in America."

Considering all the antiimmigration rhetoric that permeates in some political quarters, here is one aspect of the governor we should all respect. Michigan's diversity has been and will remain a core strength of our state and nation.

This great state has been built on the diversity of people who came from all across the globe — Germany, Italy, Poland, England, Ireland, Norway, Wales, Italy, Spain and Africa. Those from nearly all corners of the planet have been absorbed into our tapestry of strength. Some arrived in America in search of a better life while some were ripped from their ancestral homes and forced to make this new world their home.

Celebrating differences

The Chinese New Year 4711 begins on Feb. 10. The Chinese New Year is the longest and most important celebration on the Chinese calendar. This year — 2013 — is an especially auspicious year ushering in the Year of the Snake.

Handed down since ancient times, legend has it that Buddha asked all the animals to meet him on Chinese New Year. Twelve different animals came and Buddha declared that the people born in each animal's year would have some of that creature's personality.

The characteristics of the snake are tempered by one of the five Chinese elements of earth, fire, metal, water and wood overlaying a five-year cycle of characteristics on the original 12-year cycle. This year is the year of the water snake.

While dragon is considered the most powerful and lucky among the 12 Chinese zodiac creatures, the snake most resembles the dragon in appearance and is sometimes called the "Little Dragon."

It is likely that some of the aura of the powerful dragon rubbed off onto the person born in the Year of the Snake and considered likely that success follows the person born in the Year of the Snake during "their" year.

Great opportunities may be presented in the Year of the Snake so persons born in these years (1929, 1941, 1953, 1966, 1977, 1989, 2001, 2013) might maximize their considerable skills, guarding against complacency and indifference.

Those born in snake years are acute, aware, wise, charming, cunning, gregarious, generous, and smart. Water Snakes are influential and insightful. They manage others well to help achieve their aims and goals. Good in organizations, they are generally motivated and intellectual, very determined and resolute about success.

Did I mention I was born in the Year of the Snake?

Others who share the honor include: Brad Pitt, Bob Dylan, Oprah Winfrey, Virginia Woolf, Greta Garbo and Mao.

Here in a state surrounded by the waters of the Great Lakes, let the Chinese New Year create another reminder that with diversity, comes strength.

So as they say in Chinese — Xinnian kuàilè — Happy New Year, Congratulations and be prosperous!

Library event touts Parks' life

By Darrell Clem Staff Writer

A longtime friend of civil rights pioneer Rosa Parks told a Canton group Thursday that he made a to-do list after he became her attorney in 1980, at a time when she had largely slipped from public consciousness and many people believed she had died.

Detroit attorney Gregory J. Reed checked the Presidential Medal of Freedom off his list after Parks received it in 1996 from President Bill Clinton.

Three years later, Reed marked off the Congressional Gold Medal after Parks earned one of the highest honors bestowed by the U.S. government.

Finally, on what would have been Parks' 100th birthday, Reed and others celebrated a commemorative "forever" stamp issued Monday by the U.S. Postal Service to honor Parks, whose refusal to give up her seat on a public bus in Montgomery, Ala., on Dec. 1, 1955, helped topple an era of segregation that scarred a nation.

Parks' courage

"I learned so much about humility and courage through Mrs. Parks that I adopted a lot of her ways," Reed said. "She became a friend and a person I miss so much today."

Reed appeared during the Canton Public Library's celebration of Black History Month, which also includes a display on loan from the Charles H. Wright Museum of African American History of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.'s Walk to Freedom in Detroit in 1963.

Reed came to Canton less than a week after he returned from Los Angeles, where he earned the NAACP's Image Award for his latest book, "Obama Talks Back: Global Lessons - A Dialogue With America's Young Leaders." He also penned two books with Parks: "Quiet Strength: The Faith, the Hope and the Heart of a Woman Who Changed a Nation" and "Dear Mrs. Parks:

A Dialogue With Today's Youth.'

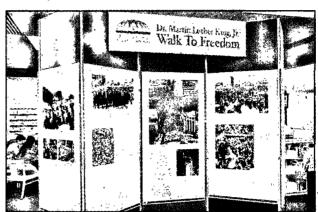

Canton resident Linda Svacha brought her granddaughter Madison Cantrell, 9, to hear Reed's address after they recently visited The Henry Ford and saw the restored bus where Parks made a quiet yet courageous stand against racism.

"It was cool," Madison said. In his address, Reed said he first met Parks in 1977 when she came to a private show of a play he produced about Dr. King at the Music Hall Center for Performing Arts in Detroit. He said he used proceeds from the show to buy a new car for Parks, who was living a humble life, and he prayed to become an ambassador for her.

Befriending her Three years later, Reed said Parks came to his Detroit law office to hire him as her attorney. Her husband Raymond had since died.

"I never charged her," Reed said. "I became more of a friend to her." Reed said Parks and her story have been largely misunderstood. He said she was a fine orator even though many believe she was always quiet spoken. And he said she had worked with the NAACP in Alabama, though she never intended to become a civil rights icon. Others had protested as she did on public buses.

"There had been other people who had been arrested," Reed said, "but they didn't have the character (that Parks had), and they acted belligerently.'

Parks' arrest came as Dr. King was an emerging figure on the civil rights scene, Reed said, and Parks' defiance touched off a 381day boycott that helped unravel segregation. Parks, who had been a seamstress, began to receive death threats and could no longer find employment, so she and her husband moved to Detroit, where she eventually began working for longtime U.S. Congressman John Conyers.

Parks eventually faded into obscurity, but Reed said he worked to resurrect her legacy as he lobbied for the medals and other honors she received. In closing Thursday, Reed read aloud from a card he had received from Parks. In it, she thanked him for improving her life and said she wished her mother and her husband could have lived to meet him.

You still have time to avoid penalty

By Rick Bloom Guest Columnist

Q: Dear Rick: I have a tax problem. A friend of mine prepares my tax return. She's been doing my return for about '35 vears and I've never had a problem. This year when (took my to her she told me

A12 (WGc)

that I would have to pay a substantial penalty for failing to take my required minimum distribution. She informed me that when you turn 70 1/2, which I did in March of last year, you had to take a distribution or be subject to a substantial penalty. I never knew that I was responsible for this is there anything I can do to avoid the penalty? I should also mention that I don't want to do anything to get my friend in trouble.

A: I have some good news. You do not have to pay a penalty. Your friend misinterpreted the tax law. You don't have to worry about the IRS or paying a penalty.

Many people misinterpret the tax law when it comes to required minimum distributions believing that when you turn 70 1/2 you have to take a distribution or there is a penalty. What the law actually says is that you must take your first required minimum distribution by April 1 of the year after you turn 701/2. Subsequent required minimum distributions must be taken by the end of each calendar year, however, you can delay your first required distribution.

In your case (since you turned 701/2 last year), you are not required to take a distribution until April 1, 2013.

The penalties for failing to take a required minimum distribution are severe - 50 percent. . Therefore, it is important that if you are over 70 1/2 you comply with this requirement. If you should have made a distribution but didn't, don't wait for the IRS to contact you and assess the penalty. Be proactive. File Form 5329 and attach a letter to the form and ask the IRS for a waiver. You may be surprised to hear this, but the IRS has been generous with its waivers. If you can show a reasonable basis for the error, you have a very good chance of avoiding the penalty. It is however, more difficult to waive the penalty after it has been assessed.

Keep in mind that the required minimum distribution requirement does not just apply to IRAs, but any qualified retirement account 401(k) and 403(b) except Roth type accounts. One of the great benefits of a Roth is it grows tax free and it is not subject to required minimum distributions. Good luck!

LPS board votes 4-3 to put bond proposal on May ballot

By Ken Abramczyk Staff Writer

Residents in the Livonia school district will be voting on a $195 million bond proposal on May 7.

Trustees have voted 4-3 to adopt a resolution in support of the special election date for the bonds to fund facility upgrades, technology, furniture and equipment for Livonia Public Schools.

Trustee Randy Roulier moved for the resolution and was supported by board Vice President Colleen Burton. They were joined by board President Mark Johnson and Trustee Tammy Bonifield. Trustees Dianne Laura, Eileen McDonnell and Julie Robinson opposed the resolution.

The $195 million bond, if approved by voters, would cost approximately $19 per month or $228 per year for a resident with a home valued at $178,000, the median home price in the school district, for the next 30 years. The total cost, if values stay the same over the 30-year bond would be $6,840 for the owner of a medianpriced home in the district.

The bond would fund new technology, renovations to the three high schools' auditoriums and fine/performing arts classrooms, buses, furniture, roof repairs, windows, doors, flooring, ceilings, plumbing and electrical work, cafeteria upgrades, and relocation of elementary school offices to entrances for better security.

Election price tag

Laura, McDonnell and Robinson opposed asking voters in May, because the special election will cost the district about $45,000 in Livonia and in precincts in Westland that are within the Livonia school district. A November election or an August election, if the city scheduled a primary at that time, would not cost the district money because it would be held at the same time as the city's election.

McDonnell also said she was concerned with the potential liability with any litigation involving Webster Elementary and a former teacher's treatment of special needs children and that any judgments or settlements going against the district would come out of the general fund.

Laura said she didn't see the justification for a May election. "That really bothers me," she said of the expense.

Robinson said the May election "was not in the best interest of the community." She wanted to see the board use the opportunity "to reach the greatest number of voters" in November.

Supporters countered that the chances that voters would approve the bonds were better in May than at other times of year. They also said they would rather spend money on new buses, if voters approved the bonds, than to keep paying for repairs to the buses.

Weighing costs

Burton said she supported the May election because voters needed to act sooner for the district to act on repairs and upgrades throughout the district. The district has to weigh the cost of the election against the cost of continued bus repairs, Burton said.

"If we wait until August, we'll have to spend more than $45,000 for repairs rather than replacing them," Burton said.

Bonifield said there was no guarantee that a city primary would occur in August. If voters approved the bonds in May, construction and improvements could be scheduled for the summer recess, rather than during the school year, which would happen if the bond election were held later in the year, she added. That would be disruptive to students, if contractors worked on buildings during the school year, Bonifield said.

Observer & Eccentric | Sunday, February 10, 2013

"I appreciate that we are concerned with the number of voters," Bonifield said, adding that voters have the opportunity in any election at any time of year to get information and decide whether or not to go out and vote.

Roulier said he reviewed the data provided to the board by Plante Moran CRESA that highlighted school bond election dates held over the past five years in which 45 percent of those elections (106 of 235) were held in May, 22 percent (51) were in February, 20 percent (46) were in November and only 14 percent (32) in August.

"And of these election dates, those held in May and February had the highest passing rates," Roulier said. Plante Moran CRESA reported that the May election has a passing rate of 58 percent. Other months were: February, 55 percent; August, 47 percent; and November, 46 percent.

Johnson said he appreciated the comments from the school board.

"It's always hard to go out to the community and ask for this money," Johnson said. "I wish I knew that there would be a primary election, but we don't have that."

Johnson said the only con of his list of pros and cons was the election cost.

"The sooner we get it on the ballot, the better off we are," Johnson said. "I think it's time we get this issue before the voters."

Suspect in alleged travel scam waives exam

By Ken Abramczyk Staff Writer

A Livonia man accused of bilking money from Michigan residents for trips through his travel company has waived his preliminary exam. Ken Second, 44, Second waived his exam before 16th District Judge Sean Kavanagh at a hospital on Thursday afternoon, according to Charles Marr, Second's attorney.

Second is scheduled to be arraigned on the information before Wayne County Circuit Judge Richard Skutt at 9 a.m. on Feb. 21. Second and his company, Timeway Tours, were arraigned in December on one count of conducting criminal enterprises racketeering, a 20-year felony; two counts of using a computer to commit a crime, a seven-year felony; and six counts of larceny by conversion, a five-year felony.

A pre-exam had been scheduled last Tuesday, but it was adjourned. before District Judge Kathleen McCann, as Second remained in the hospital. Since that adjournment, Second decided on Thursday to waive his exam.

Second and his company, Timeway Tours, face criminal charges for booking tours Michigan Attorney General Bill Schuette said they never intended to deliver. Schuette alleges that the victims responded to newspaper ads for trips to destinations such as the Kentucky Derby, Branson, Mo., and the Florida Gulf Coast. When victims who failed to receive confirmation of their trips requested more information, they were promised refunds that never materialized.

 f_{λ}

Schuette charged Second after complaints were filed with the Attorney General's Consumer Protection Division. Schuette said the travel scam targeted at least 100 Michigan citizens, the majority of whom were seniors.

Chargers' Filiatraut resigns

By Brad Emons Observer Staff Writer

Coming off the best football season in school history, Livonia Churchill is suddenly searching for a new varsity coach.

After 16 seasons, John Filiatraut informed school officials that has stepped down to devote more time to his family.

The Chargers posted only their third undefeated regular season in school history, capturing the KLAA South Division and Kensington Conference championships. They finished the 2012

"My family is getting to an age where there's some things that I'm frankly not willing to miss," Filiatraut said. "Every year you evaluate and ask yourself if you're willing to live with that time commitment. For football, the time commitment is yearround. It's really 365 days a year now. I looked at few things that are going to be happening in the next year and I wouldn't be able to walk in the door, look at my family and say that's the right thing to do."

Churchill athletic director Marc Hage said Filiatraut turned in his resignation Thursday and met with his coaching staff shortly after.

"Family considerations are a priority here and I completely support it 100 percent," Hage said. "But I'm very, very sad to see him go. He's leaving on 100percent good terms. We had a wonderful relationship. It caught me by surprise. Yes, but I knew the day would eventually be coming."

Rockets rule team district, eye regional

By Brad Emons Observer Staff Writer

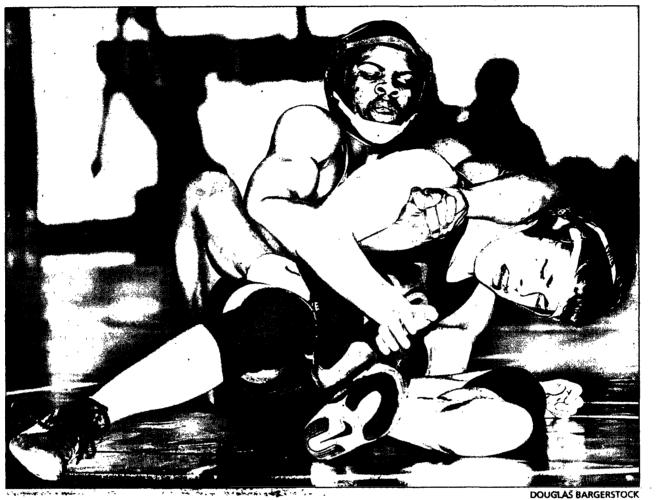

Westland John Glenn took care of business in Wednesday's Division 1 team regional hosted by Wayne Memorial.

The Rockets improved to 20-9 overall with a 45-21 victory over Belleville in the finals after ousting Brownstown Woodhaven in the semifinals, 56-18.

In the other semifinal, Belleville downed the host Wolfpack, 34-32.

Chase Spanos, Kyle Gillies, Kevin Huynh, Brett Quinn, DeAndre Moore, Travis Mann, Jordon Brandon and Dylan Morantes all finished 2-0 on the day, while Tunde Alawode went 1-0 for the Rockets.

Glenn now faces KLAA South Division rival Canton in the regional semifinals beginning at 5:30 p.m. Wednesday, Feb. 13 at home. The winner will meet either Temperance Bedford or Saline for the right to go to the state quarterfinals Friday, Feb. 22 at Battle Creek's Kellogg Arena." "The Canton-John Glenn dual should be a competitive one," Glenn coach Bill Polk said. "Both teams have had ups and downs this year. Either team will have to have everything go right

Plymouth swim team puts Glenn in its wake

By Brad Emons Observer Staff Writer

Kenn Forbes has been pleasantly surprised in his first season as the Plymouth varsity boys swim coach - and then some.

After five years at Redford Union, Forbes has already helped mold the Wildcats into a divisional champion.

Plymouth clinched the KLAA South dual meet title outright Thursday night with a 115-68 victory over host Westland John Glenn, the defending division champ.

"We have a lot of underclass talent," said Forbes, whose team finished 5-0 in the KLAA South. "My freshman and sophomores are swimming as fast or faster than my seniors and juniors. And it sounds like we have a lot of talent coming up from the eighth grade, so hopefully in the next few years we can build off it."

Plymouth started the meet by going one-two in the 200-yard medley relay and parlayed that with victories in the 200 and 400 freestyle relays.

Earning individual firsts for Plymouth were: Nick Weber, 200 IM (2:11.82); Connor McManus, 1meter diving (179.95 points); Cameron Earls, 100 butterfly (56.96); Garrett Beauprez, 500 freestyle (5:18.38); Aniketh Visai, 100 backstroke (1:03.16); and Tyler Kazimierczuk, 100 breaststroke (1:16.44).

Franklin pins down eighth team title in row

By Brad Emons Observer Staff Writer

Winning team districts . is becoming old hat for Livonia Franklin wrestling.

But the Patriots had to earn their eighth straight Division 1 title Wednesday night at Dearborn with a 38-28 victory over Dearborn Heights Crestwood in the finals.

Franklin reached the championship match with a 64-15 win over the host Pioneers. The Patriots, now 21-5 overall, advance to the team regional 5:30 p.m. Wednesday, Feb. 13 at Garden City to face Dearborn Fordson.

The other semifinal pits top-ranked and defending state champion Novi-Detroit Catholic Central

Hage said Filiatraut was a coach who dotted all the I's and the T's. "He always took care of everything whether it was the kids, the equipment, the parents, the team dinners, awards, the banquet," Hage said. "Everything went through him and he was the overseer of the entire football operation because his name was on it. I never had to worry about things when John was in charge. It was an excellent working relationship and he's one of my favorite coaches of all time."

Filiatraut, named Observerland Coach of theYear, admitted he might experience coaching withdrawal symptoms come fall, but he'll be able to catch all of his son John Jr.'s football games where he'll be a senior offensive guard at Divine Child. against Southgate Anderson with the final following at 7 p.m.

"We lost Danny Martinez (125 pounds) for the season so it left a big hole in the middle of our lineup," Franklin coach Dave Chiola said. "I had kids drop weight, wrestle hurt, wrestle sick- it was a true team effort. I put some of my back-ups in against Dearborn because some of my starters were banged up and I truly thought they only had one match in them."

Nick Frazier, Jordan Atienza, Dan Huber and Jeremy Nelson were all double winners for the Patriots.

Crestwood advanced to the final with a 68-11 semifinal win over Garden City.

"I'll miss it, that's for sure," he said. "But at the same time I'm looking forward to seeing some of my daughters' volleyball and getting to my of my daughters' volleyball and getting to my son's games early, watch 'em warm up.

"I don't feel like I'm worn out, or it's been a long time, or I'm tired of this. ... I don't feel like that at all. This past season, ironically, was rejuvenating."

Coming off back-toback playoff seasons, Filiatraut's replacement more than likely be filled from within.

"I'm hopeful that my staff will stay together," he said. "I don't know how that will work out, but I'm hopeful. I'm sure Marc will do a good job of hiring somebody. Hopefully the program stays trending the way it's going."

Filiatraut, who teaches social studies at Churchill, said he will remain on the boys and girls track and field staff during the spring as the throws coach. "Crestwood jumped out on us 17-0, but I told my team ahead of time they would do that, so I don't think anyone panicked," Chiola said. "We knew this was going to be close and it was. The teams know each other very well. It was a fun meet to be a part of."

In other Division 1 districts Wednesday, Catholic Central defeated Northville and host Novi en route to the title. Livonia Stevenson was eliminated by the Wildcats.

At Canton, the host Chiefs earned a spot in the regional with wins over Livonia Churchill (61-6) and Plymouth (40-30).

Churchill reached the final with a 40-31 semifinal victory over Salem.

"He's an excellent coach and a colleague and will certainly be in our hall of fame someday," Hage said. "I wish him well, but selfishly I wish he'd be staying, but I understand fully. I'm happy he'll still be in the building teaching and coaching track."

And after 16 seasons, Filiatraut appreciated his working environment. He was only the fourth coach in school history dating back to 1968 (succeeding Steve Naumcheff).

"It's just a great school and place to work in," he said. "Marc is tremendous and (principal) Joe (Anderson) has been exceptionally supportive. I think there's a reason why Livonia football jobs don't become open very often. They're really good places to work. People are supportive and the parents are supportive. It's a great community. It's really been great."

SWIMMING

Forbes said his team has "exceeded" expectations.

"We figured it (the margin) would be 16 points on paper," Forbes said. "There were a lot of good races. This was our best meet in terms of headsup competition. They have a heckuva group of kids at John Glenn. It's sad to see 11 of them go (graduate).

We all had decent times. I think Alex Johnson, one of my juniors, really stepped up. In the last couple of weeks, he's really turned it up. My freshman class -Keegan Kendall --- he got another P.R. in the backstroke (1:06.42). Garrett Beaprez, another freshman, took some firsts tonight. They all swam well. We got another eight or so P.R.s.'

Glenn's title divisional run last year included razor-thin wins over Plymouth (96-90) and Canton (94-92).

"We knew that they (Plymouth) were better than we were, but we swam well," Glenn seventh-year coach Bob Harding said said. "We moved some people around a little bit. We got four new incoming swimmers this year and we needed more than that because we lost 11 (graduated) last year."

Glenn's top performer was Cody Hodges, a junior, who swept the 50 and 100 freestyles with times of 24.27 and 53.39, respectively.

Senior Josh Wakeford added a first in the 200freestyle (1:54.16).

Some of our younger kids swam well," Harding said. "And Cody Hodges swam well in the 100 freestyle, along with John Kukulka in the 200 IM (third in 2:19.54), Josh Wakeford had a good time in the 200 free and we'll see where he goes in the MISCA meet on Saturday. We're hoping for state cuts maybe in the 200 freestyle relay and Josh in the 200 freestyle."

Forbes, meanwhile, tried to downplay the showdown between the unbeatens.

We approach each meet like it's a normal meet," he said. "We don't do any special preparations. We do the same thing. We look at their times, we look at our times. We just basically make it routine so the guys get in the habit and they don't get thrown off by anything else.'

But although the future looks even brighter, Forbes likes what he sees so far in his current group.

"We're in a very good situation," he said, "especially being undefeated going into the division championship. I couldn't ask for a better team. The guys are amazing. They work hard, they swim hard and they get along. And they have a lot of fun doing it. I couldn't ask for anything more."

The six-team KLAA South Division meet will begin at noon Saturday, Feb. 15, at Glenn. Plymouth last won that title in 2010 after Canton won it in 2011 and Glenn in 2012.

"We lost one dual meet this year," said Harding, whose team is 6-1 overall. "Plymouth handled everybody and they're just better than we are at this point."

Stevenson, Churchill fall in Showcase

It wasn't a good start for Livonia Stevenson in the Michigan Interscholastic Hockey League's Prep Showcase in Trenton.

The state-ranked Spartans went 1-for-6 on the power play gave up three unanswered goals during a 10-minute and 46second span between the second and third periods falling to University of Detroit-Jesuit, 5-2, at Teifer Rink.

The Spartans, now 14-6-1 overall, trailed 1-0 after one period on Craig Pelfrey's goal at 15:52. The Cubs (11-8-1) increased their lead to 2-0 when Tommy Apap scored just 39 seconds into the second period, but the Spartans answered to tie at 2-2 on goals by Devin Kelly (from Tyler Irvine and Connor Humitz at 2:08) and Travis Harvey (power play from Irvine and Kelly at 5:57).

U-D Jesuit then took control on goals by Christian Wirth-Karbler and Bryan Masopust during the final three minutes of

CHURCHILL 3: Livonia Churchill (8-12-1) couldn't overcome a 3-1 first-period deficit in Friday's MIHL Prep Showcase falling to Dearborn Divine Child (12-7-1) at Trenton's Teifer Rink. The Chargers dropped their eighth straight despite outshooting the Falcons 30-25.

Churchill's Matt Sinclair opened the scoring at 1:32 of the opening period off assists from Luke Otto and Tommy Carey, but Divine Child answered with three straight with two coming from Adam Sieklaczak and the other from Michael Perian.

Nick Misiak's goal from Brad Milks at 6:18 of the second cut the deficit 3-2, but DC's Anthony Scala answered with what proved to be the gamewinner at 9:48 of the same period.

Brad Milks scored with 11:20 to go in the third from Riley Brown to make it 4-3, but the Chargers couldn't score the equalizer.

Churchill freshman goaltender Alec Calvaruso made 21 saves, including penalty shot by DC's Evan Heiss with 3:27 remaining in the third. Dominic Stankiewicz made 27 stops for the Falcons.

MU men's soccer coach Scott leaves for Albion position

Eric Scott, who led the Madonna University men's soccer program to the Wolverine-Hoosier Athletic Conference Tournament championship and a berth in the NAIA national tournament in 2011, has resigned to take over the Albion College women's soccer program.

"The Albion women's soccer program has a foundation of excellence," Scott said, "and I would like to build on that tradition. As an alumni (2001), and former student-athlete at Albion, I am familiar of what it means to be a Briton and feel I will be able to instill that same mentality into anyone who plays a role into the success of the women's socassistant coach at Schoolcraft College under Rick Larson where the Ocelots captured four straight Michigan Community College Athletic Association championships and were ranked in the top 15.

"It has been a tremendous privilege and honor to serve Madonna University and the athletic department," said Scott, who went 22-24-7 overall. Glenn girls bowlers improve to 15-0

By Brad Emons Observer Staff Writer

It's been quite a season so far for the Westland John Glenn girls bowling squad.

The Lady Rockets capped an unbeaten regular season in the Kensington Lakes Activities Association with a 30-0 victory Wednesday over Northville at Super Bowl in Canton.

Glenn finished 12-0 in the KLAA's Central Division, along with a 3-0 mark in the crossover matches for a 15-0 overall record.

"It is a great feeling being able to repeat as division champions," Glenn coạch Ralph Cabildo said. "It has been a great season, not only because we were undefeated, but most importantly the way the girls supported each other."

Julia Huren paced the victory with a 213-174-387 two-game set, while freshman Emily Dietz chipped in with a 186-174-360.

On Tuesday, Glenn downed Salem at Vision Lanes, 23-7, as Dietz paced the Rockets with a 237-236-473 two-game set, while Olivia Cabildo added a 224 game.

That was coming off a 23-7 victory Feb. 1 over Plymouth as Dietz led the way with 226 individual game, while Caity Lenard and Huren added games of 217 and 214, respectively.

Dietz and Huren lead the Central Division with per game match averages of 194.75 and 194.12, respectively. Cabildo and Lenard hold down averages of 181.13 and 172.58, respectively.

C'ville girls fall

In a match last Tuesday, Livonia Clarenceville fell 30-0 to Dearborn Heights Crestwood in a match at Romulus Lanes.

Erin Walters rolled a 158-158-316 two-game set followed by Sarah Meili with a 103-124-227.

Sarah Estepp contributed a 110 game, while Carmen Neito posted a 102 for the Trojans (2-8).

Crestwood won both regular match games, 841-565 and 829-561.

Rocket boys shuttle past N'ville bowlers

Westland John Glenn wrapped up at least a share of the Central Division boys bowling title Wednesday with a 25-5 victory over Northville in a match held at Super Bowl in Canton.

improved to 10-2 in the division and 13-2 in the conference, got a 450 series from Mike Russom on games of 234 and 216.

"We came out with one goal – focus and stay mentally sharp every frame," Glenn coach Ron Staples said. "Were solid from top to bottom today."

Also contributing to the win was Steve Brusseau, 424; Mark Kassab, 405; Steve White, 403; and Billy Wicker, 386.

Wicker contributed a high game of 224, while Brusseau added a 222.

Glenn jumped out to a 6-4 lead after the two Baker games. The Rockets averaged 206 for the two match games and had a total pin count tally of 2,067.

"We showed emotion out there and all the boys took it personal today. We are looking forward to our conference tournament (Feb. 15 at Super Bowl). It should be a battle and my job is to get them ready for the battle and stand as one in victory or defeat."

The Rockets were coming off a 19-11 setback Tuesday at Vision Lanes to KLAA Central co-leader Salem.

"I told our team the loss to Salem will make us stronger and it did," Staples said.

ed a two-game set of 214-201-415 and Kaylup Richards also contributed a 185-230-415 series to lead Livonia Clarenceville past Dearborn Heights Crestwood in a match last Tuesday at Romulus Lanes.

The Trojans, who improved to 7-3 overall, also got solid efforts from Tyler Fox (204-193-397) and Kyle Kissandi (182-212-394).

Matthew Thayer and Stephan Clark each added 200 games as the boys won the regular match games 993-759 and 1.036-749

MU starts baseball season with a split

The 24th-ranked Madonna University baseball team opened its 2013 season Friday in Dayton, Tenn. by splitting a pair of games.

Designated hitter Spencer Sarel belted a 2-run homer in the top of the fourth inning and the Crusaders rode the right arm of senior Matthew Cook to beat host Bryan (Tenn.) College, 5-3, after falling to No. 20 Georgetown (Ky.) earlier in the day, 8-3.

Cook went all seven innings to throw a complete game. He allowed three earned runs on six hits, while striking out six and not allowing a walk.

Brad Lineberry (Plymouth) also went 2-for-4 with an RBI.

Blake Johnson hit a 2run homer for Bryan (2-1) and starter Joey Vega, who gave up four earned runs on five hits in five innings, took the loss.

Georgetown (3-2) got a complete game from starter Tyler Arthur (1-1) to beat the Crusaders. He struck out six, walked one and allowed two earned runs on seven hits.

Lineberry went 2-for-3 with two RBI, while Shane Dokey also went 2for-3.

Sarel collected the other RBI to finish with four on the day.

Georgetown was led by DH Martin Lemus, who went 3-for-4 with a homer and three RBI. Mike Stienke also added three hits, while E.J. Murray went 2-for-4 with three RBI and Ryan Serrato hit a solo homer.

MU starter Josh Vandemark allowed six earned runs on 10 hits in 4.1 innings before giving way to Adam Prashad, who worked the final 2.2.

On Saturday, MU returns to the field in Cleveland, Tenn. to face Rio Grande (Ohio) and then No. 3-ranked Lee (Tenn.).

MU women down Lawrence Tech

Kaylee McGrath's double-double lifted the Madonna University women's basketball team to a 60-47 triumph Wednesday over host Lawrence Tech at Riddler Field House.

McGrath, a 6-foot senior from Livonia Stevenson High, hit 9-of-11 shots from the floor en route to a game-high 18 points, while also adding a game-best 13 rebounds. The fourth-place Crusaders, who improved to 17-9 overall and 13-6 in the WHAC, also got 11 points off the bench from Rachel Melcher.

Bench scoring contributed heavily to the victory as the Crusaders held a 20-4 advantage.

Hali Butler and Jill Carland each tallied nine points for the Blue Devils (6-17, 4-15).

MU shot 25-of-54 from the floor (46.3 percent), while Lawrence Tech hit just 13-of-44 (29.5 percent).

Looking sharp Farmington Hills woman turns heads with her hats

By Sharon Dargay Staff Writer

Can't wear a hat? Linda Sweeney says you can — and you'll look good wearing it.

"Everyone can wear at hat. It just needs to be custom-made for them," said the Farmington Hills milliner.

"There is a saving called the 10 commandments of wearing a hat. I don't remember them all, but one of them is vou're not supposed to wear a hat wider than your shoulders. But let me tell you, it's all in the confidence. I've seen (short) women who will rock in a wide-brimmed hat with confidence. Theý know they look good and they can pull it off. You know, confidence is everything."

Sweeney, owner of Forever Sweeney Millinery & Designs, LLC., supplies the custom fit for her couture creations that range from casual to dressy with a retro flair to fancy and flamboyant. Her most popular hat, called "The Snappy Casual," sports an angled brim that can be turned up or down. Its brim can be dressed up with detachable embellishments or adorned with a simple pin or silk flower to pair with blue jeans.

"It's popular because women can wear it any-silk flowers and bolts of various fabrics, from velvets and velours to mud cloth and felt. "I'm an old movie buff. So. I like the fashions of the '20s and '30s. When I watch old movies, I really get inspired," she said.

Sweeney also admires British millinery fashion, especially the "fascinators" or cocktailstyle hats that were visible among guests at the wedding of Prince William and Kate Middleton two years ago. Fascinators are elaborately trimmed hair decorations built on a headband or clip.

Giving back

Sweeney donated a red fascinator to the silent auction at the Go Red For Women Luncheon, on Feb. 15 in Detroit. The event is aimed at raising funds for cardiovascular research. Heart disease is the No. 1 killer of women.

'It's a great event and it has opened my eyes to heart healthy awareness," said Sweeney, who has donated hats to the auction for the past three years. "I really was amazed that so many women die from heart disease.

"This is my way as a small business to give back. It's fun and a way to contribute my talent to the communitv. Custom millinery is what I do and what I really enjoy. It's something I do when I'm not working the corporate world.'

Sweeney designs, sews and blocks her custom hats at night and on weekends. By day she works in the legal realm of the utility industry.

Sweeney embellishes her hats with feathers, flowers and other decorations.

Young seamstress

Sweeney learned her sewing skills from her mother and made many of her own outfits while growing up. By the time she graduated from high school and began taking classes in court reporting, she had put her interest in sewing aside.

It wasn't until she and her late husband. Howard, were expecting their first child, that she revived her skills, a response to the high cost of ready-to-wear maternity clothing.

The sewing led to hatmaking and millinery classes as she and her husband, who worked in law enforcement. decided to turn a hobby into a business. Sweeney taught Howard all she learned in the classes she took. He did most of the hat blocking stretching pieces into shape - and she sewed.

'I was making hats at night and on weekends and home schooling during the day," said Sweeney, who taught her three children at home. She enrolled at the University of Michigan-Dearborn to study human resources when her two youngest children began attending classes at a charter high school. She also continued to design and make hats on the side. "It was a lot of hard work and when I look back on it, I think, ooh, how did I do that?"

Other passions

She frequently talks about the history of hats for women's organizations and churches and often works with her friend, Yolanda Haynes of Southfield, on events that combine hat fittings or history presentations with tea parties. Haynes brings tea for tasting and talks about its past. Sweeney offers fittings, talks about the history of hats and shows her creations. Attendees can buy hats on the spot or commission Sweeney to make one especially for them.

Although Sweenev maintains a website for her hat business, she doesn't sell over the Internet.

"I found that most people, because I'm local, want to see a hat, feel a hat," she said. "And I'll meet people at a boutique in a heartbeat."

For more information about her hat designs, visit www.foreversweeney.com

Hats on display in Linda Sweeney's work room include styles made from mud cloth, silk, velour felt, and straw fabrics.

Mollý Marshall of Ferndale, (left) Wendy Luczak of Berkley, Kerri Mulvihill of Livonia and John McManus of Huntington Woods enjoy the 3rd Annual Heidelberg Project Fundraiser at the Fine Arts Theater in Detroit. Graffiti was the event theme, street-wear chic was the dress code and some of the best art around from Michigan was for sale. The Heidelberg Project is a two-block area on Detroit's east side that consists of art installations made from everyday, discarded objects.

Yolanda and David Tisdale of West Bloomfield and Micki Grossman of Farmington Hills attend the Saks Fifth Avenue Kick-off fundraiser that was held Wednesday to benefit Beaumont Children's Hospital, Southeastern Michigan American Red Cross and the Detroit Institute of the Arts (DIA). Customers who use their Saks Fifth Avenue credit card this month will help benefit the charities. Saks will donate 5 percent of each purchase to the organizations. Saks.com also will support the initiative by giving 5 percent of online purchases made with a registered Saks card, to The Red Cross. Saks Fifth Avenue Off Fifth will ask customers their charity preference at point of purchase.

On the road again Technicians needed for appliance work

By Joe Gagnon Guest Columnist

any years ago I asked my three sons, Shawn Mark and Andrew, to learn the trade of appliance repair. Each of them had a part-time job working for me at my shop and working for the father is not always an easy task.

After school they would pedal their bikes and arrive ready to learn. I would give them a particular appliance and they would strip it down and put all the parts in a box and then have to put it all back together. They will tell you today that they did the same thing over and over until they knew what each component did, how it functioned and how it failed. They learned by repetition just as I did some 50 years ago. From all of that, the boys have learned a trade that will always keep them employed anywhere in this country.

My middle son, Mark, owns a repair company in Livonia and a few weeks ago I put on the boots and blue jeans and spent three days with him making service calls at homes which had a broken major appliance. I told him not to tell customers that I was his father but rather just introduce me as his helper. That was a waste of words because people recognized the face and I ended up doing a lot of talking and really enjoyed meeting the customer.

One of the first things we did was go to the appliance wholesal-. er and purchase a box containing 100 screwdriver bits. In the old days there was a Philips screwdriver and straight but today there are many different screws used by . the manufacturers and I know why. They simply don't want you fixing your own appliances. They make it as difficult as possible to take anything apart and I've had many calls from homeowners who have not got a screwdriver to match the screw on the product. Maybe the engineers don't think a Philips screw will hold two pieces of metal together even though it has worked well for the past 75 years. Anything to screw up the do-it-yourselfer.

Mark and I fixed several appliances in those three days and it really feels good when a homeowner smiles and says: "I'm so glad I don't have to buy a new one." I had a feeling of depression when we had to tell them that repairs would be too expensive and they needed a new one. I did feel good about giving them some tips on how to shop.

In those three days I was alarmed at how many things I noticed that put some of these homeowners in potential dangerous situations. I saw dryer vent lines that were plugged up solid and a few were the old fashioned plastic and much too long. These vent lines were the reason for the failure of their clothes dryers.

I saw gas cans located next to the hot water heater along with paint cans and clothes piled high on the top of the dryer. I did not see one smoke or fire alarm located on the ceiling above the laundry pair.

I saw a small extension cord used to run electricity to a chest freezer which could easily ruin the compressor. What I noticed wrong in these homes I pointed out to the person in charge and I only hope that steps were taken to correct a dangerous condition. Needless to say it was an exciting three days on the road and I intend to do again very soon.

In today's world we hear so much about college graduates who are not finding employment in their chosen fields and the lack of vocational teaching as we once knew. I know that in the appliance repair industry we are needing thousands of technicians across this country. Just maybe, someone reading this has the where-with-all to influence a teaching facility to move forward. I might be able to find a few retirees who could teach the sons and daughters on how to get on the road again. Stay tuned.

Joe Gagnon can be heard at 8 a.m., Saturdays on WAAM 1600. You can e-mail your problems and questions on appliances to appldr@twmi.rr.com.

THE AGING HAND

Self-care begins with the hand. The ability to dress one's self, feed, clothe and clean independently assumes fingers sufficiently dexterous to hold a spoon, place a button and wipe a towel.

The elderly are warned about ridding the home of throw rugs to avoid falls and the broken bones that follow. The aged receive instructions to keep small objects out of their path because old eyes cannot see small objects. However, no one speaks on ways to preserve hand function.

But first, what can happen to the aging hand?

The most common problem is osteoarthritis. When this occurs, the knuckles of the fingers lose their ability to open and close or in medical terms, extend and flex, in their usual fashion. Usually this loss of function comes on with little accompanying pain. However, at times an involved knuckle will swell and pain possibility for days. Eventually the pain leaves; the stiffness never does.

Treatment consists of knowing that the pain and loss of use of the hand is temporary. Using heat and acetaminophen will accelerate resolution, but medicine has nothing to offer to prevent osteoarthritis; its presence and extent are determined by the patient's genes.

Gout in the hand or wrist can present a similar picture, but is different in that the onset is sudden and the pain is intense. Physicians usually have little difficulty in making a diagnosis of gout in the hand, though there may be a problem distinguishing gout from acute injury or infection. Resolution requires receiving appropriate gout therapy, prevent of gout attacks in not possible; careful diet may be helpful but is not sufficient OE8794

CDC recommends hepatitis C test for baby boomers

When Martha Saly, director of the National Viral Hepatitis Roundtable (NVHR), learned she had hepatitis C, a virus that attacks the liver, she was in disbelief. Saly never suspected she might be infected with the hepatitis C virus, and unfortunately, cases like Saly's are not uncommon.

Most of the 3.2 million Americans who are living with hepatitis C, don't know they are infected. That's why the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) recently released hepatitis C screening recommendations calling for all adults born from 1945 through 1965, also known as baby boomers, to get tested for hepatitis C.

"This test can mean the difference between life and death — it did for me," Saly said. "You can live with hepatitis C for decades without feeling sick, but liver damage can occur silently during this time, which can lead to more serious problems such as cirrhosis and liver cancer."

Saly knows firsthand the importance of testing baby boomers for hepatitis C and offers, five reasons why CDC's new hepatitis C testing recommendations matter to you:

1. Anyone can get hepatitis C

Millions of Americans have hepatitis C and many of them don't know how or when they were infected. People born from 1945 through 1965 are five times more likely than other adults

The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention recently recommended that adults born from 1945 through 1965, also known as baby boomers, to get tested for hepatitis C.

to be infected with hepatitis C and account for more than 75 percent of all American adults living with the disease.

2. Don't assume you've been tested

"More than a decade ago, I was fortunate to have a proactive doctor who tested me for hepatitis C, but that wasn't the norm then and unfortunately hepatitis C is still not typically included in routine blood tests," Saly said. The CDC's recommendations aim to address this silent epidemic by recommending people in this age group get tested.

3. It's a one-time test. that will ease your mind For more than 95 percent of boomers, the simple hepatitis C-bloodtest is followed by reassuring news. But for the people who are infected, the test and resulting treatment could mean the difference between life and death. "Knowing whether or not you have hepatitis C can help you make important decisions about your health," Saly said. 4. Treatments are available For those who find out they have hepatitis C. medicines are available that can effectively treat up to 75 percent of infections and additional, promising treatments are currently in development. "Treatments for hepatitis C can delay or even reverse the effects of liver damage and in some cases can eliminate the virus from the body."

5. This test could save vour life

"It saved mine," Salv said. "I was very lucky to be tested, treated and cured 12 years ago. But for every person like me, there are three people with hepatitis C out there who don't know they have it." These testing recommendations from CDC could help identify an estimated 800,000 people with hepatitis C and save tens of thousands. "Baby boomers need to talk to their doctor about getting tested for hepatitis C," Saly said. "It's a no brainer."

To learn more about hepatitis C go to www. nvhr.org and visit the CDC's Know More Hepatitis campaign website: www.cdc.gov/knowmorehepatitis.

Advertisement Eat Better Live Longer ...Start with a Heart Healthy Diet!

Ask A Garden City Hospital Health Expert

One in every three deaths in the U.S. is attributed to heart disease and stroke. February is National Heart Month and this week, Garden City Hospital's Director of Food & Nutrition Services and Registered Dietitian, Linda Main, shares her views on eating "Heart Smart".

Q: After my most recent physical, my doctor informed Food & Nutrition Services me my blood pressure and cholesterol levels are too high for someone my age and weight. He has given me six months to get them down or he wants me to start taking medication to do the job. I already workout three times a week, but I want to know what I can do with my diet. Please advise.

A: What you eat affects your risk for having heart disease and poor blood circulation, which can lead to a heart attack or stroke. With heart disease, plaque (a fatty substance) builds up in the arteries. Over time, this buildup causes the arteries to narrow and harden, and as a result, the heart does not get all the blood it needs to work properly, causing chest pain or a heart attack. A stroke occurs when a blood vessel bringing blood to the brain becomes blocked by fatty deposits lining the vessel walls.

A heart healthy diet is really quite simple and consists of eating lean meat/protein, low saturated fats and "whole foods", foods that are unprocessed and unrefined. The following choices are ideal for a heart healthy lifestyle:

- Fruits and vegetables
- •Grains (whole wheat, oatmeal, brown rice, barley, buckwheat, bulgur, millet, quinoa)
- Low-fat versions of milk, cheese, yogurt, and other milk products
- Fish, skinless poultry, lean meats, dry beans, eggs and nuts
- Polyunsaturated and monounsaturated fats (found in fish, nuts, vegetable oils)

The following foods should be limited:

- Sodium
- Sugar
- Saturated fat (deli meat, ice cream, butter, lard, mayonnaise)
- Trans fat (found in processed foods such as cakes, cookies, margarine, potato chips, corn chips)

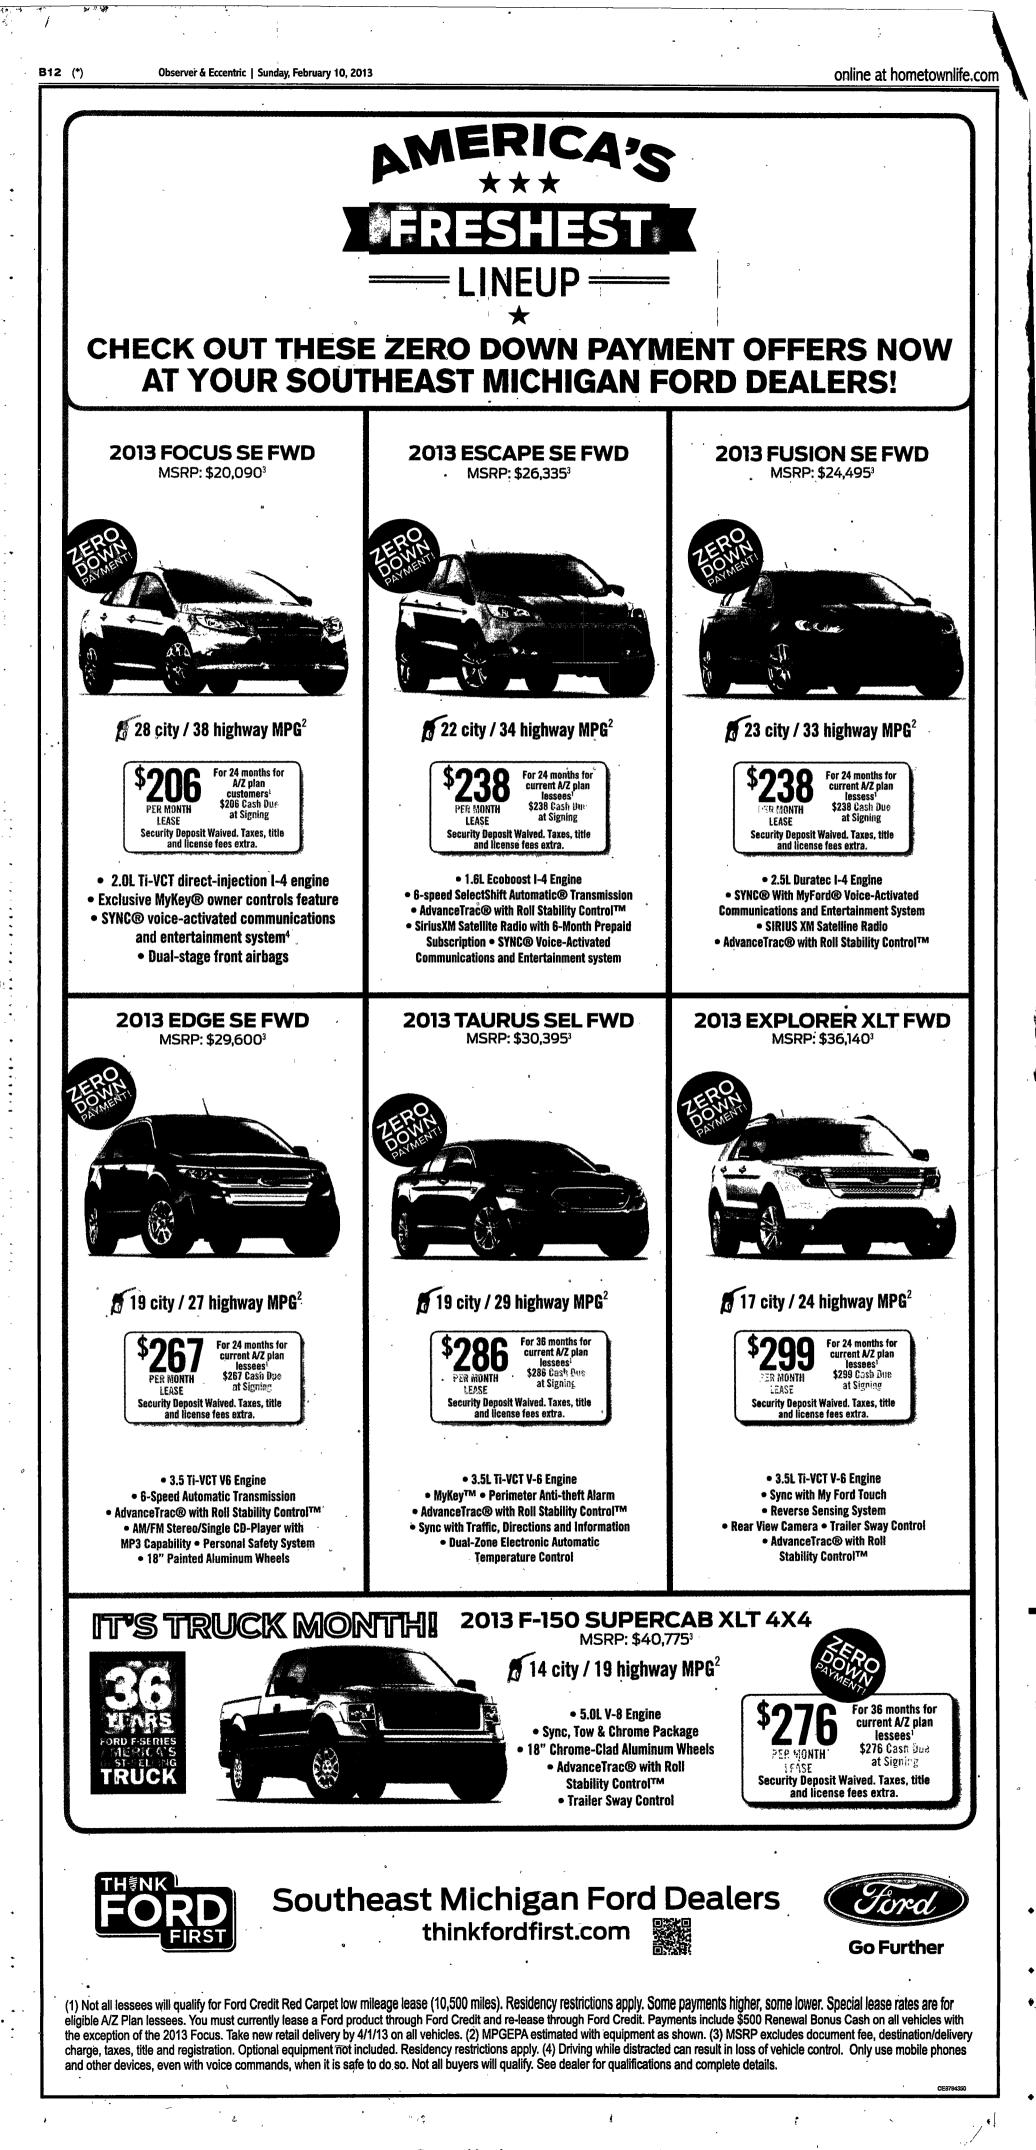

For help with personalized eating plans, you may want to consult a registered dietitian. GCH offers a variety of nutrition and weight management services to help you achieve your health goals. These services are often covered by insurance. For more information, or to schedule an appointment, call 734.458.4330.

Traveling can be more than just taking a break for a few days. For those who love to travel, it's about seeing the world and interacting with people from different cultures. Some may enjoy traveling so much that they make it a part of their job. Here are seven occupations for people who like to travel:

1. Airline and commercial pilot*

What they do: Airline and commercial pilots fly and navigate airplanes or helicopters. Pilots spend a considerable amount of time away from home, because flights often involve overnight layovers. Typical education level that most workers need to enter this occupation: Many pilots learn to fly in the military, but a growing number have an associate or bachelor's de-. gree from a civilian flight school. All pilots who are paid to transport passengers or cargo must have a commercial pilot's license. 2010 median pay: $92,060

Auto brands look to build on 2013 Super Bowl ad successes

Car Report

Chrysler and Toyota garnered the consensus nod for creating the most enjoyable Super Bowl XLVII spots for viewers to watch. But when it came to drawing interest in vehicles, according to Edmunds.

By Dale Buss

com, Mercedes-Benz and Hyundai quickly emerged on top. And that means they'reall winners of a mega-event that car marketers increasingly dominate.

Most reviewers appreciated the all-American sentiments and the magnanimity expressed by Chrysler's pair of two-minute anthem ads, "Whole Again" and "So God Made a Farmer". And Toyota's "Wish Granted" spot, starring Kaley Cuoco as a genie, scored as the most effective humor displayed by any of the eight car brands that advertised during last week's Big Game.

Here's a brand-by-brand look at the Super Bowl automotive advertising and the immediate aftermath:

Audi: The German luxury brand didn't get the same kind of kudos that it has for previous Super Bowl ads, generating polite applause from reviewers but little sense that Audi really had nailed it. Audi executives were aiming to highlight their marque as a brand that had embraced some "defining moments" during its recent rise in the U.S. market, but this ad made that point in an obligue way.

Chrysler: The genius of these ads was that Chrysler was able to accomplish dual purposes in each spot. It ascended once again to a position above the scrum of ordinary Super Bowl advertising just as it had done the previous two years. And yet Chrysler was able to insert its vehicles and brands (Jeep and Ram) in each spot as part of the fabric of the overall paean, not at all intrusively, thereby lending the kind of authenticity that fuels long-term brand success.

Hyundai: Hyundai's goal for Super Bowl Sunday was to dominate the occasion, at least in terms of advertising frequency and, especially, to create a critical mass of impressions about its new Santa Fe seven-passenger SUV. Mission accomplished. After this set of ads and spinoffs, U.S. consumers now are well aware of the multiple capabilities and new look of the refurbished Santa Fe. Hyundai also advertised its Sonata Turbo edition and the performance version of its Genesis coupe.

Kia: Reviews have been mixed about the effectiveness of Kia's two spots. The "Babylandia" space-babies theme created an intriguing story line for holding viewers to the ad, and the punch line effectively delivered the benefit of the Sorento from an infotainment system that can be quickly kicked into gear — so as to distract children in the back seat from questions in the front seat that their parents rather would not answer. But the violence in the Forte ad seemed gratuitous, and the "tech" highlighted by the story line really wasn't much explored.

Toyota's RAV4 and Kaley Cuoco starred in a popular spot.

The "Farmer" ad for Ram trucks was one of the most-liked of the Super Bowl.

Lincoln: Reviewers loved the first Lincoln ad, in which an old Lincoln Town Car suddenly transformed into the new MKZ sedan and was pampered by the camera as it streaked down the road. But reception was less unanimous for the Jimmy Falloncurated mashup. The way the 30-second ad ran, the intent seemed to be more to pay tribute to the crowdsourcing process than to worry too much about the effectiveness of the ad in delivering a message about the brand.

Mercedes-Benz: The brand — whose name also was all over New Orleans last week, including on the Superdome it sponsors — had a good Super Bowl, despite its name becoming synonymous with a historic power loss there during the game. Mercedes-Benz told a good story with a fantastic punch line that very effectively emphasized the key benefit of its new CLA Class: It's stylish yet, at starting prices of $29,900, affordable for the Millennial generation that every automaker now is chasing.

Toyota: Toyota may have emerged as the overall combined champion of the automotive-advertising Super Bowl. Its Game Day spot featuring Cuoco, a family and their RAV4 was funny and familyfriendly; the vehicle and its versatility were featured throughout; and socialmedia buzz around a pre-Game teaser made Toyota the top performer in that metric.

Volkswagen: The brand decided that it was finally time to depart from its Star Wars themes of the last couple of years and use the Super Bowl stage to indicate how it is stepping into its more mainstream role in the U.S. market. Trouble was, Volkswagen jumped from a nice, warm fire into a hot frying pan with its white-guy Jamaican schtick. The other problem with the spot is that it didn't do much to promote the Beetle, which was its featured car during the past Super Bowl.
